men's meeting at the Young Men's Christian Association, Sunday, at 4 p. m.

—Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ford and family are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Whittemore at their summer home, Hingham.

—Miss Sears of the Hunnewell sailed last Saturday in the steamship Canada, and will spend the summer with relatives in Paris.

—Rev. George F. Eaton, D. D., presiding elder, will hold the first quarterly conference of the Methodist church on Wednesday, June 9th.

—Mrs. E. C. Bigelow of Jefferson street has presented the Y. M. C. A. with a set of Dickens's works in ten volumes. She also gave a beautiful engraving of Longfellow in his library.

—The Methodist society will hold a strawberry festival in Eliot lower hall on Thursday evening, June 10th. A pleasing program is being provided and all are invited to be present.

—The Channing Union will meet next Sunday evening at 7.30 in the chapel of Channing church. The subject for discussion will be "True Religion." All are cordially invited to attend.

—The music in Grace church on the communion Sunday evening will be appropriate to Whitsun-Day, and will be of a high order.
The professional anthem, "O Zion blest city," is always a favorite.

—Rev. Dr. Davis, pastor of the Eliot church, has returned from Dartmouth, where he preached the college sermon last Sunday. The Eliot church pulpit was occupied by Dr. Webb of Boston.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hazewood have closed their home on Salem street for the summer, and have gone to their country home at Pembroke. Mr. Hazewood will be at the Hunnewell the greater part of every week.

—It has been suggested that "loafer alley" would be a more appropriate name for the passage-way from around Cole's block from Centre street to the temporary crossing, rather than "sandbag alley," which it is now called.

—Rev. Dr. Robert Hoskins of Wesley street has gone to Salem, where he will take charge of the services of the Lafayette street church during the absence of Rev.
Dillon Bronson, who goes away for a several weeks trip.

—Next Sunday at the Methodist church services will be held as usual, at 10.30 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. The morning service will be by Prof. George K. Morris and in the evening the services will be in charge of Prof. Charles W. Rishell.

—Fred Smith of this place made a fine showing in the athletic meet at Saxtonville last Saturday. In the 100 yards dash he won a special prize of $10.00, and was winner of the fastest heat, and first prize, a Morris chair, as winner of the final heat.

—The services at the Channing church last Sunday morning were conducted by Rev. Loring B. McDonald of Concord,
Mass., in exchange with the pastor. Rev.
McDonald was formerly a resident of Newton, and a graduate of the high school.

—The coming Sunday is known as Whitsun-Day. "Whitsun" is derived from
"Pfinxten" which is a form of Pentecost.
Next Sunday is Pentecost Day, or the anniversary of the Pentecost day when the Holy Spirit came in power upon the waiting church.

—The funeral of Mr. Frank P. Benyon took place at 2 o'clock last Saturday afternoon, from the residence of his mother on Galen street. The Rev. E. A. Rand of the Watertown Episcopal church officiated.
The interment was at the Mt. Auburn cemetery.

—Judge Bennett, Dean of the Boston University Law School, is to read a paper before the Ministers' Union at 3 o'clock
p. m. next Monday, in the Methodist church school room, Newtonville. The topic is "The Four Gospels from a Legal Standpoint." On this occasion persons who are not ministers can attend.

—Considerable complaint has been heard of late of the fast rate of speed at which some of the public conveyances have been driven. A few days ago a hack collided with a buggy on the Centre street crossing, and the latter was considerably damaged.
A correspondent suggests that something might be done to prevent fast driving through the square.

—The younger society people of the Newtons attended in large numbers the successful informal dance given by the L. C. M.
Club, class '97, N. H. S., in Nonantum hall, last Saturday evening. About 50 couples enjoyed dancing from 8 to 11. The matrons were Mrs. C. E. Eddy, Mrs. E. C. Alden, Mrs. B. L. Cloutman. The officers of the club are Miss Caroline H. Childs, president, Miss Priscilla Alden, secretary.

—Dr. Eugene W. Hill of Newton was married at noon yesterday, in New York City, to Miss Mary G. Osborne daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Osborne.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, 235 West 142nd street, and
Rev. Dr. Patee of St. Luke's church officiated.
The best man was Mr. Charles Gray of Portsmouth, N. H., and there were two bridesmaids, Dr. and Mrs. Hill will take a short trip south, and on their return will reside at the Laurelwood, on Kendrick street.

—Yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. John D. Barrows on Washington street, an enjoyable reception was given to the members of the Paul Revere Chapter, D. A. R. The exterior was brilliantly festooned with the stars and stripes, and the interior brilliantly decorated with wild flowers. Mrs. Barrows was assisted in receiving by Mrs. B. Loring White, Mrs. A.
R. Bailey, Mrs. George Brown, and Mrs.
Lester Goodwin. An address was delivered by Rev. F. B. Hornbrook, and several entertaining selections were read by Mrs. W.
H. Stearns. The refreshment tables were presided over by Mrs. A. R. Bailey and Mrs. B. Loring White.

newell terrace are at North Pembroke for the summer.

—Gentlemen and children after trying other places for a stylish hair cut go to Burns', Cole's block.

—Mr. F. D. Adams of Church street, who accompanied Rev. Mr. Merrill on his trip abroad, returned home last week.

—Rev. Dr. Merrill, pastor of the Baptist church, is expected home next week from his tour of the Holy Land and Europe.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Davis of Centre street, and Mrs. W. H. Davis of Park street, have returned from Waterville, N. H.

—Mrs. D. W. Barber of Newtonville avenue, who has been confined to her home, the result of a fall, is much improved in health.

—F. A. Hubbard has the weather reports from Washington, every morning, giving the predictions for the next twenty-four hours, at his drug-store.

—The large wooden stable owned by Mr.
George W. Bush and occupied by Express-man Pearson has been removed and will be replaced by a brick building.

—The annual dinner of the Massachusetts Letter Carriers' association will be held at the United States Hotel, Boston, next Sunday. The Newton carriers will attend.

—Rev. Dr. Shinn presented several candidates for confirmation at the Waban church last evening, where confirmation exercises were conducted by Bishop Lawrence.

—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Slade Wheeler will be at home Saturday, June 5, and Wednesday, June 9 from 5 to 8 o'clock, at their residence, corner of Centre and Bennington streets.

—The Children's day of Eliot church will be observed at the morning service, June 13th. There will be a baptism of infants, and an address by the pastor. Mr.
Townbridge will conduct a children's chorus.

—Music in Grace church Sunday night:
Processional Anthem, "O Zion blest City." Hills
Gloria in Excelsis. H. B. Day
Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. Good Anthem, "Blessed are the Merciful." Hills

"Send out Thy Light." Gould Retire, "Hark! Hark! My Soul." Barby Seats free.

—J. J. Perry, a Nonantum barber, was arrested Wednesday evening by Patrolman McAtee on a charge of embezzlement.
Perry is charged with borrowing a bicycle from John Collins, his helper, and failing to return it. The police also allege that he disposed of the wheel in Brighton. In court this morning he was sentenced to four months in the House of Correction.

—Mrs. W. H. Davis, wife of Rev. Dr.
Davis, pastor of the Eliot church, received a handsome gift from the ladies of the church in connection with Eliot church in the form of a carved mahogany English hall clock. The clock measures 8 feet, is brass trimmed, and is fitted with cathedral chimes. Mrs. Davis also received a flesh-ing out cabinet for cut glass and china.

—Simpson Bros. have the contract for the concrete sidewalks for the new depot, and are now laying the walk next to the track, over the curious arched framework, which has been built. The space between the sidewalks for a mushroom bed, as have thought, but is for a drain to carry off the surface water that flows down into the station grounds.

—The marriage of Miss Agnes M. Andrew of this city to Mr. Geo. G. Russell of Cincinnati, O., was very quietly solemnized
Saturday evening at 5.30 o'clock, by Rev.
W. H. Hutchins. The ceremony took place at the bride's home and was attended by only the immediate family. Mr. and Mrs.
Russell left the 9.40 train for Boston, and they will immediately go to Connellsville, Penn., where they will reside.

—Saturday, June 12, the athletic contest of the Y. M. C. A. will be held on the Newton Centre playground. It will begin at 2.30 p. m. Following are the events and officers: Events—100 yds. dash, 440 yds. run, 880 yds. run, 1 mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, shot put and hop, step and jump. Officers—Referee, J.
Leavitt; judges, A. W. Porter, Newton
Porter, P. F. Parker; starter, A. B. Smith; announcer, Fred Sites.

—The marriage of Miss Lillian Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Evans of Brook street, and Mr. Herbert William Robbins of Malden took place Wednesday evening at 5.30 o'clock, at the home of the bride, in the presence of a small company of friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. H. Bailey of Malden. An informal reception followed the ceremony and the bride and groom left for their summer home on the South shore.

—Music in Eliot church next Sunday:

away." Woodward Quartet, "God, to whom we look blindly." Chadwick Organ postlude. Wely

The service formerly held at 7.30 will through June and July be held at 4.45 p. m.

—At the Y. M. C. A. hall, Wednesday evening, a reception was given to the young men of the association by the newly elected officers, assisted by members of the Women's Auxiliary. In the prettily decorated rooms, President Fred H. Tucker of the Association and Mrs. E. M. Springer of the Women's Auxiliary, informally received. Those in charge were Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Paine, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Shap-leigh, Mrs. McNichol, Mrs. Doane, Mrs.
Welch, Mrs. Howes, Mrs. Ashenden,
P. H. Robinson, George Safford, C. D.
Kemper, A. J. Ball, W. C. Whitney, M.
Haase, W. Howes, W. Livermore and L.
Bentley. An entertainment program was given in the large hall, consisting of pleasing selections by a chorus of six mixed voices, under the direction of Mr. Edward Bacon. Mrs. Jennie Ball, pianist, Mr. John Crookford, banjo-soloist, a male quartet, and Mr. Parker humorist. Rev. Dr. W. H.
Davis made a congratulatory address, and President Tucker, in behalf of the auxiliary, presented the association with several handsome volumes, to be added to the library. Later light refreshments were served.

—Developing and printing for amateurs done by E. E. Snyder. 11

—Mr. E. W. Gay of Waverley avenue is able to be out again after his recent illness.

—Wednesday evening a new house at the corner of Eldridge and Church streets, owned by C. T. Galland, was entered by forcing a rear window and was stripped of electrical apparatus.

—Charity Lodge, I. O. G. T., held a special meeting in Athenaeum hall, Nonantum, Wednesday evening, and initiated three candidates. After the formal exercises supper was served and an entertainment provided.

Some one has well said that a person can be no stronger than his stomach; for the body is what the stomach makes it. Touching upon this idea it might be well to inform our readers that the question will be discussed as never before discussed at the free session of the New Era Cooking School to be held at the Y. M. C. A. hall, Nonantum building, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 8, 9 and 10th, at 2.30 p. m.
each day. We learn from our exchanges that this school entertains immense audiences in every town visited and that both lecturer and demonstrator are highly interesting.

Pupils' Recital.
The gentlemen who are teaching in Mr.
Hale's studio in Newtonville gave a pupils' recital in the chapel of the Central Congregational church last night. The audience occupied every available seat. The program was as follows:

Prelude in G-minor. Adelbert Morse
Fantasia in D-minor. Mozart
The Wolf (Old English). Shield
The Little Red Fox (Old Irish). Shield

Mr. James Antrobos. Mascheroni
For all Eternity. Mrs. J. H. Wheeler, Jr.
Violin Concerto by Mr. Howard. Mendelssohn
Rondo Capriccioso. Miss Amy Dalton. Gounod
Cavatina, "From 'Queen of Sheba.'" Miss Alice V. Burns. Gounod
Concerto for Violin in A-minor. Accoley Rococo. Master Joshua Roberts. Schutt
La Lionnera. Chaminade. Nevin
Arieetto. Miss Grace Dow. Nevin
Bass Solo. Selected. Mr. C. H. Wilson. Jessie Gaynor
The Sugar Dolly. Mr. C. H. Wilson. Jessie Gaynor
The Swallows. Miss Burns. Cowen

The work presented was all of it unexpectedly sound and artistic, and the concert was more than a pupils' recital; it was a delightful entertainment.

All the singing was good. Miss Burns sang Gounod's cavatina grandly and was enthusiastically received. We do not remember ever having heard it so well sung at a pupils' recital. The songs by Gaynor and Cowen were charmingly rendered.

Miss Burns' recital was really excellent work in composition. The prelude unites very happily a polyphonic style with a harmonic structure distinctly modern, and is very original and musical.

The Mozart Fantasia was given, being some occasional nervousness, with great delicacy of phrasing and clearness of style.

Miss Dalton was unavoidably absent, to the sincere regret of those who heard her play the Rondo in the studio a month ago.

The very modern group played by Miss Dalton was given with much dash and pianity. The violin concerto, played by a boy of fourteen, who has studied but two years, showed Mr. Howard to be as good a teacher as he is a charming player. His breath and quality of tone and neatness of bowing were a genuine surprise.

In short the results exhibited more than justify the expectations entertained by the friends of the new institution. It is to be heartily congratulated upon the success of its first public appearance, and Newton is to be congratulated in its turn upon having such an institution in its possession.

Epworth League Conference.
The third international conference of the Epworth League, which is to be held in Toronto, Can., July 15, promises to be one of the largest gatherings in the history of the organization. The New England committee of transportation, after giving careful consideration to the advantages of selected routes, has just announced the selection of the Central Vermont line through the Green Mountains as the official one from Boston and the low round-trip rate of $12.50. The arrangements provide for transportation via Montreal, both ways, and as stop-over and time-extension privileges returning will be granted opportunity afforded for many desirable excursions from Montreal, or for a few weeks stay at some of the charming resorts in Vermont or on the islands and shores of picturesque Lake Champlain.
Going, a special train will leave the union station, Boston, July 14 at 11.30 a. m. and arrive in Toronto the following morning at 7.15.

High School Notes.
The last lecture in the series by E. Carlton Black will be given on Friday evening, June 4, at the Clafin grammar school, Newtonville. Subject: Sir Walter Scott.
Mr. Black will read selections from Scott's Poems and "Wandering Willie's Tale" from "Red Gauntlet." Admission 35 cts.
Funds used in furnishing the High School Library. Lecture begins at 8 o'clock.

There is universal sorrow among the teachers and pupils of the Newton High school that Mr. Goodwin is to leave us.
He has held the position of Principal for many years, and has gained the highest regard and confidence of parents and scholars. Every pupil felt that Mr. Goodwin was interested in him personally, and it is safe to say that all will mourn his departure. He has been deeply interested in all the advancement of the school, both moral and physical, and his position as a man and as a teacher will be hard to fill.

A lecture on Sir Walter Scott with readings of selections from his poems and "Wandering Willie's Tale" from "Red Gauntlet," will be given by E. Carlton Black in the High School drill hall, this evening, at 8 o'clock. Admission pupils, 25 cents; others, 35 cents. Funds to be voted to furnishing the High School library.

NEWTONVILLE ROBBERS.

TWO YOUNG LADS IMPLICATED IN MANY BREAKS—PLUNDER CONSISTED OF TOOLS, LEAD PIPE AND ELECTRICAL APPARATUS.

John E. Danforth, 14, and Harold Cooke, 14, of Newtonville, are charged with breaking and entering and larceny from buildings in more than 20 cases, and in addition the Cooke boy is charged with receiving stolen goods.

Several weeks ago a tool-chest in a vacant house at Newton Centre was broken open and a small quantity of tools stolen. Sergt.
Bartlett was watching the house Sunday evening, about 10.30, when two boys rode up on bicycles and effected an entrance.

They made for the tool-chest, and the sergeant captured one in the act of opening it. The other managed to reach his wheel and make his escape. The sergeant's capture proved to be young Danforth, whose parents are respectable people in Newton-ville.

Danforth was taken to station 4, where he was put through a rigid examination by Sergts. Bartlett and Fleustis. He finally stated that his companion was young Cooke, and that they had together stolen the tools two weeks earlier. He also confessed to entering the houses on Auburn-dale avenue, one on Commonwealth avenue, one on Washington street, Newtonville, the new high school building at Newtonville, an unfinished house at Beacon street, Brookline, and several other houses in Newton Centre. In most of them, he claimed, young Cooke was his accomplice.

Tools, electric batteries, wire taping, electric apparatus and lead pipe and fixtures were stolen. Most of the stuff was carried away in the daytime on the boys' bicycles. In the case of the Brookline break, however, young Danforth stated that a team was used and a wagon load of plunder carried away. The total value of the property is estimated at about $500, but the damage done to the houses entered by the careless removal of the wiring and piping will mount into the thousands.

Some of the stuff was disposed of by the boys, and a still larger part was recovered Monday morning.

The Cooke boy was questioned by Sergt.
Bartlett and acknowledged that he was concerned in some of the breaks. After he had been examined the sergeant and Inspector Fletcher searched the houses of the two boys, and hidden in the cellars and under the floors found more than 20 batteries, a dozen electric bells, thousands of feet of wire, and all sorts of electric apparatus, in value about $250.

The knowledge of the boys' offenses was a great shock to their parents. A number of other Newtonville boys, some of them belonging to the most prominent families in the village, are also said to be implicated in the matter.

Both boys have been held in $400 for trial by the grand jury.

NEWTON CLUB.

The first in the series of promenade concerts, which was given at the Newton club house Wednesday evening, proved to be one of the most successful social events of the early summer. More than 1000 members of the club and their guests from Boston, Brookline and Cambridge availed themselves of the hospitality of the club, and thronged the clubhouse and grounds during the hours of the concert.

The entire clubhouse was thrown open, and the broad verandas and the adjoining tennis courts were enclosed in canvas walls for a promenade. The huge tent was brilliant with hundreds of electric lights, whose rays fell softened through goblets of varied hues. Scattered about the verandas and grounds were scores of tabletotes, at which light refreshments were served during the evening. From 8 to 10 popular airs were discoursed by the band stationed in the large tent. The concert was given under the direction of the entertainment committee of the club, of which
Mr. W. F. Kimball is president.

This afternoon, on the Cedar street grounds, tent 4 will play tent 5 in the series of "Round Robin" games.

D. A. R.

The outing of the Lucy Jackson
Chapter of Newton, D. A. R., on June 2nd, was a very pleasurable occasion.

The party, personally conducted by the Chapter Regent, Miss Fanny B.
Allen, was conveyed to Dedham by means of wagoons and the ever present bicycle.

Many places of historic interest were visited, including the powder house, the Avery tree and the Fairbanks house, which in the shadow of the old trees that have sheltered it so long seemed to brood gently over the ground hallowed by its memory.

An interesting feature of the afternoon was a visit to the court house and to the historical museum, among the treasures of

AT BEACON HILL.

THE RUSH TO ADJOIN—ALL SORTS OF MATTERS GET THROUGH—STEAM ROADS DEFEAT BOYNTON'S BICYCLE ROAD—THE ELECTION LAWS—THE ONE MILL SCHOOL TAX—THE CHARLES RIVER PARK BILL PROGRESSES.

[Special Legislative Correspondence.]

Beacon Hill, June 2, 1897.

The general court is on the home stretch. Everybody is in a hurry. Morning sessions for both branches; short calendars, long debates; talk of two legislative days in one, and all that sort of thing; every effort bent to getting through this week, a thing which seems practically impossible. As those best fitted to judge remark, "if they hurry, they can get through by the last of next week." At this stage of the proceedings, almost anything may happen.

It happened yesterday, when the house with malice aforethought killed the patriotic proposition that there should be a celebration of the centennial launching of the frigate Constitution, on the ground that Senator Roe, the father of the resolve, had opposed recess committees this year. The senator could stand it, but the country at large will be likely to wonder what kind of stuff the Massachusetts house is made of.

It happened again, when the senate, without a single word of opposition or defence, killed the bill to provide for a bicycle road from Boston to Fall River. Of course one could not blame the senate for Harwood if they had made their minds up and were ready to vote, but somebody was very much to blame that they had not risen to defend the measure, or at least informed the public what were the reasons for the rejection of a bill which had passed the house unanimously. For years Moody Boynton has been knocking at the door of the legislature asking for a bill under which he could build a bicycle road and satisfy the public mind on the question of whether the system is practical or not. The writer has sat and listened to the debates year after year, and has been pretty well informed as to the motives which have actuated committees and members in the treatment of the enthusiastic inventor. He may therefore have a right to say that there has never yet been granted a bill which was not so plastered over with unkindly amendments as to be of no value whatever. It would almost seem that if the claims that the road is impractical and never will be built are correct, there would be no harm in the legislature granting a bill under which it might be built if it were practical. Another thing ought to be said. For years it has been claimed that Mr. Boynton criticised the legislature too much. This year he has been effusive in his words of praise, and very careful indeed not to say anything which could be construed as a reflection. It has also been claimed that his attitude has been that of a man who has become owners with him in his patents was such that nothing could be done. Some of these very men have said in my hearing this year, that if the general court would only grant a bill under which a road could be built, they would take care of the rest. Gen. Howard even journeyed to Boston to say it. Of course it is patent that these reasons are fallacious, and that the real reason for adverse action is that the steam as well as electric roads are afraid of Mr. Boynton's system.

It was a little amusing yesterday to find that the senate was in a committee which had replaced the cities and towns of Quincy, Milton, Hyde Park, Dedham, and Westwood in the bill in relation to the sewerage of the Charles and Neponset river valleys. The point was here: Mr. Gibbs of Brookline, after a study of the acts which created the two systems, found that while there was practically no protection of the Charles river valley users against extortionate claims for the use of the outfall from the city of Boston, the Neponset valley act, which was passed some years later, contained every safeguard which had been provided in the bill of Mr. Pickard of Newton. He therefore had the Neponset valley stricken out. The senate yesterday, representing this region, is a member, promptly put it back again. I found on investigation that they knew nothing of the matter except that the title said Neponset valley and the text nothing about it. Hence their action.

The senate yesterday enrobed the bill relative to the codification of the election laws, the title of which will of course be changed before enactment, as there is now nothing in the measure which refers in the remotest degree to codification. The wisdom of Senator Harwood, who is a member in charge of it, to attempt no amendments, but to permit that portion substituted by the senate, including only the laws recommended by the recess committee on Boston elections, to pass, was a member, to be engrossed, was shown when Senator Towle of Suffolk attempted to add a section. For a few minutes it looked as though nothing could save even this remnant of the committee's report. The motion was withdrawn, and now there only remains one duty, and that is to see what the house will do about it. It will be very surprising if it submits a report on the senate's action, after the time and discussion devoted to the codification. If it submits, it will be because it wants to be promulgated, and that is all there is to it.

Mr. Pickard's committee was more than triumphant in the engrossment of the Boston elevated bill by the lower branch in exactly the form it wished. All amendments put on during the passage of the measure through were of a perfecting nature, as was shown by the remark of Chairman Jones that as it left the house it was as absolutely perfect as a bill as ever been enacted. The provision for a 25-year franchise, instead of one for 30 years, had been added, this being the most important change. Today the senate devotes to a discussion of the bill, and if it accepts the verdict of the house the whole matter will be simplified. But it will be strange indeed if this is the case. Mr. Bailey of Middlesex has amendments he desires to put on, and doubtless Mr. Roberts of Suffolk and other senators will be in the same state of mind.

Another matter of interest to Newton comes up in the bill to tax one dollar on a thousand for the support of public schools. This "one mill tax" as it is called, has an interesting history. It was first advocated in 1881 by Secretary White of the state board of education. At that time Moses Kimball was chairman of the committee on finance, and Charles Endicott of Canton, now commissioner of corporations, was auditor. Mr. Kimball was very much against the measure, and in order to make peace, agreed, if the bill were dropped, to have a measure enacted which should provide that all the income of the school fund, which went to the support of schools in towns, should be used for the small towns. There has been the practice ever since. There is a very great question as to whether it is constitutional to tax one town for the support of schools in another, and if the practice had not been in vogue in regard to the school fund, it is doubtful if the one mill tax could ever have gained so many advocates.

To press the bill through to enactment, as it is likely to be pressed, will therefore not only make necessary a veto by the governor to prevent something else, but if the veto is not forthcoming will raise a question in regard to the constitutionality of the whole policy, so that it is very likely to result in adverse rulings, not only against the mill tax bill, but the practice now in vogue of paying so much of the school fund income over to the small towns. The result of it all will therefore very likely be that those places which have sought to improve Boston, Brookline, Newton and other places will have deprived the small towns of assistance they grievously need, and which they now have. There has never been a time in recent years when the state legislature has not been more than ready to increase the school fund and help these needy towns, but the legal interests of the places named are in the hands of some very eminent and able lawyers.

The park and boulevard bills are now on their way to enactment, having passed the house yesterday. They are less than half the size of the gipsy moth caterpillar, but they are said to be very destructive. The appropriation will be forthcoming, doubtless, for the lesson of the expensive omelette has not been forgotten.

The governor made rather a sensation by his letter in regard to lobbying by agents of the state board of lunacy and charity on which relation to separation of public institutions. Col. Haskell was of course not affected by the strictures, for he was in Europe during the discussion. Whatever the state board may say, it is not the case that some agents were about more or less, though I could not say I ever saw one lobbying. One of the most effective arguments in regard to the whole question was that the state board came up almost in a body and related the features of their work to the committee on public charities. I do not understand that the governor objected to this action. It certainly changed the attitude of the advocates of a change in the methods were ever after ready to say that these agents and the people who superintended their work must be retained.

The public docks are making progress toward enactment. It is remarkable how great is the interest of Newton men in this legislation. Not only Mr. Pickard of the committee considering the matter, and Senator Harwood and Mr. Hayward, but Mr. Leeson, who was on the dock commission, Hon. Alden Speare, who was its foremost advocate in the hearings, and the clerk of the harbor and land commissioners, have watched every step in the progress of the bills. The latter has for years been familiar with the work of reclaiming the South Boston flats, and has the statistics of the subject at his fingers' ends.

Commissioner Ward was among the prominent guests at the Bradford manuscript exercises, as a descendant of the honored Pilgrim governor.

Two Newton Railroad Hearings.

There were two hearings before the board of railroad commissioners in Boston, Tuesday morning, both of them on applications for an increase in capital stock.

The first was presented by the Boston & Newton Street Railway Company, asking for an additional $125,000 and the second by the Wellesley & Boston Street Railway Company, that wanted an increase from $40,000 to $100,000.

In the course of taking the evidence it was shown that the petitioners in the first case had not properly prepared their evidence, which brought out a mild rebuke from Chairman Sanford, who specified the following omissions: Nothing to show the actual measurements of the locations of the proposed extensions; absence of the books showing how much has been expended on the work so far as it has progressed; nothing to show the estimates of the cost of the plant in detail, and the absence of the certificates of location and their acceptance.

Chairman Sanford took occasion to say that neglect of the company to furnish these important documents would compel another hearing. He was also of the opinion that the special act passed in 1883, covering the building of the road in Newton, did not apply to the extensions to surrounding towns, and where these latter are to be built the general railroad law will apply. In this view of the case he called for an appraisal of the company's property, and also of the Wellesley & Boston company. The adjourned hearing was set down for June 22, at 10 a. m.

But I will say that for three years we have never been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, and my wife would as soon think of being without flour as a bottle of this summer remedy. We have used it with all three of our children and it has never failed to cure—not simply stop pain, but cure absolutely. It is all right, and anyone who tries it will find it so." For sale by E. F. The Misses Spear, Newton,	10.00
Total,	$55.00

Most of the money received has come from persons already contributing largely, both in time and money, to the work of the Associated Charities. Other sums have been promised and the Garden Society is grateful for the ready response to its appeal. Citizens are reminded that the two months are approaching when the relief societies and other committees have disbanded and their members are away for the summer. The summer season is especially hard upon widows who depend upon their husbands in private families to support their families.

A Correction.

To the Editor of the Graphic:—

In the report in your last issue of the meeting of the school board, I am, by implication, made to misrepresent Mr. Goodwin, who never mentioned the subject of "withholding knowledge from the board" to me at all. His remark which I quoted had reference to what had been said with regard to the inability of Newton to compete with New York.

NEWTON CLUB ATHLETIC MEET.

MILE RUN PROVES TO BE ONE OF THE BEST CONTESTS—TRACK IN FAIR CONDITION, CONSIDERING THE RAIN.

The second open meet of the athletic association of the Newton Club, which was held Monday afternoon on the Cedar street grounds at Newton Centre, brought out a good number of fast men in every event.

Notwithstanding the rain the track was good. The contests were all close.

The 880-yard run was won by R. C. Batchelder of the Nabun school, who has not been in training, in 2m. 1-5s.

The time in the finals of the 100 yards was rather slow, but in two of the trials heats 10-2-5s was done.

In the mile run the men kept well bunched, and winners were hard to pick. At the finish the last man followed the winner with an interval of only 6 yds.

The obstacle race, over nets, through barrels and over ladders, proved a successful feature, and took immensely with the spectators. E. H. Clarke disappointed his friends somewhat in the high jump, clearing only 5 ft. 3 in. The event was won by H. J. Kendall, a 2-3-4 in man, with an actual jump of 5 ft. 2 in. In the shot-put Hughes, the scratch man, did 39 ft. 11 in. The discus throwing brought out a large field and was won by N. W. Coe, N. and G. A. A., with an actual put of 100 ft. 5 in. The best throw was made by C. Le Moine, B. A. A. 107 ft. 2 in.

The games officials were: James E. Morse, referee; W. F. Carleton, J. L. Batchelder and J. F. Moakley judges of the finish; J. G. Lathrop, F. W. Wood, Allen Hubbard, timers; J. B. Macabee, George Warren and J. B. Connelly field judges; J. B. Moran and L. Paul, clerks of course; W. B. Claffin and William Knight, scorers; I. S. Clarke, starter; H. E. Cobb, E. T. Fearing, E. B. Bowen, F. H. Hovey, C. Dennison, A. D. Claffin and C. W. Morse, inspectors. The summary:

100-yard dash—First heat, won by H. L. Burdon, N. A. A.; William Scott, H. P. A. A., second. Time, 10 2-5s. Second heat, won by L. Warren, H. A. A.; W. D. Ticknor and G. N. Hersey, dead heat, second. Time 10 2-5s. Third heat, won by A. A. McDonald, E. B. A. A.; W. A. Hersey, second. Time 10 2-5s. Fourth heat, won by W. B. Royce, B. H. S. F. A. A.; Lincoln, C. Y. M. C. A., second. Time 10 2-5s. Heat for second men—Won by Wm. Scott. Time 10 1-5s. Final heat, won by W. B. Royce, Wm. Scott, second, H. L. Burdon third. Time 10 2-5s.

880-yard run—Won by R. C. Batchelder, W. S. A. A.; L. E. Conness, M. A. A., second; A. P. Wright, P. A. A., third. Time 2m. 1-5s.

400-yard run—Won by W. G. Clark, R. L. S. A. A.; G. L. Dow, C. H. and L. S. A., second; A. A. McDonald, E. B. A. A., third. Time 51s.

Mile run—Won by William Dyer, Cambridge; J. F. Downey, H. A. A., second; A. W. Foss, B. C., third.

Obstacle race—Won by W. J. Holland, E. B. A. A.; L. Warren, H. A. A., second. C. V. Moore, N. A. A., third.

Shot put—Won by C. S. Hughes, B. U. A. A.; 39 ft. 11 in.; W. D. Hennen, H. A. A., second, 39 ft. 10 in.; N. W. Coe, N. and G. A. A., third, 39 ft. 7-12 in.

Running high jump—Won by H. J. Kendall, W. A. A. A., 5 ft. 7-14 in.; J. J. Finbury, S. B. A. A., second, 5 ft. 4-14 in.; E. H. Clarke, B. A. A., third, 5 ft. 3 in.

Discus throwing—Won by N. W. Coe, N. and G. A. A., 120 ft. 5 in.; C. Le Moine, B. A. A., second, 113 ft. 2 in.; W. J. Holland, E. B. A. A., third, 112 ft. 1 in.

Mr. Goodwin's Fine Work In Newton.

To the Editor of the Graphic:—

I strongly suspect that the apparent want of appreciation of Mr. Goodwin's work in the high school and of the entire system inaugurated so successfully in Newton's public schools, has done much to influence his decision to leave. During the six years' connection of the writer with the public schools of Newton, not a year passed when an increase in salary elsewhere was not offered, yet, because of the kind consideration extended, he preferred to remain with the good people old and young to whom he had become much attached.

Why wait until Mr. Goodwin leaves, to express our high appreciation of him and the very superior work he has accomplished with and for us. Scores of men in Newton with no greater natural, and immensely less acquired abilities, receive a larger salary, for managing the finances of some banking, insurance or mercantile concern.

Ability to successfully conduct these is much more common than is the rare combination of talents required, in the present time, when to Latin, Greek and other branches is added the intricate, masterful, and most valuable work of character building and training our boys and girls to honorable and useful manhood and womanhood.

In all the above, in the writer's estimation, Mr. Goodwin has achieved rare success. He leaves us with the profound regret of our citizens. Wherever such a person may go their success is assured.

MEMORIAL DAY.

SOLDIERS GRAVES DECORATED BY CHARLES WARD POST—PARADE AND EXERCISES IN THE AFTERNOON—DRESS PARADE AND BANQUET AT NEWTON CENTRE—SPECIAL SERVICES ON MEMORIAL SUNDAY.

Newton commemorated the services of the dead heroes of the Civil War with fitting exercises on Memorial day. Notwithstanding the rain and general threatening weather, members of Charles Ward Post 62 G. A. R., turned out in large numbers and participated in the usual exercises. In the morning the graves of deceased comrades in the cemeteries at Newton Centre, Newton Highlands, Lower Falls, West Newton and Mt. Auburn were decorated by delegations under command of superior officers of the post.

At noon the post, associate members and members of Tent 2 Daughters of Veterans, lunched at G. A. R. hall, after which they proceeded to Newton, where the afternoon parade was formed. At 1 o'clock Chief Marshal Mayor Cobb entertained the members of his staff and the National Lancers at his residence on Bellevue street. The company then joined the procession. At 2 o'clock the line was formed on Vernon and Eldridge streets, and at 2:40 o'clock moved over the following route:

Vernon street, Centre street, Commonwealth avenue, Grafton street, Homer street, Walnut street to Newton cemetery. At the monument services were conducted by the post, Commander Henry D. Degen officiating. Dean Huntington offered prayer and patriotic selections were sung by scholars of the Bigelow school, under direction of Mr. H. C. Sawin. The graves were decorated by members of the Daughters of Veterans and the city government. From the cemetery the line marched through Walnut street, Beacon street, Centre street, Homer street to Newton Centre playground, where a dress parade was held. The different commands, with the exception of the G. A. R. post, formed in the field in dress parade under command of Adjutant Robert W. Daley, 2nd Lieutenant of Co. 5th Regt., M. V. M. The grand army members, Daughters of Veterans and invited guests occupied seats on the grand stand, and witnessed the ceremonies. The procession moved in the following order:

Platoon mounted police, City Marshal C. F. Richardson, commanding; Chief Marshal, Henry E. Cobb; chief of staff, Col. A. M. Ferris; adjutant general, Col. J. F. Kingsbury.

Aides—Chas. H. Edger, Edward W. Pope, Maj. Seth A. Rantlett, Eleazer Kempshall, Wallace H. Foss, Col. D. W. Farquhar, Dr. D. Waldo Stearns, P. A. Murray, Chas. E. Riley, John E. Bristol, C. A. Haskell, Chas. H. Russell, Wm. M. Ferris, Master Harold C. Daniels, Wm. F. Hawley, Maj. George W. Morse, James L. Richards, Lieut. H. B. Parker, W. S. Slocum, George M. Cranitch, Justin R. Mitchell, Chas. W. Ross, Henry F. Ross, E. P. Hatch, W. H. Lucas, Dr. E. Earl Hopkins, Lieut. Albert C. Warren, Capt. S. E. Howard, Lieut. Clifton Leatherbee, Lieut. Ralph Chase, W. B. H. Dowse, T. B. Fitzpatrick, Dr. H. P. Perkins, J. A. Potter, Chas. P. Hall, Edw. E. Hardy, Capt. Chas. W. Knapp, Peter A. McViear, John F. Heenan, Seward W. Jones, Clarence S. Luitwiler, Albert B. Putney, Henry A. Spear, Samuel Shaw, Arthur B. Harlow, Frank J. Hale, Chas. Cope land, Charles E. Kelsey, Arthur C. Walworth, Jr., A. D. Claffin, W. H. Cowdell, Col. E. H. Haskell, Asa C. Jewett, Amory D. Wainwright.

National Lancers—Capt. Oscar A. Jones, commanding; 1st platoon, Capt. H. C. Sawin, commanding; 2nd platoon, Capt. E. R. Springer, commanding; 3rd platoon, Chas. Ward Post 62, G. A. R., Commander Henry D. Degen.

Associate members Charles Ward Post, A. E. Cunningham tent, 2, Daughters of Veterans, Miss Nellie M. Osborne, president.

Florets containing Bigelow school chorus, in charge of H. C. Sawin, principal. High school battalion, 200 men. High school band, Sergt. H. B. Owens, leader.

Signal corps, Lieut. F. C. Freeman. Co. A, Capt. Joseph D. Howard. Co. B, Capt. John B. Davis. Co. C, Capt. Harold C. Paine. Co. D, Capt. Howard Hackett.

Artillery detachment, Lieut. W. B. Hatch. City government in carriages.

Platoon of police, Sergt. T. C. Clay commanding, 8 men.

ALONG THE LINE OF MARCH

many private residences were decorated in response to the request of Mayor Cobb. During the parade minute guns were fired on Farlow park, and the fire alarm bell was tolled.

At the conclusion of the dress parade the chief marshal and staff, the post, associate members, Daughters of Veterans, National Lancers, Co. C and the police escort enjoyed a banquet in Associates hall, Newton Centre. Appropriate remarks were made by Mayor Cobb, Commander H. D. Degen, Rev. Theodore J. Holmes of Hopkinton, Col. J. F. Kingsbury, Rep. Pickard, Hon. G. D. Gilman and others. The Post was presented with a flag.

The parade was one of the largest Newton has ever seen and the muddy condition of the streets did not prevent hundreds of citizens from turning out to view the procession and the exercises at the monument. The several commands made a splendid appearance. The Lancers with their scarlet coats and splendidly mounted, made a showing unequalled in the city for many years, and were applauded all along the line. Co. C was seen at its best and with full ranks. The post, though fewer in number, showed no lack of the military discipline of "old" Newton. The high school cadets were fully up to the high standard of the organization in previous years. The soldierly bearing and military precision of the Lancers secured universal commendation. The high school band covered itself with glory, each selection being played in a manner worthy of professionals. The band has improved considerably within the past year, and the efforts of the young musicians are not unappreciated by the citizens. This was clearly shown by the cordial reception the band received on the march. Mr. John M. Floekton of the Waltham Watch Factory Band is the leader. The mounted bluecoats, under command of Chief Richardson, did good service to the head of the line, and Sergt. Clay's squad of patrolmen brought up the rear in excellent shape.

MEMORIAL SERVICES SUNDAY.

Special services appropriate to Memorial Day were held in a number of churches throughout the city Sunday. In the morning Charles Ward Post 62 attended services at the Universalist church in Newtonville. Rev. Charles S. Nickerson preached a patriotic sermon. In the evening the command attended services at the Brighton Congregational church, where Rev. A. A. Berle delivered an address on "The American Volunteer."

At the services in the Methodist church, Newtonville, at 7:30 p. m., Odd Fellows from the various lodges of the city were present. The Rev. Franklin Hamilton, pastor of the church, delivered an address. In the evening Co. C, 5th Regiment, M. V. M., attended services in the Congregational church, Auburndale. An address by Col. Thomas of Boston was an interesting feature.

In the rooms of the Newton Y. M. C. A., at 6 o'clock, the Hon. Gorham D. Gilman delivered an address, and appropriate music was rendered. The Buelah Baptist Mission on Bridge street, Nonantum, held memorial services in the afternoon. Ex-Councilman C. S. Ober spoke.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La. Cyene, Kas., "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation, and those of others I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market." The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by E. E. Partridge, Newtonville; Lacroix & Genest, Nonantum; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

Lasell Notes.

Senior vacation began on Saturday, May 29th. Mr. W. T. Shepherd, who has many friends at Lasell, where he was employed some years back, addressed the school on the subject of war, on Saturday afternoon, the nearness of Memorial Day making the topic an especially appropriate one.

On Sunday morning a small party attended the Eliot church services in Newton, and in the evening about forty heard Col. Thomas, Boston's new postmaster, deliver a stirring patriotic address in the Congregational church of Auburndale. The church was beautifully draped with flags and bunting of the national colors, and a large audience gathered to listen to the speaker of the evening, among these being a body of veterans of the U. S. A., and the Claffin Guards.

Among the most valued social pleasures of commencement week at Lasell are the suppers given in honor of the senior class by the two clubs of the school, the Lasellia and the S. D. Society. The Lasellia supper came off on Wednesday evening, when the club entertained very pleasantly a graduating class; a number of the old members returned to be present at commencement, and their honorary members. Miss Eva Cole, the club president, gave a graceful speech of welcome to the guests of the evening. Miss Flora Ketcham played the part of toast-mistress, and various toasts were proposed and responded to, the senior class being chief among these. The dining room was decorated with charming taste. Prettily designed menus were at each plate, and toothsome viands were daintily served. An informal reception in the parlors preceded the banquet, and an orchestra was in attendance.

The S. D. supper was given on Friday night, they, too, numbering among their guests several old members here for commencement, and of course the class of '97. The decorations of the hall were in lavender and green. A preliminary reception in the parlors first, then the supper. Miss Goll was toast-mistress on the occasion. The entertainment was a delightful one, and much enjoyed by all present.

On Thursday evening was held the pupils' commencement concert. This was fully up to the high standard of the musical entertainments usually given at Lasell, a gratifying success.

Col. Homer B. Sprague will lecture to the school on Saturday evening, the subject, "Milton's Paradise." Friends are welcome.

The annual prize drill of the Lasell Battalion was omitted this year, as a mark of respect and sympathy for the drill-master, Maj. Geo. H. Benyon, whose brother has recently died.

Eastern Division Canoe Meet.

The annual meet of the Eastern Division of the American Canoe Association was held at Lawrence on the Merrimack, May 29, 30, and 31st. The meet was largely attended by local canoeists and the Wabewawas of this city again demonstrated the fact that they fully understand the art of paddling. The races were close from start to finish being hotly contested by representatives of the Wabewawa Canoe Association and the Lawrence Canoe Club. The Newton boys captured first place in the tandem single blade event, Messrs. C. B. Ashenden and Edw. Lawrence, Jr., winning by two lengths. James H. Low won the single race, giving an elegant exhibition of paddling and another first prize to the Wabewawas.

The war canoe race also went to the Wabewawas but the Lawrence men won the Club four after the grandest struggle of the day.

The meet was a great success in every respect notwithstanding the inclement weather of Monday.

The annual meeting of the Division, which comprises all the New England states, was held at Camp on the 31st, and Louis S. Drake, the captain of the Wabewawas was elected to the senior position, that of vice commodore. R. H. Hammond of Worcester was elected rear commodore, and Francis J. Burrage of the Wabewawas was re-elected purser.

The following Newton men were seen in camp: Louis S. Drake, Francis J. Burrage, Harry C. Wiggin, Louis A. Hall, Charles H. Ashenden, Allen W. McAdams, H. S. Bosson, Edward Lawrence, Jr., James H. Low, A. T. S. Clay, Harry L. Bixby, William V. Forsyth, E. T. Brigham, Charles W. Criss, W. W. Criss, and many other members of the Wabewawas.

THE TOWNS OF CRETE.

Candia, Retimo and Khania Are the Only Ones Worthy the Name.

A writer in the St. Petersburg Viedomosti gives the following account of the towns of Crete, Candia, Retimo, Khania, are the "Crete of the hundred towns," the only three cities existing, and in using the word city every attention must be understood. Candia, situated at the mouth of a little river, the Geofiro, was built in the ninth century by the Saracens on the site of Heraklion, one of the ports of Cnosus. The distance between Cnosus and Candia is under an hour's walking, and in antiquity the two places were connected by walls, which recalled those between Piræus and Athens. In the time of Venetian sovereignty Candia enjoyed great prosperity.

Today its aspect is essentially Turkish on account of its houses, its mosques, its minarets and its bazaars, in which are exposed all the products of the east. It is surrounded by a bastioned wall, almost triangular in shape. Within there is another wall separating the old town from the new, the latter being nearer the river. The fortifications date from the Venetians. But war and earthquakes have left little or nothing of the city's ancient splendor. Tourist has called it only the carcass of a city. Its chief monuments are the remains of the Church of St. Francis and the old Latin Cathedral of St. Titus. Its population is between 13,000 and 14,000, mostly Mussulmans. The port is protected by two moles, but the sand has been allowed to slip up so much that only very small vessels can enter. Its chief trade is with Tripoli, which takes from it raisins and oil in return for soap.

Khania comes next to Candia, with a population of 11,000, equally divided between Christians and Mohammedans. Khania is the ancient Cydonia. The modern town dates from 1252 and is the principal port of the island, the commercial capital and the residence of the foreign consuls. Not far from Khania is the admirable anchorage of Suda bay. Retimo, the third town, is 55 miles southwest of Candia. Its population is not above 3,000.

SECRET DRAWERS IN USE.

Call For Them Before Failures—Vanderbilt's Underground Exit.

It is not alone in stories that secret drawers, hiding places in furniture and private passages underneath houses are to be found nowadays. They are to be found also in modern New York. According to a cabinet maker, orders are frequently received by him for pieces of furniture made with hidden receptacles. He keeps one designer, in fact, whose special work consists in contriving false bottoms and secret drawers for desks, chairs and tables.

"Rich women," he declared recently, "are the most frequent customers for this sort of work, and I have no doubt that it is because they cannot trust their servants, or that, if honest, the servants seem too curious about their mistresses' affairs." Interesting coincidences have come to his notice of the sudden failure in business of the husband of some woman who had just received from his shop an ingenious cabinet. The cabinet maker has no doubt that valuable securities were hidden therein from the creditors.

An odd thing, too, in the furniture trade is the fact that most of the "old English oak" secret drawers are made of manufactured in Grand Rapids.

As for the underground passages, there are more of them in New York than in a medieval town. They are not all secret, but under up town mansions built within ten years there are some which only the owner and the builder know of. Under the Vanderbilt chateau at the plaza there is one which runs from a point beneath a rear room out to the edge of the street, where the exit is concealed by a slab which looks like a part of the pavement. In case of robbery or any other danger within the house escape could be made through this passage to the street, where alarm could be sounded. Guards at the doors would thus be caught at their posts, not knowing that any one within the house had passed out of it.—New York Press.

Watering Carlyle.

A lady was one day approaching the modest home of the Carlyles in Cheyne Walk, says Harper's Bazar. Poor, long suffering Jeanie Welsh Carlyle, up in the balcony, looked down at her. "Oh, do," she called out, "come in! Mary Ann and I are so tired of watering Carlyle!" The lady entered and was escorted to the little garden at the back of the house. There it was a hot day, and the great man, in a pool of water. For hours the devoted women had been taking turns in deluging the flagstones around him by means of a large watering pot. He was very particular that not a drop should touch his sacred person, which no doubt doubled the difficulty of the operation. The same authority relates that Mrs. Carlyle had a dog which she loved. But it would not be with dirty feet, and the splenic philosopher objected. No one was willing to wash the creature, yet he had to be cleaned somehow. Finally there was an arrangement made with a local laundress, and she washed him every week, sending him home in a basket with the clean clothes.

His Dream Realized.

At last he held the beautiful hand that he had so often seen in his dreams; the hand which only an hour ago he thought would never be his; the hand, all covered with diamonds, dazzling in their number and brilliancy, which had always seemed far beyond his reach. Small wonder is it that his cheek flushed and a thrill of delicious excitement ran through him. With only the greatest effort he was able to restrain his expressions of delight. He knew that such restraint was necessary, that, in fact, it would be wise even to look bored, so he brought to bear on his emotions all the power of his will, and, looking up from the lovely hand, he gave a fair imitation of a yawn, and placing two chips on the table said, "Yes, I guess I'll come in, just to keep things going."

And when he had raked in the biggest pot of the evening he exhibited the beautiful hand to his friends. It consisted of a straight flush of diamonds.—New York Journal.

A Disagreeable Consequence.

"You say you have to visit your rich relatives. Why? Don't they treat you well?"

"Oh, yes, they always do everything they can to make it pleasant for us, but my wife never gets through complaining until about two weeks after each visit because we are not as well off as they."—Cleveland Leader.

Desperate.

Dr. Emder: "You're no better today. Perhaps you had better send for your wife. Patient—You are always for such extreme measures, doctor.—Brooklyn Life.

WOMEN! DON'T WAIT.

If You Have Any of These Symptoms Act at Once.

Do you know the reason why you will go to the hospital, my poor friend?

Because you have allowed yourself to go from bad to worse. You did not know that that heat, swelling and tenderness in your left side were all signs of congestion of the ovary.

Any intelligent woman could have told you that congestion is fatal to the uterine system, and that an ovary congested leads to tumor formation, and that you were in awful danger. Now you will have to undergo the operation of ovariectomy, the cutting out of the ovary.

Yes, you will recover, at least I hope you will; but you will never be quite the same woman again. Congestion of the ovaries is fatal to health. If you have any such symptoms be advised in time; take a medicine of specific powers! You can find none better than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared especially to meet the needs of woman's sexual system. You can get it at any good druggist's.

Following we publish a letter from a woman in Milwaukee, which relates how she was cured of ovarian trouble: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I suffered with congestion of the ovaries and inflammation of the womb. I had been troubled with suppressed and painful menstruation from a girl. The doctors told me the ovaries would have to be removed. I took treatment two years to escape an operation, but still remained in miserable health in both body and mind, expecting to part with my reason each coming month. After using one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash I was very much relieved. I continued to use your remedies until cured. The last nine months have been passed in perfect good health. This, I know, I owe entirely to the Vegetable Compound. My gratitude is great, indeed, to the one to whom so many women owe their health and happiness."—Mrs. F. M. KNAPP, 563 Wentworth Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

OUR DESPOTIC RULERS.

The Forum for June has a very suggestive article on "A New Form of Government," which will give thoughtful people a good deal to ponder over. We denounce the despots of the old world, but it would be difficult to find a case of more despotic rule than that of Platt in New York, Quay in Pennsylvania, Gorman in Maryland, or Cox in Ohio, not to mention others. Mr. Platt wished the bill for greater New York passed, and his obedient legislature "jams" it through; he wishes to be elected senator, and although not a word was said in commendation of him, he is elected.

The legislature represents Mr. Platt and not the people, and even the Czar of Russia has not greater power. Mr. Bishop asks upon what does this great power rest, but there is no mystery about it. The power rests upon money, raised as campaign contributions from both individuals and corporations. "It is admitted by Mr. Platt's friends that he raises money in this way, and takes 'contribution' in return for legislative protection and other favors to come." The ultimate result is that the people have got to pay for these favors, in the misuse of their public offices, in extravagant legislation, and oppressive taxation.

Mr. Havemeyer of the sugar trust testifies that the trust makes campaign contributions each year. Another corporation is known to pay $50,000 a year, and in this way the bosses are able to dictate in politics, and in order to keep up such contributions they "take care of their friends." They do this in state legislatures, and in Congress, as is shown by the latest tariff bill, where the sugar schedule is a scandal. The people of course have to pay the bills, and although the scandal is notorious, yet as the bosses are necessary to party success, good men stand by these corrupt bargains. Mr. Bishop says the only way is for all honest men to get together, and work to get honest government. But the trouble is that men who are thoroughly honest in every other detail of life, are not shocked at dishonesty in politics, if only "our side" profits by it. They are too disposed to think it is a choice of evils, and so prefer their own rascals to those of the other party. Judging from the sugar trust revelations, it makes but little difference which brand of rascals are in power, the trusts are still taken care of, and the honest men in all the parties are beginning to realize this. Mr. Bishop says "when the burden becomes intolerable, there will be an uprising of the people in their might and majesty" and the bosses, together with their system, will be swept away. When this upheaval will come, no man can say; but one would think that it must be at hand.

THE BOSTON HERALD calls attention to the enormous price Boston has just had to pay for some land on Columbus avenue, and says that that illustrates the great objection to municipal control of public works. A city has always to pay much more than a private corporation, for land or labor, or for anything else, and consequently municipal enterprises can never be economically conducted. We had the same experience here in the widening of Washington street, where the city had to pay much more than the railroad would have paid for the same lots of land, and a jury is generally inclined to look favorably on the claims of private citizens, as against a city. The stories of the success of municipal street railways which come from cities in the old country may be all true, but for this and for other reasons peculiar to this country, it is doubtful if they would be successful here. The other reasons may be found in the presence of such men in high official positions as Governor Black of New York, who look upon public office as a private snap, and for the rewarding of all their heeler, and who seem to think that all public enterprises are mainly for the reward of the victors in politics, and for the public benefit only incidentally. This same spirit is also seen in the present Congress, where such a bitter fight is being waged against the civil service reform rules, and where all the public offices have been turned over to the senators and representatives, to enable them to pose as party bosses. If the spoils system could ever be got rid of, there might be some hope of carrying on public enterprises successfully, and in this way relieving the people of some of the burden of taxes they have to pay on watered capital in their street railways, gas and electric companies, and other corporations which serve the public and at the same time get all they can out of the public purse. A corporation that is only willing to pay taxes on a small sum, will ask about twenty times that sum if there is any talk of a city taking possession of it, and the chief value of its stock is the franchise which has been given it free of cost by some legislature or city government. Of course the people have the remedy in their own hands, and they may some day decide to use it and drive all these spoilsmen, whether public officials or corporations, out of power. The time will come when citizens will realize that they are being taxed for all the free franchises that are granted, and will see that if they were properly paid for, it would not be necessary to raise a dollar by direct taxation, and the money that now goes into the pockets of the lucky stockholders, would either remain in the pockets of the citizens or go into the municipal treasury, and so make taxes unnecessary.

A WHEELMAN, who took a trip through the western part of the state came home with the resolve never to kick again at the condition of any road in Newton. Even Washington street at its worst is fine riding, he says, compared with what he found. One amusing instance of the folly of the scheme to build a mile or two of state road, as an object lesson to the country people, is related in regard to a state road near Northampton. The road was built at great expense about two years ago, with a covering of fine crushed stone, but when some repairs were needed this spring the farmers dumped sand from the roadside over the crushed stone, which shows how much of a benefit the object lesson was to them. This seems to confirm the statement of some observers, that the large part of the state road expenditure was money thrown away, and that the proper way would have been to have built one continuous road, and then put it under state control, so that men of some knowledge of road building might have charge of the work of keeping it in order.

JUDGE BRADLEY will go down to history as the Sugar Trust Judge, for even good lawyers were surprised at his curious decisions, which seemed to lean so decidedly towards the men who were guilty of abusing the power of great wealth. Like the famous income tax decision, Judge Bradley's decision will probably hold a large place in the next national campaign. Broadly stated, his decision is that it is none of the Senate's business, if the Sugar Trust does buy up Senators and purchase favorable legislation by immense campaign contributions to both parties, in order to plunder the people, and that all efforts to lay bare the scandal and that all efforts to pry into the private affairs of the trust. But how long will the people stand such scandals in their national congress is the question? Similar scandals in France were followed by a Revolution, and history teaches us that reaction is violent in proportion to the scandals.

The West End street railway corporation, according to its paid attorneys and the friendly Boston dailies, is so poor that it cannot afford free transfers, but according to the United States Investor, last year the earnings were so large that it was decided to charge $1,000,000 to operating expenses, rather than have that amount appear among the net receipts. Our legislators are so friendly that they will probably defeat free transfers, and the folly of giving away the franchises to street railways appears when one estimates how much the West End could afford to pay for the use of the public streets and still pay a high dividend on its actual capital. The legislature also seems more than willing to grant a practically free monopoly to the Elevated Railway scheme, though this is covered up by all sorts of plausible arguments by interested parties and speakers.

SOME very clever work was done in regard to free delivery at the Watertown postoffice. The town has about 7,000 inhabitants and will have four carriers, and the first intention of course was to add it to the Newton postal system, as most of Watertown is within a mile of the Newton postoffice. But as that might have led to a re-opening of the Newton postoffice question, the authorities hastily decided to make Watertown an independent office, with a regular postmaster, and the politicians who fixed up our postal arrangements could again sleep in peace. Thus we have Watertown with 7,000 people and four carriers having an independent office and postmaster, Newton with 11,000 people and seven carriers a branch of the main office at Newton Centre, which village has about 2,000 people to benefit by free delivery. There are lots of funny things in the world.

It is reported that the plan to widen Washington street at Lower Falls is to take 25 feet on one side of the street, and discontinue 12 feet on the other side to the abutment, for the purpose of straightening the street. This would only be a widening of 13 feet, and it is paying out a great deal of money to get a very small benefit. Besides, the city is in no condition to expend money for any scheme not absolutely necessary, which reason alone is sufficient to dispose of the whole project.

It is reported that President Davis of the Common Council has announced that he is a candidate for the mayoralty. It is a little early for much interest in city politics, but indications point to a rather lively time this fall.

REAL ESTATE.

Nathan Crocker has sold for the heirs of Charles Robinson a building lot of 12,504 square feet on Fairfax street to H. W. French of Natick on private terms. The lot will be improved later.

—Mrs. Hubbard and family of Weston are at Manchester-by-the-Sea.

—Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dwight of Mt. Vernon street, Boston, are at Weston for a part of the summer.

—A large float is being constructed in front of Augustus Neufeld's cafe on the Charles at Riverside.

—Mr. L. P. Ober and family of Boston have removed to Auburndale, and opened their estate at Islington.

—Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Butler have returned from their southern trip to their home on Woodland road.

—Last Friday evening, Auburndale lodge A. O. U. W. visited Waltham lodge of the same organization, in a body.

—Mr. J. Frank Dubois and family of Lynn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Thorne of Auburndale avenue.

—Mr. J. Q. Adams and family of Boston have returned to this place and are occupying their residence on Grove street.

—The next promenade concert given under the auspices of the Newton Boat Club will take place tomorrow evening.

—Miss Anna P. Brooks graduated from the college of liberal arts at the Boston University, Wednesday, with the degree of A. B.

—Mr. Bates has purchased the house at the corner of Prairie and Auburndale streets, which he will occupy with his family.

—Rev. G. M. Adams, who met with an accident while wheeling some weeks ago, is reported as slowly recovering from his injuries.

—Mr. William Cornelius has removed to Charlestown, Mass., where he will have charge of the steam shovel on the Boston & Albany.

—The first number of a church paper published by the Congregational church has appeared this week. It is called "The Greeting."

—The well-known actor, Mr. William H. Crane, has been in town this week, the son of his sisters, the Misses Crane of Maple street.

—Mr. H. T. Tarbox of Newell road has entered his trotting horse "Captain" in the 40 class colt races to be held in Saugus, some time this month.

—Col. Homer B. Sprague will lecture at Lasell Seminary on Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, on the subject of "Paradise Lost." Friends are welcome.

—The well known sorrel pacer, owned by C. G. Tinkham has been brought back from the Combination Park track, where it made a fine showing in the races.

—The work of placing the sewer in Charles street has been the cause of a great deal of inconvenience to those driving or wheeling to the boat house this week.

—Mr. Charles Drake, local consul of the L. A. W., accompanied by Mr. Arthur Richards, Mr. Charles Pickard, and Mr. Myron L. Wheeler, to Portland, Me., Saturday night.

—The extension of the Commonwealth Avenue street railway tracks from Auburn street over the boulevard to Riverside is completed, and cars will be running on regular trips. The street has been put in excellent condition by the highway department, and this part of the boulevard will prove a popular drive.

—A correspondent writes that while several young men were sitting quietly on the banks of the river in Norumbega Park, last Sunday, they were driven off by a policeman, and that one of them, a mere boy, was struck by the official. He says the effect produced on the spectators was a very faithful one, as the young men seemed to be innocent of any offense.

—Co. C, 5th regt., M. V. M., under command of Capt. Springer attended special services at the Congregational church last Sunday evening. Besides the regular services there were present a large number of church members, and several comrades from Charles Ward Post 62, G. A. R. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Southgate, assisted by Rev. Mr. Talmage. Co. Thomas, postmaster at Boston, delivered an interesting address.

—The first of the promenade concerts was given at the Newton Boat club house last Saturday evening. The exterior of the club house was illuminated by elaborate decorations of Japanese lanterns, and quantities of red fire burned on the boat. The river near the club house, was completely filled with canoes. Besides these, over 400 wheelmen and pedestrians were gathered on the new bridge, and listened to the excellent concert by the Salem Cadet Band. In the club house dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 11.

—Commencement week at Lasell began yesterday with the concert in the evening at quarter of eight. The baccalaureate sermon on Sunday will be preached by the Rev. C. M. Southgate of this place; on Monday the class day exercises take place in the evening; on Tuesday evening comes the principal reception for the seniors; on Wednesday morning the commencement exercises, with an address by the Rev. They were assisted by Mrs. C. W. H. Strongman, whose singing added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

—The Riverside Gun club, which is composed of a large number of prominent residents of this place and Boston, met for organization at the Quincey House, Boston, last Saturday evening. About forty members were present though the full membership list contains about 90. Among the gentlemen from this place who were elected to the position of officers were Dr. C. G. Milham, and Messrs. W. C. Hubbard, J. R. Robertson and E. W. Denson. The club proposes to erect a clubhouse on Mr. Hubbard's land at Weston on a site near his athletic grounds.

C. E. Conference.

An interesting conference of the missionary committees of the Newton C. E. Union occurred at the Congregational church at West Newton on Thursday evening, May 27. The meeting was called to order at 7.45 o'clock by Mr. Pike who read the Scriptures and offered prayer.

Secretary Kelley then called the roll, to which about three-fifths of the societies responded, indicating a marked degree of interest in mission work on the part of the members.

Every society represented has a mission committee, holds missionary meetings and makes contributions for the maintenance of missionaries, home and foreign.

Several five minute papers were given, the first being by Miss Strong of Auburndale. She emphasized the need of holding regularly missionary meetings, and specified how such meetings may be made interesting. Maps, pictures, cards, flags of countries studied, should be utilized.

The next paper was by Mrs. Orisonson of Newtonville who spoke of "Christian Culture." Three things are essential elements of it: An Impelling Motive, Personal Inspiration and Practical Knowledge. The latter comes through study of "Denominational Periodicals, Geography, Literature, Ethical Science and History of Civilization."

Mr. Noble of Newton Centre followed, his theme being "Raising Money." He affirmed that the novel methods resorted to for such purposes indicate a vital defect. Men need a new conviction concerning their duty to give. He said that it is as much the obligation of a Christian church member to give money for the church, as for him to keep an ordinary contract. The church member entered into a contract with high heaven, not to do what we know we ought to do.

The last speaker was Miss Harwood of Newton whose topic was as to the Disbursement of Money. Of course it should be given to the sick and needy. But "the field is the world" and the question is how best to do God's work as a whole. In view of the fact that all the missionary societies of the country are in debt because of diminished income, would it not be wise for the young people to put their funds into the hands of the experienced members of the mission boards and let it be distributed by them. Then Young People's Societies would be auxiliaries rather than competitors of the church boards.

An interesting session of open parliament followed led by Miss Leland of West Newton after which the meeting adjourned.

Newton Real Estate.

Newton is offering to home seekers and to investors in real estate a very attractive field these days. The central boulevard has not only opened up much fine land but has given the impetus to the development of the city as a whole, and improvements are being made on a large scale in all parts of the city. For prompt and accurate reports of all real estate movements, the public is accustomed to look to the Boston Herald and in its advertising columns may be found the most complete lists of real estate for sale and to let. If you are looking for a new house or a lot on which to build, you can save yourself time and trouble by reading the Herald's news and advertisements.

Mr. George Agry, Newton representative of the firm of Wiley S. and E. Edmonds, has sold the brick house, 48 Billings Park, belonging to Mrs. Blings, to Mrs. Chas. S. Ensing, and also Mrs. Ensing's house, 113 Galen street to Mrs. Billings. Mr. Agry has also sold the drug store of J. B. Willard, Watertown, to Walter A. Clafin of Cambridge.

A STRANGE MEETING.

By PERCY RUSSELL.

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

When we actually obtain that which we have most ardently longed for, it often happens that we find the possession rather more troublesome than was the want. This is the usual infirmity of human nature and will doubtless continue to be so.

Walter Cresacre More had longed for liberty and solitude, and now in his own New Zealand whare, or slab hut roofed only with bulrushes and lined inside—bird nest fashion—with the flower-stems of the toi-toi native grass, he certainly appeared to have both. He had longed for simplicity, too, and most decidedly he had that, yet he was by no means a contented man and he knew it.

He was, or thought himself to be, a strong man, too, for he was not descended from that famous Cresacre More of Barnborough, south Yorkshire, who being in the woods without his sword, which happened to be at the armorer's for repair, was attacked by an enormous wildcat and fought the beast for hours, gradually drawing near the parish church, in the porch of which the terrible duel ended in the death of both man and beast, as the dreadful stains in the flagstones long attested, while was there not a statue within of a man and lion couchant to commemorate the awful legend? Walter More had very pronounced ideas on the subject of ancestry, and he was proud of this strong and courageous progenitor of his who would yield his life only with that of his enemy, and then did he not sometimes imagine in his more morbid moments that in the past sundry passions fostered at his faraway English hearthstone, now a mere graveyard monument, had been as fierce and fell as the teeth and talons of the ferocious beasts whose slaughter cost his ancestor his very lifeblood?

It has been said with the usual extravagance of such sweeping apothegms that to live alone a man must be a beast or a fool, but Walter More was assuredly neither, although there were times when he felt thoroughly misanthropical, as was the case now on learning from a traveling prospector that a large clearing near his own location, which belonged to a rich absentee New Zealand colonist and had been much neglected, was to be again occupied by the owner and his family, who had already sent on, so his informant said, quite a train of drays and wagons with furniture and stores to prepare the place for his owner.

It was a wild part of the Middle Island. Rich alluvial lands, still in a state of nature, covered more or less with fine forests, extended to the foot of the southern Alps, where the tremendous gorges include some of the sublime scenery under the southern cross. Here Mount Cook soars up far into the regions of perpetual snow, and Lake Pukaki extends its silent waters to the foot of the frightful Tasman's glacier, and although in all directions allotments are now being rapidly taken up at this time the greater part of the country was entirely unoccupied. Coal and gold are known to abound in these regions, but the forests are great obstacles, as the trees are of the largest and grow close together, and thus the work of clearing is very difficult.

Walter More had put up his little house in a small natural glade. It was quite surrounded by trees, round and up which to the very top clustered the pudwanga, the New Zealand clematis, with its enormous white blossoms, and near his door More had planted some shepherd's lilies—a glorious flower is this, each stem of about a yard high bearing several score pure white golden-centered blossoms, while the korikori, that gigantic buttercup of the south seas, spread its gorgeous tapestry all about the open space around this veritable lodge in a vast wilderness.

Right against the one small window of the hut was reared the scarlet kowhai, which is peculiar to New Zealand and bears masses of blossoms of pure scarlet, shined like a great, broad bean, or a parrot's bill, and making the place where they grow all aglow with their intense brightness. Now and again there sounded the clear, bell-like notes of the moko-moko, that honey feeding bird who is said to be dying out ever since the introduction of the bee who lies in the blossom and stings the intruding tongue of this feathered honey eater!

Altogether More had quite a charming summer house externally, but internally his abode was rather rough. His bed place was only a boarded platform covered with blankets and a few pots and pans, an ax and a spade handled, steel headed spear for digging up kauri gum constituted most of the furniture. More was not a cultivator; he had found in and about his sylvan lodge large deposits of fossil kauri gum, and for this he had a ready sale at the port whither he went periodically loaded like a pack horse. With the price of his gum he bought tobacco and some necessities—he was a strange man in his method—and then spent the remainder in drinking and "treating" some of the wild characters found in every New Zealand port, and when the last sixpence was gone he would tramp back to his distant hut and meditate morosely for some days, forming resolutions to save and avoid future temptation. Then he would go into certain fastnesses of the pine forest, known, he believed, only to himself, and slave away digging up great lumps of the fine fossil kauri gum—which makes such good varnishes—and once more march down to the port, knowing all the while that he meant to throw away the greater part of his hard earned money and to repent thereof afterward.

It is terrible how powerful habit becomes. More had only himself to consult, for he permitted of no intimacy and kept every one at a distance, and when his own better sense suggested a more prudent course of life he would answer himself bitterly: "To what purpose? Why, it's not worth while!"

Few people not specially informed have any idea of the number of men who find in the Australasian colonies an asylum for mercantile difficulties and matrimonial troubles. More was a man over 40, and, although supposed to be single—an ordinary sample of the poor immigrant without capital—he had a history which may be briefly stated as follows:

Well born and educated, but orphaned in youth, he had gone into the office of a London wine merchant, and eventually embarking therein all his little capital worked up a business in the city, numbering among his supporters many clerks of the better type, and doing what is known as the single wine bottle trade. No man stuck more closely to business than young More. He was to a great extent his own cellar man, and he conducted his affairs on a basis of strict integrity, and gave really good value to all who patronized him. He determined, in a word, to make a fortune. After toiling a good many years, he found himself comfortably off, and a great longing seized him to have a home of his own and to leave his uncomfortable bachelor quarters where his landlady had sought to entangle him with each of her four girls as they successively attained marriageable ages.

But More had resolved to marry a lady, and one of his customers, a widow, who perceived and determined to profit by this weakness of More, for weakness it was in him, introduced him to one of his daughters. This young lady, Beatrice Lindenfield, seemed the very idea of his dreams. She was clever, exceedingly well read, possessed charming manners, was industrious to a fault, rose almost at daybreak to practice her music, and spent her days teaching her sisters, visiting the poor, acting as her father's thorough housekeeper, managing his accounts and letters, he said, better by far than he could himself, and was, in a word, a paragon of female virtue, while she possessed considerable personal attractions. She appeared, too, to be perfectly amiable and clever under every trying circumstance, seeing that her father was exacting and selfish and thought of himself first of all. Beatrice had no portion, for the family was as poor as it was old, and the pedigree of the Lindenfields was a tree of quite bewildering dimensions, and More, not seeing any particular reason for delay, wooed, won and married this matchless daughter and sister in the course of a month.

Thenceforth increasing misfortunes befell him. He was scarcely married ere his wife underwent an utter change. She had, she told her husband, been through a long domestic martyrdom, but meant to enjoy herself at last. It appeared that so long as she had her willful way her husband's happiness was a matter of no consequence. She insisted on the entire abandonment of that "low, common, single, bottle business in the city," and on the taking of splendid plate glass fronted banklike offices in the west end. She persuaded More to rent a mansion, set up a carriage, dine late, dress for that meal, a ceremony that revolted his soul, and began to live like a woman of fashion.

"You know you would marry a lady," was her reply to his remonstrances. It was vain, he pointed out, that every hundred spent then meant a thousand lost in the future. She laughed at him for a "crusty, rusty, old thing," and for a "space half compelled, half persuaded him to acquiesce in her ever increasing extravagance.

More was a man of much simplicity and of sound sense, and he did not like, as he said, beginning at the place where he meant to end, but his wife was a resolute, willful and beautiful woman, and he weakly yielded. Then troubles accumulated; his capital was quite consumed, and he proved unsuited for a west end business and made many bad debts. His cup of bitterness, however, quite ran over when, owing to her obstinacy in wearing a thin dress during a river excursion, while she was in delicate health, she caught a serious cold and was prematurely confined of a still-born son. Still this even did not apparently check her wild career. On the contrary, it rather increased her zeal for pleasure, to drown, as she admitted, thought and care. She was, as she affirmed, a faithful and fond wife, only she would not mope. Life was to be enjoyed, and what was the use of saving?

More, however, was of quite a different opinion. Misfortune had a bad effect, especially on his temper. It has been said:

A soul exasperated in ill falls out
With everything—its friend, itself.

And he carried his troubles into his business and soon made matters worse. Then came stormy scenes at home, and his wife began to lament that she had ever married a vulgar money grubber, one who, she declared, was in no sense a gentleman. This stung More, and he told her to go to her own fine friends, and for this he had a ready sale at the port whither he went periodically loaded like a pack horse. With the price of his gum he bought tobacco and some necessities—he was a strange man in his method—and then spent the remainder in drinking and "treating" some of the wild characters found in every New Zealand port, and when the last sixpence was gone he would tramp back to his distant hut and meditate morosely for some days, forming resolutions to save and avoid future temptation. Then he would go into certain fastnesses of the pine forest, known, he believed, only to himself, and slave away digging up great lumps of the fine fossil kauri gum—which makes such good varnishes—and once more march down to the port, knowing all the while that he meant to throw away the greater part of his hard earned money and to repent thereof afterward.

It is terrible how powerful habit becomes. More had only himself to consult, for he permitted of no intimacy and kept every one at a distance, and when his own better sense suggested a more prudent course of life he would answer himself bitterly: "To what purpose? Why, it's not worth while!"

The next day on returning to his house—it had long ceased to be his home—More found a letter from his wife saying that after his brutal conduct she had determined to leave him and that she had found a refuge with some of her own friends.

More was like a man distracted. He loved his wife at bottom, and already repented his late violence. He neglected his business and spent much money in tracing her out, and at length found that she had entered a rich family in Devonshire as a sort of companion and governess. Beatrice, on his appealing to her to return, flatly refused, and said that she should enjoy the liberty that his cruel, cowardly blow had given her. The rest is soon told. More found himself absolutely ruined, and, shrinking from the exposure of bankruptcy, left the wreckage to his creditors, took a steamer passage to New Zealand, and after sundry experiences went into the bush, squatted and, finding a rich deposit of fossil kauri gum that had escaped the regular bush digger, drifted into the aimless existence I have described, attended with fits of dissipation which revolted his soul on each occasion when he reached what he bitterly called his forest lair and soberly reviewed his position.

He was not, he now felt, capable of making a new start. He had failed in every sense wrecking his fortune and his happiness. He hated the old restraints of life, but then he was his own master. He had on several occasions had offers of partnership from one like himself, and proposals to "clear" and work up a "bush farm," but as he said cynically, to what purpose? He had neither wife nor child. He liked being alone, as there was then no one to reproach him or to remind him of what he had once been. He worked hard out of doors digging gum, smoked and slept much and periodically had his "fling" at the port. Yes, he thought, the rest of his life had been mapped out, and some day he would be found moldering in his decaying hut and furnish a paragraph to go the round of the colonial press.

But stoical as More had grown there was just now something to trouble him, and that was the advent of the owner of the neighboring property. He did not relish this at all. He dreaded the prying of the station hands, and perhaps they might come on his secret deposits of kauri gum. Then, when recently down at the port, one of his acquaintances had given him a friendly warning. "You know," he said, "those drunken rascals Tu Wiri Roa and Tangaroa. Well, we have hunted them out of the place at last—two rascally Maoris—a pest to everybody here, always quarreling and declaring what they would do if only they had the chance. Well, they say that they shall take to gum digging, and one fellow got 80 pounds in about six hours and cleared a pound. Take care they don't molest you, More. They're dangerous fellows, and in the bush they'll be ten times worse than they've been on the beach." Thus what with his annoyance at the advent of the absentee owner of the adjoining settlement, so long abandoned to desolation, and the bad news about those two rascals Tu Wiri Roa and Tangaroa, More was not in a pleasant frame of mind and more than ever longed to be "let alone," although as yet certainly no one had meddled with him.

Much more magnificent are the forests of New Zealand than those of Australia. Hill and valley and plain are often covered with dense timber, and here may be seen every conceivable tint of green, the karaka tree with its dark green, velvety leaves being contrasted with the yellowish foliage of the kowhai, while luxuriant glowing scarlet flowers cluster about the stately pohutukawa. No wonder that New Zealand is reckoned as still rich in her forests, seeing that even now there are probably 5,000,000 kauri trees in a healthy state.

More, provided with his spade and gum testing spear, was wending his way quietly through a labyrinth known, he imagined, only to himself to a place where the fossil gum was abundantly transparent, like amber, and easily obtained. The spear is used by the kauri gum digger to probe for the deposits which are found buried in the soil. He was thinking of many things of the past, and his thoughts were, as usual, bitter and cynical.

His neighbor had, he knew, arrived, and somehow he felt as though all his peace had gone. Yes, he would fly and put up a new whare. And then he felt aggrieved that even here his solitude was to be broken. He was indeed in a savage, morose mood, and strode on to his labor of digging up the gum with a savage moroseness which seemed to make him reckless.

Lately, too, he had fancied that piercing eyes and prying hands had been about his little lodge during his absence. Some of his flowers had certainly been gathered, and this puzzled him, as he did not believe either a Maori or a bushman was at all likely to go plucking posies in such a place, while, worst perhaps of all, a man had appeared before his hut only two days previously with a polite message from his rich neighbor asking him to pay him a visit. More sent the man off with a word or two like pistol shots and chafed all day to think that anybody should presume to patronize him and treat him like a beggar, as he phrased it, by tossing him a crust of conventional hospitality. In a word, he was nervous, suspicious, irritable and felt at war with himself, even more than with the world which had used him so ill.

C.—I suppose Brown and his wife attracted the attention that newly married couples usually do?

B.—Oh, no. Brown married a widow, you know, and to avoid being suspected of being on a honeymoon trip she took one of her children with them.—Pearson's Weekly.

She—Have you got your bicycle yet?
He—Oh, yes.
"I don't see you on the road as much this season as I did last."
"No, I'm on my wheel more now. I ride better, you know."—Yonkers Statesman.

"That wheel, judge," said the victim of the bicycle thief, "was the finest on the market." "Stop!" cried the judge. "I'll find you $10 for contempt. This court rides the finest wheel on the market."—Philadelphia American.

"I suppose you may say the honeymoon is at an end when the husband begins to stay out late at night?" "Not exactly. It doesn't really end until the wife can go to sleep again without believing what he has to say for himself."—Truth.

Scrofula Eruptions

Little Girl the Victim of Impure Blood—Suffered Intensely Until Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

"When three months old, my little daughter had eruptions on her face. I was obliged to keep her hands tied at night and it was necessary to watch her during the day. She would scratch herself whenever she had the chance, until her clothes would be covered with blood. We concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, because I had great faith in it, and after awhile, we could see that she was getting better. People often asked 'How did that child burn her face?' and they said she would certainly be left with scars, but she was not. It is now a year since she was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla and her face is as smooth and white and so's that of any child." MRS. WILBUR WELLS, Warren, Conn.

—Mrs. Margaret Barry of Bridge street is reported ill with pneumonia.

—Mrs. Alfred Pepler of California street sails soon for a trip to England.

—The Wildon family of Crescent street sailed last Saturday for England.

—The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting last Sunday evening was led by Benjamin Kurton.

—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cuthbert, formerly of California street, have removed to Lawrence.

—Dr. Stearns was an aid of Chief Marshal, Mayor Cobb, in the Memorial day parade Monday.

—The Newton cricket club will play the Albions, of Highlandville, on the home grounds, tomorrow.

—Rev. E. E. Davidson is expected home this month from New York, where he has been for several months.

—A cottage prayer meeting was held Wednesday at the home of Miss Jane Arnold of California street.

—The Junior Christian Endeavor society of the North Evangelical church, will hold its annual social June 10th.

—Last Sunday afternoon in St. Elmo hall, the Buehler Baptist mission held a memorial service; ex-Councilman Ober made a very interesting address on the Civil War and other important historical events.

—The Sunday school of the North Evangelical church will appropriately observe the 30th Sunday school anniversary June 13th. It is expected that all former superintendents of the Sunday school, now living, will be present to assist in the exercises.

—Next Sunday afternoon the second anniversary of the Buehler Baptist mission will be held at St. Elmo hall, on Bridge street. Mr. Stephen Moore will deliver an appropriate address. Miss Lizzie Griffin of Watertown, will read an original poem written especially for the occasion. Miss Clara Chapman, will read a selection "Welcome to Our Third Year." The reports of the officers will also be read. In addition there will be special music by the scholars.

—Residents of this place who are interested in the success of the Newton cricketers, would like to know just where the club is at? There seems to be a lack of something which nobody seems able to supply. Not a victory this year! Something to remedy this condition of affairs should certainly be done. It has been suggested that a reorganization would bring about this effect. It would be a good thing to try anyway. The loss of such men as Tupper, Davidson and Gardner, is indeed keenly felt.

—Mr. E. L. Frye of Bridge street has returned from a visit at Concord, New Hampshire.

—John Sullivan, formerly with C. O'Brien, has gone to work for Patrick Farrell, the blacksmith.

—Mrs. C. Bradley of Adams street has been at the Carney hospital, Boston, where she underwent an operation for the removal of cataracts.

—Rev. Mr. Nichols of Hamilton, Mass., preached here last Sunday morning and evening in exchange with Rev. Daniel Greene, pastor of the North Evangelical church.

—Owen J. Gaynor, who was found guilty of keeping a liquor nuisance in the police court some weeks ago and who appealed from the fine, was surrendered by his bondsmen this week.

—Mary Bedard the four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Bedard of California street, wandered from her home about 8 o'clock last Friday morning, and was reported as missing to the police. She was found in Waltham about 5 o'clock the same afternoon.

—Mr. Matthew Doherty of Clinton street, while driving with his wife on Crafts street near California street last Saturday afternoon, was thrown from the carriage and severely injured. Mrs. Doherty escaped with a severe shaking up. The horse continued running, and did not stop until it reached Newtonville square where it was stopped by Officer W. E. Fuller.

—A ten-year-old boy named Seavern was thrown from an electric car on the Bemis bridge about 2 o'clock last Saturday afternoon, and badly injured about the head. The boy was stealing a ride on the running board of an open car, and as the conductor moved towards him he jumped to the sidewalk. His head struck against a telephone pole, and he was thrown against a fence. He was picked up, and taken to his home where a physician attended him.

—The other day a local storekeeper was the victim of what might be called a joke, had it not been for the serious side of the affair. Somebody called at his store one day last week, and after making several purchases went out, leaving behind an apparently empty candy box. After they had gone the storekeeper opened the box, and was surprised to find it contained a live snake. He dropped the box, and hurried from the store in search of a policeman. One was soon found who quickly emptied the contents of his revolver into the squirming reptile.

Tired, Nervous, Sleepless
Men and women—how gratefully they write about Hood's Sarsaparilla. Once helpless and discouraged, having lost all faith in medicines, now in good health and able to do any work, they tell us that Sarsaparilla has power to enrich and purify the blood and make the weak strong—this is experience of a host of people.

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver medicine. Gentle, reliable, sure.

WABAN.

—Repairs on Windsor road are now complete.

—Mr. Geo. Hawkes is building an addition to his barn.

—R. B. Toff has severed his connection with Waban school.

—Mr. F. Raymond starts on a thousand mile ride in a few weeks.

—Try some of the new soda at the Waban Apothecary. Just splendid.

—Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Roscoe have returned home after a month's absence.

—Mr. J. E. Morse was referee at the Newton Club athletic games Monday.

—Mr. F. W. Webster returned Monday from a month's business trip to Canada.

—Mr. J. H. Robinson and family returned Tuesday from a two weeks visit at Cottage City.

—There are letters at the postoffice for J. T. Langford, Mrs. Edward Hayden and W. B. Fowle.

—Contractor Keating of Newton Highlands is laying out a street from Chestnut street to Fenwick road.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lott Mansfield have moved into their handsome new residence on Pine Ridge Road this week.

—Memorial Day exercises were held at the Memorial school last Friday. Mr. H. D. Degen of Newton Centre addressed the school.

—W. H. White, R. R. Dunston, E. F. Hewlett and R. C. Batchelder, all of Waban school, are entered in the interscholastic games at Cambridge, today.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Phelps and daughter, Miss Gertrude, leave today for Beach Bluff where they have a summer cottage and will spend the summer.

—At the second open meet of the Athletic Association of the Newton Club, Monday afternoon, R. C. Batchelder won the 880 yard run in the fast time of 2m., 15s.

—There was a change of time on the Boston & Albany May 30th. Only two changes here, 10:38 a.m. train formerly, now leaves at 10:36; and 5:38 p.m. train formerly, now leaves at 5:40.

The Boss and Campaign Contributions.

(Mr. J. B. Bishop in the June Forum.)

Upon what does the power of the bosses rest? How does it come about that the Legislature of New York regards itself as the representative of Mr. Platt rather than of the people. There is no longer any mystery about this. The power rests upon money, raised as "campaign contributions" from both individuals and corporations, but mainly from corporations. The system by which this is made to give one man control of the government, was originated by Richard Croker in 1893, when he was boss of Tammany Hall. When the Republicans supplanted the Democrats in power, Mr. Platt adopted Mr. Croker's system as his own, and extended it over the entire State. I will cite some of the most outspoken definitions of this system which have been made in the recent past, and which, though widely published, have never been contradicted. Mr. Wheeler H. Peckham, one of the ablest and most honored members of the New York bar, declared in a public speech, in March, 1894, that the payment of money to the boss by corporations, as the "price of peace," was general; naming one corporation which he said he knew paid $50,000 yearly, and adding that he had knowledge of a second which paid a similar amount. Mr. Henry O. Havemeyer, president of the sugar trust, testified before the Senate investigating committee at Washington, in June, 1894, that the trust made campaign contributions each year to New York political organizations, adding: "Every individual and corporation and firm—trust, or whatever you call it—does these things."

Newton A. A. SHUTS OUT DARTMOUTH.

A PRETTY EXHIBITION OF BALL PLAYING ON THE GROUNDS OF THE FORMER.

By far the prettiest ball game seen on the Newton A. A. grounds this year was played Saturday between the Dartmouth College and the Newton Club A. A. teams, the latter shutting out the visitors.

Newton's fielding was very clean, only two errors being made, one of which, by Draper, was excusable, he attempting to throw Drew out at second on a hard pitched ball from Dowd. Warren's work in right was fine, and Dowd was a puzzle to the visitors, W. Hodgkins being the only man who touched the ball for a clean hit.

Newton's batting was very freely, making 12 hits with a total of 16.

Many Dartmouth alumni were present, among them Mayor Cobb, who carried a large Dartmouth flag. The spectators were very enthusiastic and quick to see and applaud the good plays, of which there were several, one being the putting out of Warren at the plate by a long throw from deep left field.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, N. Y., and one of the most widely known men in the state was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering."

In June, 1894, Mr. Horner, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co. recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured. The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physician's prescriptions or other pills."

Rev. John Burgess, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a Minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 50 years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial Bottles Free at J. G. Kilburn's Drug Store, Nonantum, and Bernard Billings, Newton Upper Falls.

—Through the efforts of Mrs. E. M. Springer, president of the Women's Auxiliary, the library of the Young Men's Christian Association, has received many new and really valuable books. The gift was made possible by the generosity of Mrs. N. P. Coburn, Mrs. C. B. Prescott and Mrs. W. H. Blodgett. Among the recent additions are Standard Dictionaries, Young's Concise Bible, The Last Quarter Century in the United States, Hill's Manual of Business Forms and Harper's Book of Facts. Mrs. A. F. Emery of Peabody street has presented a splendid picture of "The Mother and the Three Graces" to adorn the association parlor.

—A strawberry festival given last evening by the ladies of the Methodist church, attracted a large number of church members and their friends. The affair was held in the Eliot tower hall, and proved a great success. The hall was prettily decorated with flowers, which with the attractively draped tables, made a pleasing effect. Mrs. Alexander was in charge, assisted by several ladies. The following table was set: table, Mrs. F. S. Leonard and Mrs. Doane; red table, Mrs. F. O. Barber; lemonade table, Miss M. McLaren; green table, the Misses Blackwell and Bigelow; yellow table, Mrs. Holmes; candy table, Mrs. Davidson; Chinese luncheon, Mrs. Leonard and Mr. Frank E. Jones, a "great moral dinner" under direction of Mr. and Mrs. George Barber, and presided over by Mr. Pitt F. Parker was the life of the evening.

—A little Newton boy, Cloyes King, won the first prize in the great New York bicycle parade. A hundred thousand people gathered along the boulevard and around Grand Central station to witness the parade to see the great bicycle parade which takes place each year, under the auspices of the Evening Telegram. It is beyond question the leading bicycle event of the year. Costumes of many kinds, cycles carrying many shapes, creations of all sorts are to be seen on wheels. Various prizes are awarded and owing to the large number of competitors—over 5000 wheels were in the parade—a prize is much cherished. The first prize for a boy rider was awarded to Cloyes King, the little son of Moses King, the publisher, whose home is on Belmont street, where Cloyes was born eight years ago. The family have been spending a part of the winter in New York. The New York Herald of June 7, has a cut of the little fellow and his gaily decorated wheel, as well as a very flattering notice of his success. The Herald says: "Cloyes King, to whom was awarded the first prize in the boy's fancy decorated wheel class of the Evening Telegram parade on Saturday, was one of the smallest bicyclists in line. He attracted considerable attention with his pretty white costume and handsomely decorated wheel. Cloyes is the son of Moses King of 183 Madison avenue. Although a year old, he is an enthusiastic bicyclist, and spends much time on his wheel. He received many congratulations yesterday from his friends on his success in

—The Newton Christian Endeavor Union will hold a meeting Monday evening, June 14th, at 7.30 o'clock in the Baptist church, West Newton. Rev. E. Y. Mullins of Newton Centre will deliver an address and there will be other interesting exercises.

—Newton Lodge, No. 21, A. O. U. W., was visited by its District Deputy Bro. Wm. L. Libby of Roskilde, at its regular meeting last Tuesday evening, and a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. Brothers should attend meeting June 22d.

—An unknown man is reported to have been struck by a train near the Washington street crossing, last night. The police found a hat and traces of a body having been dragged along the tracks, but no trace of the body. Possibly the injured man was taken on board the train and carried to Boston.

—The annual children's June festival of the Eliot church was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the church vestry, and notwithstanding the heavy showers brought on the usual happy throng of young people. From 4.30 to 6 o'clock indoor games furnished amusement, and at 6 o'clock was invited to sit down to the heavily-laden tables. A group of laughable marionettes with their clever exhibition added to the evening's pleasure.

—Mr. Geo. W. Bush of Elmwood street has added several handsome carriages to his livery, one a Berlin coach, upholstered in broadcloth, made by Bennett of Boston, and used for the first time at the Pratt-Nickerson wedding, for which Mr. Bush furnished ten hacks. Another is a Brewster coach, upholstered in leather, and said to be a handsome coupe-rockaway. All have rubber tires, and are sent out with very stylish teams and drivers in livery. Mr. Bush is building a large brick addition to his stable, especially for the use of boarders.

—The Rockport Orchestral Club gave a concert in that town May 31st, assisted by Miss Agnes B. Trowbridge, Miss Alice H. Clark, violin soloists, Miss Florence L. Henderson, pianist, Mr. Charles F. Atwood, cornet soloist, and Miss Louise E. Trowbridge, pianist, all of Newton. The music by the orchestra, conducted by L. Edw. Chase, and by the soloists, was finely rendered, and the concert was well received with much enthusiasm and winning generous applause for their artistic work. With the party were Mrs. F. L. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hazen of Watertown, and Mr. F. B. Moulton of Boston. They were entertained by Mr. Chase, and spent the day after the concert inspecting the quaint town of Rockport, and enjoying the beautiful views along the North shore.

—His Services Appreciated.

Mayor Henry E. Cobb, who acted as Chief Marshal in the Memorial Day parade has received letters of thanks and congratulations from Charles Ward Post 62 G. A. R., and the National Lancers of Boston. Through the courtesy of Mayor Cobb, we are able to publish them.

Hon. H. E. Cobb, Newton, Boston, June 3, 1897.

Dear Sir:—The National Lancers of Boston desire me to convey to you and through you to the ladies of the church, our most sincere thanks for the kindness and hospitality extended. They feel greatly pleased in having seen honored and invited to sit down to the services of Memorial Day, and the memory of their visit to your beautiful city will live in the minds of those who participated.

Kindly convey to all our deep sense of their kindness in the very cordial reception given us.

Very respectfully yours,

CHARLES WAUGH, Secretary.

Newtonville, June 3d, 1897.

Hon. Henry E. Cobb.

Dear Sir:—I am directed to express to you the thanks of Charles Ward Post, No. 62 for the interest in making our last Memorial Day a perfect success, and to assure you that this post appreciates your careful attention which contributed so much towards the enjoyment of the day.

Very respectfully,

E. GORT, Adjutant.

New England's Summer Resorts.

The summer season will soon be upon us and then comes the task of selecting the vacation grounds.

New England in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, has long been a favorite resort for tourists and of these resorts which include the Mountains, the Sea Shore and Lake regions, during the period from June 1st to September 30th the Boston & Maine Railroad will have on sale at all of its principal stations reduced rate round trip excursion tickets.

This Company also issues an Excursion Book which is replete with information for tourists and travelers regarding routes and rates to all points in Northern New England; while a list of the leading hotels and boarding houses of this region is also included in this book which is sent free to any address upon application to the General Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine Railroads, Boston.

Gas Cooking Stoves.

The Newton & Watertown Gas Light Company has an extensive line of gas cooking stoves that are on exhibition at their Newton office, which are being sold at cost.

There is a large sale of them being made and with gas yet at $1.35, it makes a very cheap fuel for summer purposes.

NEWTON THEOLOGICAL INSTITUTE.

SEVENTH SECOND CLASS IN HISTORY OF INSTITUTION GRADUATED THURSDAY—LIST OF SPEAKERS AND THEIR SUBJECTS.

The 72nd class in the history of the institution was graduated Thursday morning from the Newton Baptist Theological Institute at Newton Centre. The commencement exercises were held in the main auditorium of the First Baptist church.

The exercises opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Mullins of Newton Centre, which was followed immediately by the addresses of the graduates. The speakers and their subjects were as follows: "The Ministry of Persecution," Norman North Bishop; "The Keenness of Jesus' Moral Insight," David Thimmas Magill; "The Preacher's Need of an Inner Vision," James Edward Norcross; "Faith and Facts," Ellisworth Craig Road; "The Human Factor in Prophecy," John Elijah Smith; "The Advantages of a Country Pastorate," Frederick McKee White; "A Pauline Parallelism," Herbert Edwin Wise.

An address was delivered by Prof. Thomas, after which the diplomas were awarded as follows:

Regular department—Norman North Bishop, Canning, N. S.; Frederick Louis Cleveland, Chester; William John Eddy, Cross Roads, W. Va.; Charles Haigh Ellis, North Billerica; Thomas Phillips Evans, Cornwall, England; Daniel Webster Kimball, Cambridge, Me.; David T. L. Magill, Flint, Mich.; George Fred Roulund, Cambridge; John Elijah Smith, St. Louis, Mich.; Edwin Fitzson Snell, Lawrence; Frederick McKee White, Centerville, Mich.; Charles Burnett Williams, Cambridge; Henry B. Williams, Sacramento, Calif.; Herbert Edwin Wise, London, Ont.

English department—John Eddy Berry, West Sumner, Me.; Christopher James Harding, Fall River; Paul Fred Madliger, Neuchatel, Switzerland; James Edward Norcross, Watertown, Ellsworth Craig Road, East Boston; Albert Phillip Rossier, Worcester; Frederick W. Pratt, Lancaster, Eng.; Howard Henry White, Ira, Vt.

The annual dinner of the trustees was held in Bray's hall. The dinner was attended by nearly 200 invited guests, many members of the faculty and board of trustees and graduates. At the same time the friends of the students were entertained at luncheon.

After the tables had been cleared brief addresses were made by Rev. R. L. Faunce of Pawtucket, R. I.; Prof. G. D. B. Pepper of Colby University, Rev. F. T. Hazelwood of Boston, Rev. C. A. Reese of Newton Centre and Rev. C. L. White of Nashua, N. H. At the subsequent meeting of the trustees very satisfactory reports in regard to the condition of the affairs of the institute were received and a business of a routine nature was transacted.

After the trustees' dinner a reception to the members of the graduating class was given in the large hall of the Hills library. The members of the class were assisted in receiving by the faculty, and the members of the junior class acted as ushers. Most of the members of the graduating class have already secured pupils.

Pratt-Nickerson.

Miss E. Winifred Nickerson, daughter of Mrs. Theodore Nickerson of Temple street, West Newton, and Mr. Frederick S. Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius G. Pratt, also of West Newton, were married last evening in the First Baptist church, Newton Centre.

The edifice was filled with the leading people of Newton and friends of the two families from Brookline, Boston and many other places. The beautiful interior of the church was made more attractive for the occasion by tasteful decorations of green and flowers about and over the chancel.

The ceremony was impressive. The organ was playing softly through the entire service. The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played as the bride party entered. The bride was given away by Mr. Ernest Nickerson. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Mullins, pastor of the church, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Rhee of Newton Theological Institute.

Miss Nickerson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Lucey E. Cobb of Newton, Miss Helen M. Cobb of Newton, Miss Edna S. Mason of Newton Centre, Miss Ella S. Mason of Newton Centre, Miss Caroline N. Rogers of Brookline, cousin of the bride, Miss Alice E. Adams of Abundant, and Miss Ruth Carroll of West Newton, a niece of the groom. Little Miss Eleanor Pratt acted as flower girl. Mr. Pratt, brother and nephew of the groom, acted as pages.

Mr. Thomas Nickerson of West Newton was head usher, the other ushers being Mr. Charles A. Stone of Newton, Mr. Charles H. Stone of Brookline, Mr. Sherman Merrill of Newton Centre, Mr. Avery Conolly of Chicago, Mr. Howard L. Rogers of Brookline, Mr. Lawrence J. Webster of Boston, Mr. Albert R. Whittier, Jr., of Boston, Mr. William Lynde Keene of Lynn and Mr. Raphael C. Thomas of Newton Centre.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white silk, with point lace (a heart) on the bodice, and white roses. The maid of honor's gown was of lavender mousseline de soie over white silk, with pink roses, and the bridesmaids wore pink and green silk with overdress of mousseline de soie, and carried pink roses.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the wedding party passed down the aisle. About 300 of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom were present. The bride and groom took carriages for the bride's mother's home on Temple street, West Newton, where a brilliant reception was given. The spacious house, situated in a beautiful spot on West Newton hill, was brightly lighted inside and out. The rooms were decorated with asparagus vine and roses. An elaborate spread was served. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Pratt will reside in a new home in Newton.

Queen's Jubilee At Halifax.

There is to be a grand demonstration and a series of festivities in Halifax the entire week of June 21st—23rd, celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of Queen Victoria's reign.

Probably the most extensive military parade and naval display that Halifax has ever seen, will take place on June 22nd.

The entire British North-American Squadron will be in the Harbor. Delegates from various societies in the United States have accepted invitations to participate. Among them are the American Antiquarian, the Massachusetts Historical, American Historical and Colonial Societies.

Parties who wish to witness the great parade on Tuesday, June 22nd can leave Boston as late as Saturday, June 19th, by the S. S. "Olive" of the Plant Line which leaves at 12 o'clock noon, and arrives in Halifax, Sunday afternoon. The round trip rate by this line is $12, and the tickets will allow passengers to return at pleasure during the summer.

—The residents of Ash street, it is said, are very anxious that the name of that thoroughfare be changed to Islington road. The city government will consider the matter.

—Dr. Bradbury of Rockland, Mass., an eye and ear specialist, has taken the house on Hancock and Central streets, lately occupied by Dr. Whitten, who has removed to Haverhill.

—The seminary students are this week departing for their homes, and the large amount of baggage leaving the Auburndale depot has kept the local expressmen and station men very busy.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Walling, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Elwell, Mr. and Mrs. James Dooliver, Councilman and Mrs. W. F. Hadlock and Ernest Walling returned Wednesday from a short visit at Green Harbor, this state.

—Some night last week the platform of the mud-scow on the river at Norumbega park disappeared. It is thought that it was towed to another part of the river and sunk. The work was evidently that of boys.

—Some time after 12 last Friday night the fruit store and waiting room at the Riverside end of the Commonwealth avenue boulevard, owned by Gustave Nenehen, was broken into by forcing a rear window. About 150 cigars, a small quantity of fruit and candy and a few dollars in change were stolen.

—The heavy rains of Wednesday night caused part of the railroad embankment near Bourne's bridge to give way and fall, covering the tracks below. A cesspool on the north side of the new street, running through the Estabrook estate, overflowed, and running across the street in quite a stream it caused the earth to loosen burying the tracks to the depth of two feet.

—About 10.30 last Friday evening residents in the vicinity of the Italian camp on Commonwealth avenue were startled by loud outcries and pistol shots coming from the direction of the shanty. Police headquarters was notified, and Sergt. Purcell and a squad of officers visited the camp, only to find everything quiet, the men in their bunks and all signs of trouble concealed.

—The second in the series of Saturday evening promenade concerts was given at the Newton Boat club last Saturday evening. The threatening and rainy weather kept many from attending, although there were many pleasure-crafts on the river. The Waltham Watch factory band gave several pleasing selections, and a large company of club members and their guests enjoyed dancing in the club house hall.

—The usual summer quota of guests has arrived at Woodland Park hotel, including many of those who have made it their summer home for a number of seasons. Driving and wheeling parties from Boston over the boulevards have made the hotel their stopping place for dinner or luncheon all through the week, and altogether the opening of the season has been unusually lively. The hotel, which has been recruited with several new members, and a schedule of tournaments for June and July is being arranged. The links have been put in first-class shape, and afford some excellent hazards. Among the recent arrivals are Mr. Moses Richardson, J. Dame and family, Mrs. William H. Horton, Mrs. C. L. Holbrook, A. J. Church, Pines family, J. C. Hard and family, W. R. Goodwin and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Little, F. W. Hunt and family, Thomas A. Hall, J. A. Whitman and family, Chas. Darrow and family, H. E. Woodman, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Holmes, Edward Parker Deacon, all of Boston. The first of a series of weekly hops was held last Saturday evening.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD SUMMER EXCURSION ROUTE BOOK.

THE MOST COMPLETE PUBLICATION OF ITS KIND.

On June 1 the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company issued the 1897 edition of its Summer Excursion Route Book. This work is designed to provide the public with short descriptive notes of the principal summer resorts of Eastern America, with the routes for reaching them, and the rates of fare. There are over four hundred resorts in the book to which rates are quoted, and over fifteen hundred different routes of combination of routes. It is complete with the utmost care, and altogether is the most complete and comprehensive handbook of Summer travel ever offered to the public.

Its 219 pages are included in a handsome and sturdy cover, with colored maps, presenting the exact routes over which tickets

CITY GOVERNMENT

REGULAR MEETING OF THE ALDERMEN MONDAY EVENING—LARGE AMOUNT OF IMPORTANT BUSINESS TRANSACTED—HOSPITAL CONTRACT BROUGHT UP—WEST END GRANTED DOUBLE LOCATION ON CENTRE STREET—SOUTH SIDE RESIDENTS ASK FOR THE ABOLISHING OF GRADE CROSSINGS—$8000 APPROPRIATED FOR THE DEPRESSING OF MARGIN STREET.

There was a three hour session of the board of aldermen Monday evening, for the consideration of minor matters, and the transaction of considerable routine business. Every member was in his seat when Mayor Cobb called the board to order at 8 o'clock.

The first business was a hearing on the petition for the laying of concrete sidewalks on Walnut street. As no one appeared the hearing was closed.

A hearing was opened on the petition of the West End street railway for a double track location on Centre street from Nonantum square to the Watertown line.

Mr. Cummings of the company appeared saying that a hearing had been held on this petition last year. At that time there was no opposition, but it was held again this year at the suggestion of the city solicitor. The purpose of the double track was to increase the facilities, and give better service.

Hon. Gorham D. Gilman representing the May and Basset estates, spoke of the position of the elevated sidewalk, and asked if street widening was included in the proposed plans. He was anxious to receive information.

Mr. Cummings was unable to say much of the plans but said the street railway company intended no street widening.

Mr. Gilman thought a second track could not be laid without detriment. The matter should receive careful consideration. If the slope on the sidewalk embankment was cut off it would be necessary to erect a fence to prevent people from falling off. Street widening would be necessary if a double track was laid. It could not be done without detriment to the estates. It was desired that the board should look into the matter before final action was taken.

Mayor Cobb said that the street railway committee of last year had looked into the matter, and found that the two tracks could be laid without serious injury to this part of the street. Especially at this part spoken of had the matter been considered, and it was found that the work could be done without discommoding the travelling public. The width of the street was 73 feet.

Mr. Cummings said the West End road had no idea of widening the street as it would not be necessary. The work could be done without injury to trees as had been intended. The double track would occupy but 17 feet, leaving a driveway of 20 feet on each side, after the width of the sidewalks had been deducted.

On motion of Alderman White the hearing was closed.

The hearing for a main drain and common sewer in Crescent street, Abnurdale, followed. Mr. Christopher Needham was the first speaker. He thought a bridge should be built connecting the two ends of the street now separated. If this was done, the sewer completed and the street accepted, there would be no dispute. Incidentally Mr. Needham took the city engineer to task for what he called his mistakes. He also spoke in the same terms of the Boston & Albany. Mr. Needham was called to order several times by Mayor Cobb before he finally got his seat.

Mr. E. P. Hatch, who is a property owner in that vicinity, spoke of the necessity of a sewer. The cellar of the houses was damaged by the water. If the sewer was put in all this would be obviated.

Mr. Strump, who lives on the same street, endorsed Mr. Hatch's remarks. He spoke of the condition of the cellars, which was caused by water, and thought the sewer a necessity.

Mr. Lackey inquired if the street would be fixed after the sewer had been completed. There had been little done to it before. There was no street sign at the corner, and had not been one for two years. Would the city accept the street after the work of laying the sewer had been completed?

Alderman White informed the speaker as soon as the street was put in proper condition, after the sewer had been laid it would be accepted. At present it was private property.

Mr. Needham took exception to these statements, and spoke further on the subject. There was another remonstrant, who did not give his name. He was opposed to the laying of the sewer unless the two ends of the street were properly connected. The hearing was closed.

The next hearing was on the petition for the laying out of Gibbs street. Mr. Consens was the first speaker. He spoke of the improvement that would be made, and of the intention of the owners of land to build houses there. If the permit for laying out the street was not granted, they would be obliged to build a small passage-way, and erect a cheaper class of houses.

Mr. Dudley spoke in furtherance of the petition. He thought it the best way to utilize this vacant property. The new roadway would be built to the entire satisfaction of the city engineer, and without expense to the city. If there was any expense the city would be indemnified.

The hearing was closed.

Hearings were opened and closed on the petitions for a sewer on Tremont street, and of the Newton street railway company for permission to attach wires to the poles of the telephone company on Adams, Chapel and California streets.

The reading of the records of last meeting was dispensed with.

Two petitions comprised the concurrent business received from the lower board.

Lewis B. Belknap of Hillside avenue and John G. McGraw of Curve street were drawn as traverse jurors of the superior court.

A petition of the school board asking for better water service at the Hamilton school, Lower Falls, was referred to the water board.

A communication was received from the inspector of buildings in reference to the petition of Wm. Keller for permission to erect a one story frame building on Webster street, 50x50, with a boiler house to be used in connection. In accordance with the city ordinances a hearing was ordered for June 21st.

Marston & Wells' petition for permission to construct two buildings at Upper Falls for the manufacture of fireworks was granted.

Messrs. F. E. and F. O. Stanley were granted permission to erect the Hunnewell Hill club house at the corner of Eldredge and Vernon streets.

Marcus Morton, C. F. Richardson and Andrew Wellington were appointed auctioneers.

The West End street railway petitioned for the location of a pole on Washington street, opposite Park. Referred to inspector of wires.

F. B. Witherbee petitioned for a concrete sidewalk on Berkeley street. Highway committee.

A petition for the laying out and widening of 50 feet of Eliot street, from Chestnut street to the Charles river. Highway committee.

A petition for sidewalks on Lexington street. Highway committee.

A petition for a main drain and common sewer on Woodland road. Sewer committee.

Petitions for street lamps on North Edinboro and Border streets. Street light committee.

A petition of Lower Falls residents for the widening of Washington street from Wales, was referred to the highway committee.

The petition for one street lamp on Compton place was referred to the street light committee.

The telephone company asked permission to erect poles on Hall and Appleton streets. On these petitions hearings were ordered for June 21st.

A hearing on the same date was ordered on the gas company's petition to attach wires to the poles of the telephone company on Shaw street.

W. J. and W. P. Cordingley petitioned that the two large elm trees in front of their property at Lower Falls, be removed. They waived all right of a hearing. Highway committee.

The Norwega park amusement company, C. N. Richardson, treasurer, was granted permission to conduct such a place of amusement, and charge admission.

E. L. Foster petitioned for concrete sidewalks on Lake avenue. Highway committee.

Harriet G. Leatherbee objected to the sewer assessment on Austin street.

The petitions of W. R. Morse and H. Lambert for concrete sidewalks, were referred to the highway committee.

A petition for the repairing and improvement of Prince and Dartmouth streets was referred to the highway committee.

The Wellesley & Boston street railway on its petition for a re-location on Margin street, was granted leave to withdraw.

E. L. Foster petitioned for concrete sidewalks on Lake avenue. Highway committee.

A petition for gravel sidewalks on the south side of Woodward street, was referred to the highway committee.

At this point Alderman White said it wasn't necessary to refer any more petitions to the highway committee as it was out of funds. "Unless you first give us money, don't send petitions," he said.

Permission was granted Dwight Chester to remove a building on Langley road.

W. Gilbert's petition was referred to the highway committee.

The Newton Centre Improvement Society petitioned for the immediate consideration of the problem of the separation of the petitioners on the south side, and was referred to the railway committee.

The petition of residents on Ruthven and Watertown roads was referred to the highway committee.

The petition of Ellen Ryan for permission to erect an addition to her store on Clinton street was referred to the inspector of buildings.

H. Rhodes of Waban was granted a sixth class liquor license on recommendation of the license committee.

W. Waterhouse was granted an innholder's license to be used at the junction of the Commonwealth avenue boulevard and Walnut street.

A petition for two street lights on Park street was referred to the street light committee.

The Newton Centre Improvement society was referred to the park committee on its petition for an appropriation for a part purchase of the Newton Centre playground, residents of Newton Centre to pay the balance.

Timothy Kelly's petition was refused.

An order was adopted regarding the sale of fireworks on and before July 5th, and allowing the same to be discharged on that date.

The petition of Joseph Griffin for pool and billiard tables in Nonantum block was granted.

W. F. Hancock was granted leave to withdraw on his petition for an express license.

H. W. Crowell, Jr., and Eugene Sherman were appointed and confirmed public weighers.

John Cain was granted an express license.

The highway committee reported recommending the laying out of Glenwood avenue.

The sewer committee reported favoring the construction of a sewer on Charles street.

The highway committee recommended that the corner of Davis and Highland streets be rounded off.

The sewer committee also favored the construction of sewers in private land on Pine Grove street, St. Mary's avenue, Wier street, Sharon avenue, Robinhood street, Wolcott street, Auburn street and Commonwealth avenue. The reports were accepted.

The West End matter of a double track location on Centre street was brought up at this time. Alderman Bailey spoke of a clause relating to damage to pipes laid in the street other than those of the city.

It was decided to lay the matter on the table until the city solicitor could be seen.

Alderman White read a report recommending the city council to investigate the sewer account, its different parts and the proper way to keep the books. It was shown that extra clerical assistance would be required.

It was voted to provide a fund for the care of the Eliot memorial. Also to appropriate $6000 for the work of depressing Margin street.

It was ordered to have the bells throughout the city rung July 5th; also for the proper observance of June 17th.

A hearing for the construction of a sewer on Charles street was ordered for June 21st.

A recommendation of the finance committee it was voted to investigate the sewer account, its methods of bookkeeping, etc., and providing for the employment of extra clerical assistance.

A hearing was ordered on the petitions for sewer construction on Pine Grove avenue.

The sum of $300 was appropriated to meet cash expenses in the city solicitor's office.

Orders were adopted for the construction of sewers in Tremont street, Wier road, Sharon avenue, Robinhood street, Pine Grove avenue, Crescent street, Auburn street, Wolcott street and Commonwealth avenue.

An order was also adopted for the laying out of Glenwood avenue. It was also voted to round the corner of Davis and Highland streets.

The following locations of poles and wires were granted: To the telephone company is poles on Fuller and Chestnut streets; three poles on Beacon street; gas company, poles on Langley road and Union street; also on Washington between Court and Washington street; junction of Walnut and Washington streets, Washington from Putnam street to Washington street bridge; telephone company attach wires on fire alarm poles on Centre street; place poles on Sterling street; to construct conduits on Centre place, Prospect and Temple streets.

The water board was authorized to lay pipes as follows: On Grey Cliff road, on Commonwealth avenue, Woodland road and Norwood avenue, the total being 1245 feet at a cost of $1450.

THE HOSPITAL CONTRACT.

Alderman Downs presented the hospital contract as recommended by the special committee, and in connection with it this report:

Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the board of aldermen, in taking from the table the report and contract presented by the joint special committee on hospital matters, I desire to offer a substitute contract, for I cannot vote to adopt their report or accept their contract as I feel that it is not what the city should pay. The one I now present, I think is nearer what the city should pay, although even this is too much, and I feel that I should apologize to the taxpayers of Newton for being too liberal with their money.

The report of the trustees of the hospital states that the average cost of all cases, both contagious and otherwise, is $14.40, and this includes the amount expended for general repairs and other expenses, without deducting the amount received from free beds, which is $3,300. Deduct the amount for general hospital of that received for free beds, and we have a net cost of $7.31 per capita, to the hospital.

This from their own report. According to this report the hospital will cost the city at the beginning of the year, $4,043.53. Received during the year, $34,972.27, making a total of $40,972.27. Expended during the year, including repairs, $29,888.27, leaving a balance on hand of $11,084.00.

As this is a charitable institution I do not think the city of Newton ought to be expected to contribute to a constantly accumulating fund for the hospital. The city receives for its state patients cared for, $5.00 per capita per week. This includes all cases. From towns and other cities, $7.00 per capita per week. On the basis of the committee's report, the city would lose on state cases $5.11 per capita per each week, or a total for 520 weeks of $2,657.19, as based on the report of the hospital last year. On outside cities and towns the city would lose $3.11 per capita for each week, or a total of 78 weeks of $211.48, making a total of $2,868.67 on state, town and outside city cases.

I have not taken into consideration the contagious disease cases and there can be no basis taken of what the city does lose from state, town and other city cases outside the city of Newton. If the city is included under the same head, both contagious cases and outdoor poor cases, and should it be based on last year's report of the trustees of the hospital, the city would lose at $16.33, the city would lose $11.33 per week or a total of 316 weeks of $3,380.60. Should any of them be Newton cases we could at most not charge more than half to the city of Newton, which would be a liberal allowance, and then the loss on contagious disease cases would be about $1800, or a total for the outdoor and contagious disease cases of about $4900. This number that the city of Newton pays for the privilege of taking care of the poor of the state and other cities and towns.

I do not believe in throwing our treasury open to any such draft as this. If there is to be a gift to the hospital it should be a voluntary one from the citizens and taxpayers, and not forced by this board.

He compared the following cases with Newton: Springfield, $9000, Lynn, $4500 for Emergency hospital; Fall River city hospital is in charge of the overseers of the poor, and the expenses are paid by the appropriation. The same is true of Lowell and other cities where no appropriation is made. Cambridge has a contract with the Carney hospital at $8 per week for all cases, and I understand the hospital is willing to take more for the same amount.

I believe all hospitals supported by charity like the Newton hospital, should receive their support from contributions, popular subscriptions, or by endowment, and not from appropriation obtained from the tax-payers in any way. I contend we have no right to give freely, or indirectly, money to any institution whatsoever, but that we must have value received for all money paid out. I have been accused of being against the hospital. This must deny. I simply want it settled on business principles and not on sentiment. I am willing to give the hospital all it is worth, and I maintain that this contract is the best one to be made.

On the basis of the contract I present, taking the cases as given in the records of the poor department, there is a net cost to the city of $7,022.41, as follows:

400 weeks state cases, $5,720.00
96 weeks other cities and towns, $542.41
120 weeks Newton cases, $422.41
Total, $6,684.82

Deducting from this amount, Towns and cities 96 weeks at $7.00, $672.00
State cases 400 weeks at $5.00, $2000.00
Leaves a net cost to the city of $7,022.41.

And to show what it would actually cost us we should deduct as follows:

400 weeks state (difference between) cases at $3 per what we pay and receive, $1170.00
96 weeks, other (difference between) cities and towns at what we pay and receive, $96.00
120 wks, contagious (difference between) (allowing 12 as New) what we pay and receive, $1793.30
Total, $13,659.30

Leaving a balance to the city of Newton for services actually rendered for our city cases of $3,662.70.

Now I contend that this is all that it ought to cost Newton for what we have, and if it were under the direction of overseers of the poor and board of health, all that it would cost. It might be well to consider the power of the overseers of the poor in this matter. They have recently voted not to pay but $8 for the outdoor poor, and I understand that is what they propose to pay and no more, whether our contract is passed by this board or not, and can, if they desire, send all their cases to Tewksbury or any other hospital, and it is a question for this board to decide whether they will or will not.

With the addition of a clause presented by the city solicitor the West End street railway was granted permission to lay double tracks on Centre street.

At 11 o'clock the board adjourned.

LASELL BACCALAUREATE.

REV. C. M. SOUTHWICK GIVES AN INSPIRING ADDRESS TO THE FIVE STUDENTS.

It was an inspiring hour for the seniors of Lasell Seminary Sunday morning in the Congregational church at Auburndale, when the pastor, the Rev. C. M. Southwick, preached the baccalaureate sermon, urging his hearers to noble endeavors in their future life.

These years for you at Lasell, he said, have been weaving for you a grand womanhood, and God grant that, like our gracious queen across the sea, when you, my young friends, have passed your three score and ten years as queens in your own homes, you may look back upon this day as the beginning of a beautiful and glorious life.

You are now entering upon your life work, and tomorrow you sail the boundless sea.

"Be thou a blessing," and thou shalt surely be. These are the few simple words I would impress upon you. Like a precious gem, they will always be valuable to you. Be you a Harriet Hosmer or an Elizabeth Barrett Browning, your precious gem must always be at its highest standard.

This gem I have chosen for your coronation today may be twisted in all different directions, and yet is always brilliant as the diamond. "Aim high." You are not to wait for circumstances, but go forth and seek your legitimate place for the world. You are the architect of your own destiny. Your ideal is slumbering in your actual. Your dignity, your power, are all of your own making. The charm of your future can never give you a loftier aspiration than that found in my text—"Aim high—strike hard."

The latter does not mean noise and bluster, but the putting of all your powers to the best use possible. It doesn't mean cannon balls or visions of war, but to be earnest in your future life, the strife for peace. "Let your light shine." The persistence of the waves of light illustrate my point. Beautiful, grand, persistent and indomitable, they cover the hills and illuminate the darkened base of Sinai.

There is nothing in the homes and haunts of men that doesn't succumb to its rays. It chases the shadows and lights the curling wave of smoke; it dances in the golden hair of the tiny child; it is the benediction of the invalid after a lingering night on a bed of pain; it is the grandest thing that could be conferred upon the world.

The life that you live—yes, the garments you wear—must be gotten by your effort. Business, politics and every occupation has become a matter of grab in the strife for existence. We are all striving to offset the monster that is dragging us down. By woman's emancipation, you are called to do your part in the solution of these social problems. Your future life may lead you into politics or business or into charity work, but you must remember that the question of labor and capital are, in the end, moral and religious and civil questions. All the social problems must be taken hold of by women, and if they fail us, especially our educated womanhood, we are, indeed, a sorry nation.

"Hold fast" to your good spirits and your good times. Never outlive your rippling laughter and your good cheer. They are now for your brothers and sisters and parents. Hold fast to all the gaiety of life, and cultivate your outdoor sport, even though you need not rise at 5 o'clock for your tennis.

"Hold fast" to your affections, your fondness and your pretty ways that you love to exercise with one another in school. See that your father, your mother, your sisters and brothers are loved, fondled and petted, even if you have to do it yourself, for you know how much the little sister admires the big, educated, dignified sister. Hold fast to your hopes, your ambitions, your visions, your dreams, your romances, and when your 34th year is passed your life will be a beatitude.

"Keep close" to Christ. Be thou a blessing and a living sacrifice, and let it be known that you are without Christ. Hold fast, but how can you do so in the midst of the tremendous downward pressure without him? Keep close to him, for "I am with you always, even unto the end."

Be thou a blessing, and in the days to come you shall cluster about you a thousand memories that will testify to your good deeds and noble efforts.

CLASS OF '98 WILL MAKE NOTABLE GIFT TO SEMINARY THE DAY IT LEAVES SCHOOL.

The class of '98 of Lasell Seminary proposes to make a notable gift to the institution when the day comes for it to leave the school. For several years each graduating class has presented the institution with some permanent memorial of its years at the seminary, but the enterprising junior class has decided to surpass the gifts of all its predecessors, and will present the seminary a memorial hall.

The necessary committees have already been appointed. Communications are being sent to all the "old Lasell girls," asking for assistance in carrying out this project. The brunt of the work and of the expense will be borne by the class of '98. The gift to the seminary will be made in its name on commencement week in '98. It is expected that most of the graduates and former pupils of the seminary will respond readily to this appeal.

The hall is designed to meet a need which has long been felt at commencement time and on the occasion of school entertainments. The present chapel and gymnasium are altogether too small and the 27 members of the class of '98 propose to remedy this trouble.

The sum of $25,000 is needed to erect the building, which will be of a type to correspond with the other seminary buildings. It will be constructed at the northwest corner of the main building and will be connected with it by a covered bridge.

On the ground floor will be located two rooms for the various seminary clubs and the two rival societies, the Lasella club and the S. D. This is the principal purpose for which the building is proposed.

On the second floor will be a large chapel and assembly hall, the latter fitted with a stage and dressing rooms. The third floor will be used by the art department of the school for an art gallery.

The building will be erected on land deeded by the seminary. The titles will stand in the name of the Alumnae association.

The conditions of the deed of gift will provide that in case the seminary changes hands, the money received for this building shall be used to establish a Lasella scholarship or in some other way perpetuate the name of Lasell.

CLASS DAY AT LASELL.

EXERCISES ATTENDED BY MANY FRIENDS OF SENIORS AND MEMBERS OF ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION.

Class day, the summing up of all the pleasures and successes of the class of '97 in its four years at Lasell, was joyfully observed Monday evening. Long before the hour set for the exercises the large hall was crowded with the friends of the pupils and the loyal members of the alumnae association, who had come to Auburndale to share in the festivities of the week.

The hall was fragrant with June blossoms, the class colors, red and white, predominating, while the lights were shaded with globes of the same hue, and in a conspicuous place above the platform was displayed the motto of the class, "Loyal en tout." The ushers were members of the junior class, who carried bouquets of white roses with green foliage, and wore sashes of their class color, green. The entire left of the hall was occupied by the undergraduates of the school, who in their dainty evening toilets formed an effective foil for the somber Oxford gowns of the graduates.

At 7:45 the seniors filed into the hall and took their places in a semi-circle on the platform. Each was dressed in the conventional Oxford gown and mortar board cap, and as an indication of the increased dignity and knowledge of the graduates, carried conspicuously a long tippet, through which the under class girls were viewed superlatively.

The following members of the senior class occupied seats on the platform: Edith Blair, Wyoming, O.; A. Gertrude Burdall, Evanston, Ill.; Nora J. Burroughs, Edwardsville, Ill.; Emeline H. Carlisle, Passaic, N. J.; Gertrude A. Clark, Northampton, N. H.; Myrtle M. Davis, Topeka, Kan.; Edith A. Dresser, Southbridge, Mass.; Lena D. Evans, Fort Worth, Tex.; Nellie F. Feagles, Toledo, O.; Edith Howe, Passaic, N. J.; Gertrude A. Jones, Kansas City, Mo.; Lena M. Josselyn, Manchester, N. H.; Nellie F. Quirk, Minneapolis, Minn.; Louise W. Richards, Weymouth, Mass.; Kathryn Robertson, Jacksonville, Ill.; Zella Robinson, Columbus, O.; Lucia Shumway, Polo, Ill.; Gertrude Taggart, Indianapolis, Ind.; Anna Parker Warner, Washington, D. C.; Grace P. Washburn, Melrose, Mass.; Miss Weston, Manchester, N. H.; Annie S. Young, St. Louis, Mo.

The exercises which followed were full of amusing allusions to school happenings, and contained grinds on the faculty, members of the junior class, and Lasell institutions.

The exercises opened with the singing of the class song, composed by Miss Annie Young, with music by Misses Nan Weston and Edith Howe. The president's address of welcome was made by Miss Nora Judy Burroughs, who extolled the virtues of '97, and bade their friends welcome in behalf of the class.

Next Miss Myrtle Mae Davis introduced each member of the class in turn with witty allusions to their characteristics and foibles. A second song, with words by Miss Emeline Howe Carlisle followed. Miss Gertrude A. Jones, with the aid of a stereograph, as the old maid of the class showed the fortunes of her classmates as revealed to her in her spinsters' cup of tea. With the eye of prophecy she foresaw a president, a variety actress, a cattle dealer, a traveler, a sister of charity, a woman suffrage orator, a prima donna, a scrub woman, a fashion plate, a pugilist, a bachelor girl, a lobbyist, a nurse, a lifesaver, a cook, a traveling agent, but only one bride, Miss Annie Spottswood Young, by "An Olympian Tea Party," paid her respects to some of the institutions, which are peculiar to Lasell, and introduced several good-natured hits on the faculty.

The 97 and articles which were supposed to be particularly appropriate were presented to the members of the junior class, with the benediction of '97 by Gertrude Alice Clark, who had carried toy flags, dictionaries and a cap and bow, figuring among the gifts. In behalf of the class the seminary was presented by Miss Lena Dryden Evans with a set of Victor Hugo's works in French. The indoor exercises closed with a feeling good-by to the school, the faculty and the under-class girls by Miss Anna Parker Warner.

From the hall the company adjourned to the lawn, which was transformed by hundreds of electric globes of varied hues hung in long festoons from the grand trees, and sweeping in graceful loops along the front of the seminary building until the lawn was all aglow with a soft radiance, which accorded well with the animated scene.

Along the veranda railing were looped electric globes of red and white, each secured by a huge bouquet of daisies and roses. After the crowd had collected on the piazza and lawn the seniors appeared in single file, headed by the president, each bearing a figure escorted by a junior in white, bearing a lighted torch. The procession wound picturesquely through the grounds, making the circuit of the spots deeded to the undergraduates, and finally halted around a bonfire where, after an oration by Miss Edith Montgomery Blair, an immense floral basket ball of green and white was presented to the attendant undergraduates, and books and other relics of school days were consigned to the flames by Miss Grace Philbrick Washburn as an offering to Minerva.

The ceremony completed, the seniors received the congratulations of their friends, and as the last guest departed and the last light faded out, the tired but happy members of the class lingered around the fire to express the belief that '97, the largest graduating class in the history of the seminary, had surpassed all its predecessors in its class day program.

Professor and Mrs. Bragdon give a Reception to the Seniors.

Lasell put on its gayest attire Tuesday evening for the annual reception given by Principal and Mrs. C. C. Bragdon to the members of the graduating class of the seminary and their friends.

The parlors and reception rooms were tastefully decorated with roses and carnations of the colors of the class of '97, red and white, and the great trees on the lawn and the front of the seminary buildings were festooned with electric globes of the same hues.

The seminary was thronged with the friends of the graduates, members of the board of trustees, and alumnae from all parts of the country, who had come to Auburndale to share in the festivities of commencement week.

The receiving party included Prof. and Mrs. Bragdon, Miss Carpenter and Miss Nora Burroughs, president of the graduating class. The guests were presented to the receiving party and ushered to the refreshment room by a staff of ushers composed of the members of the junior class, Miss Anna Mayo of Foxcroft, Me.; Miss Alice Burnham of Manchester, N. H.; Miss Helen Abbott, Dexter, Me.; Miss Clara Davis, Cincinnati; Miss Maud Dougherty, South Bend, Ind.; Miss Catherine De Lo, Glens Falls, N. Y.; Miss Mary Thompson, Manchester, N. H.; Miss Jennie Myrick, Yarmouth; Miss Ruth Crandall, Auburndale; Miss Milla Anderson, Whitewater, Wis.; Miss Anna Ampt, Wyoming, Ill.; Miss Daisy Aull, Kansas City; Miss Elizabeth Allen, Omaha; Miss Ada Cadmus, Jersey City; Miss Kittell Chapman, Elgin, Ill.; Miss May Emery, Yatham; Miss Clara George, Portsmouth, N. H.; Miss Emma Goll, Chicago; Miss Lowell Houghton, Red Oak, Ia.; Miss Emma E. Smith, Chicago; Miss Carolyn Poe, Flinday, Me.; Miss Ruth R. Meriam, Meriden, Conn.; Miss Ruth Kimball, Clarinda, Ia.

The 23 members of the class of '97 assisted the faculty in receiving, and were the recipients of numerous congratulations on the success of the class day program.

IN OXFORD GOWNS.

WEARING MORTAR-BOARD CAPS UPON THEIR HEADS—THUS LASELL SENIORS GRACEFULLY TOOK THEIR VARIOUS DEGREES TODAY—GRADUATING EXERCISES IN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, AUBURNDALE.

The class of '97 of Lasell closed its four years at the seminary Wednesday with the observances of graduation day. The exercises were held in the main auditorium of the Congregational church, which was completely filled by the friends of the graduates, the underclass students and members of the alumni.

The church was decorated with a profusion of flags and roses and carnations of the class colors, red and white, while prominently displayed above the pulpit was the motto of the graduating class, "Loyal en tout."

The seniors, garbed in the conventional Oxford gown and mortar-board cap occupied the pews in the front of the auditorium, while behind them were seated the undergraduates, whose brilliantly-colored costumes formed an effective foil for the somber group of graduates.

The exercises were impressive, and were pervaded by the feeling of sadness at leaving the institution where four years of study have been passed, which belongs to the graduate mind at this period of the year.

On the platform were seated principal and Mrs. Bragdon, Miss Carpenter, Rev. R. C. McArthur, the orator of the day, and Rev. W. R. Clarke of Cleveland, O.

The exercises opened with prayer by Dr. Clark, after which Prof. Bragdon introduced Dr. McArthur of New York. He spoke in part as follows:

"We ought to give great gratitude to God, and heartily congratulate one another that we have our span of life in this most wonderful period of the world's history. During the period from 1890 to the present day, more moral, social, intellectual and religious questions have been earnestly asked and understandingly answered than in any corresponding period in the world's history."

"We stand too near the great events that are transpiring around us to appreciate their magnitude and historical relations. We cannot appreciate historical character at its true worth when we stand near to it. We do not today appreciate the characters of the great men of the civil war as we ought. It will be 100 years before the magnitude of Lincoln's character can be appreciated. It was not until 1846, when Carlyle wrote his two volumes, that the English people recognized that Oliver Cromwell was the greatest character in English history."

"We contrast the condition of women in England today with her condition at the beginning of the Victorian era. In continental Europe woman is no longer today as in England, and in England she is not honored as in these United States. There is nowhere else in the world a place where woman is so much as in the United States. You have this wonderful opportunity. With the success of the women of this century before you, you are going out with the materials at your hand, which you have gathered during your four years at Lasell."

"That you may perform your part in this thrilling life of the world I make a few practical suggestions. Let your conception be high, and your attainment must be high. Be noble women. I almost said manly women, but I mean be womanly in the fullest sense of the word. The world has today very little use for the woman who is only a toy. Remember the importance of tremendously hard work. If there be a genius in the world who thinks to accomplish much without hard work, I do not want to meet her. For such a one there may be the providence of God to help in some world to come, but not in this."

"Genius is the ability and willingness to undertake tremendously hard work, with the overwhelming conviction of its success. I know of no man who has achieved success without hard work. Study at the great fountain of English literature and English thought. We want women who are no toys, but are able and willing to do their part in this busy world. The most important and inclusive element in success is the possession of a worthy character."

"Character is the diamond, which cuts every other stone. I beseech you be pure in heart, be worthy of your alma mater, and of your mother and father. Be most of all pupils in the school of Christ, that after you have graduated from all earthly schools and the titles of their essays are as follows:

Edith Blair, Wyoming, O., "A Day with My Camera";

Alice Gertrude Burdall, Evanston, Ill., "Dreams";

Nora Judy Burroughs, Edwardsville, Ill., "Mental Indolence";

Commencement Day Exercises.

The observances of commencement week at Lasell Seminary were brought to a close Wednesday afternoon with the annual alumni association luncheon and meeting. The alumni meeting was called to order at 3.30, and after prayer the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, was introduced. Her subject was "Some Social Aspects of the Modern Education of Girls."

She said: "The work of the world, young ladies, is to be done in cities. The wrecks of our modern civilization are flung up daily at our feet, and furnish the problem which we must grapple with."

"There are four great evils to be met, ignorance, sickness, poverty and sin. This is the awful problem which we are to solve. We are to take the world as it is, and down our streets and breaks our hearts. From ignorance comes the awful trio which follows. We have no right not to know. What are the women of education doing? In our Massachusetts schools today there are more than half a million children, and 11,000 of their teachers are women. The schools of New England have passed into the hands of the women. We are the trainers of those who will cast our ballots and rule our homes 10 and 15 years hence."

"The time will come when the school and seminary will conquer the sanitarium and the asylum. The educated woman can find no time for nerves or parties."

At the business meeting of the alumni these officers were elected: Mrs. Nellie Ferguson Conant, 87 president; Miss Edith Gale, 89, vice-president; Miss Jessie Macmillan, secretary, and Miss Nellie Richards, treasurer.

It was voted to allow the members of the association to invite gentlemen friends to the midwinter reunion, Feb. 22, and a committee, consisting of Mrs. Lizzie Whipple Peirce, Mrs. Nellie F. Conant, Mrs. Ella Richardson Cushing, Miss Jennie Arnold, Miss Ethel Lord and Miss Gilman, was appointed to make the arrangements.

After the meeting the alumni luncheon was served, and a musical entertainment was provided.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison, headache, indigestion, constipation, nervousness, yield to Electric Bitters. 20c. and $1.00 per bottle at J. G. Kilburn's Drug Store, Nonantum, and Bernard Billings', Newton Upper Falls.

Death of W. H. Mendell.

Mr. William H. Mendell of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company died at the Massachusetts General Hospital early Wednesday morning. He was born at Great Falls, N. H., in 1833. He learned the iron moulder's trade, and early in his life he became interested in fire alarm telegraph. After working at his trade a few years he went West, and through the influence of his brother-in-law, John F. Kennard, who was in the employ of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company, secured a position as aid in the installation of a fire alarm equipment at St. Louis, Mo.

After the completion of the plant at St. Louis he performed similar service at New Orleans, and was engaged at Charleston, S. C., in putting in a fire alarm system there when Fort Sumter was fired upon. He was a man of intense Northern proclivities, and did not hesitate to express his opinion and his loyalty to the North. He was waited upon by the vigilance committee, and experienced considerable difficulty in getting over the line. He continued in fire alarm work during the civil war and in connection with John F. Kennard and Joseph B. Stearns, who was superintendent of the fire alarm telegraph in Boston, and others became one of the owners of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company. He secured many large contracts, among them being those at Chicago, Cincinnati, Quebec, Montreal, Louisville and Buffalo.

In 1868 he severed his connection with the company, and for a time engaged in other business, resuming his position in Boston in 1870, and continued in the fire alarm business uninterruptedly to the present time.

He was a member of the Newton Club and of the Newton Unionist Church. He had lived in Newtonville for many years, his residence being at 55 Washington park. A widow survives him.

The Watertown selectmen granted the West End a location for double tracks on Glen street, on condition that the company paves the street from curb to curb. The street is so narrow that if double tracks are placed upon it, it would be impossible to keep the road bed at the side in even passable condition, and the selectmen thought, curiously enough, that if the double tracks made paving a necessity, the road ought to pay for it. Naturally, such unwarped of presumption in the officials of a little place like Watertown made the West End officials very indignant, and they declared they would not accept the location under those conditions, when a great city like Boston gives them the use of all its streets without restrictions, or thought of payment or pavement, and Newton not only gives them a location but widens its streets for their accommodation; they cannot understand any attempts to make them give some return for their monopolizing of thoroughfare. Our Newton aldermen are much broader-minded men, and on that part of the street in Newton, they granted the West End a location without any restrictions. Nevertheless one cannot help admiring the courage of those Watertown selectmen who thought they could secure some return for the giving up of a whole street to the West End corporation.

The mill tax bill will take a little slice out of Newton's tax-payers, for the benefit of such cities as Worcester, which are abundantly able to pay for the education of their children. It is of course a grab by the country members to get something out of Boston, and it is said that by the terms of the bill the really poor towns will get little or nothing, while the benefit will go to cities or towns that do not need it. Fortunately, there is good authority for saying that the bill is unconstitutional, and therefore can never be carried into effect. It is certainly curious that such communistic legislation should find so many friends in a Massachusetts legislature, but it only serves to show the spread of the paternalistic idea. If a town wishes any improvement, instead of showing some self-reliance and independence by providing it out of their own pockets, the first idea is to get it out of the state, or some other source, to tax some one, or any one, except those directly to be benefited. It seems to be one form of the idea that tramps and some other not exactly reputable people have, that the state owes every man a living, and in one way or another they are bound to get it.

The state gas and electric light commissioners have finally made their report on the terrible gas explosion on Boylston and Tremont streets in Boston. Messrs. Barker and Schaff blame the gas company and the construction commission and make a very clear statement of what was done and left undone towards making such a disaster possible. Commissioner Gifford in a minority report blames also the rapid transit commission. This is the third report upon the disaster. Judge Ely, after an inquest on the death of the victims, laid the blame upon the gas company; Fire Marshal Whitcomb in a spirit of tender consideration for those responsible for the disaster, did not place the blame upon any one. It would seem that all these reports would give the district attorney sufficient facts for him to take some action in the matter.

The assessors have finished up the inquisitorial part of their work, consisting of walking about their districts and seeing what taxable property they can discover, and are now busy in writing up the results. They found a large number of new houses along the boulevard, one precinct of a ward showing nearly a quarter of a million in new houses alone. They also found a large increase in business blocks, many of them having now been finished and occupied by tenants, and Ward Seven will show a large increase from this item alone. Of course they have nothing to state officially, but they will be very much in error if they do not discover more than the usual increase this year, in taxable property, which will of course help to keep the tax rate down, though not much if a reduction from last year's figures can be looked for.

The Legislative correspondent of the Springfield Republican, in looking over the field in the Senate for next year, mentions Senator Harwood as one who would make an excellent presiding officer, providing President Lawrence does not desire another term. But, he adds, "if the public wants to know who is going to be president, let them ask the West End who is its choice, then they will have something to go by. If the steam railroads and West End pull together, that will settle it. It is not a question of what the people desire, for they do not want to be bothered with politics, that is what they don't want. But whom do the corporations want, that is the question."

ALDERMAN DOWNS has presented a minority report on the Hospital contract, in which he figures out some amazing results, especially as to the balance the hospital had left on hand last year. If he could make this result actual instead of figureative, the Hospital trustees would be glad to pay him a good salary to act as treasurer. The report really reads like a special brief from the overseers of the poor, and seems to favor placing the hospital under the sole management of that department. It would of course be much cheaper for the city to give up the hospital altogether, and let the sick either die or get well as they can, but the great majority of Newton people do not believe in such a course, or in any petty bickering over the appropriation the city makes. If it is desired to save money, there are hundreds of other ways in which it could be done with more credit to our humanity, such as cutting down the salaries of certain officials, who are paid much more than similar officials in larger cities, or in having the sewer department and highway department act in harmony, instead of one waiting till they can undo the work of the other.

The public criticism of the highway committee for their wasteful action in improving roads just before they are to be dug up for sewers has borne some fruit, already, it is said, and several extravagant schemes have been nipped in the bud. The committee has evidently found out that the appropriation is limited, large as it looked at the beginning of the year, and the great part of the really important work on the streets remains yet to be done. Alderman White on Monday night gave notice that it would be useless to refer any more schemes for new improvements to the committee unless the money for the same was sent along at the same time.

SENATOR HOAR says there is a lot of human nature left in the average Democrat when anything in the tariff bill comes up in which their sections are interested, they are just as eager to grab some of the benefit as the Republicans are, in spite of their professions of tariff-for-revenue only principles. It is everyone for himself and the poor consumer has the consolation of paying the bill.

The Waltham aldermen have voted to refuse all applications for druggists' licenses this year, by a vote of 14 to 5. The Waltham papers are always preaching to their readers about patronizing "home stores," but the Waltham aldermen seem to aim to make such a thing impossible. Fortunately Waltham has now two lines of electric cars to Newton.

—Mr. Fred H. Hurd of Medford spent a few days this week with relatives in this place. Fred is as robust and jovial as ever and his many friends will be pleased to know that he is associated with a prosperous concern that has not yet felt the effects of the business depression which has prevailed in this section.

—Those about the vicinity of the Wales street bridge at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, witnessed a very peculiar, and apparently at the time, a terrible accident, when the large heavy double team of Bishop's, while loaded with paper stock for the mills, went crashing through the bridge and into the water below, a fall of about 25 feet. The driver and another employee went down with the loaded team and horses, jumping as they were falling and escaping with slight bruises. The cause of the accident was the breaking of the pole. It is surprising at the little damage caused by the accident. The wagon was towed out Wednesday.

NEWTON CLUB.

Because of the stormy weather, the promenade concert to have been given Wednesday evening has been postponed until July 7.

Preceding the base ball game on June 17, between the N. C. A. A. and Newtons, at the Cedar street grounds, the club will hold an athletic contest at 2 o'clock, which gives promise of being a decidedly interesting feature. Among those who have signified their intent of participating are Champion Tom Burke, as representative of the N. Y. A. A., who will try to break the 50-yard dash record, and P. Flannigan the Irish hammer thrower. Among the events will be a mile inter-schools team race.

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are today its warmest friends. For sale by E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; Lacroix & Genest, Newton; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

LAST WEEK OF THE SESSION—THE BOS-TON SEWER BILL—THE DOCK QUESTION —MILL TAX BILL GETS THROUGH.

Beacon Hill, June 9, 1897.
Probably for the first time in the history of legislation, the honorable senators and representatives paused in the midst of what they assumed to be prorogation week, and went on an excursion, a sail down the Merrimac. The house had a very light calendar, and the senate finished up its orders of the day before it started, but the excursion of Tuesday was unprecedented nevertheless. Representatives George and Hoyt of Haverhill have a pleasure boat which they run on the river during the summer, and they asked the general court to be their guests. It was hard to refuse, especially when it was considered that there had been no trips for anybody this year. Even the prison committee has stayed at home and given hearings instead of inspecting prisons as has been its custom for years. In years past it has been the custom to go somewhere as a body, but this has rather fallen into desuetude. The last trip of the kind I now recall was in 1892, when the entire body went to Brockton and looked over the site of the sewerage disposal fields, later visiting the orchard houses of F. L. Ames in North Easton and being given a lunch in the town hall given by the Amesess. A very few members stayed at home, and the special train over the Old Colony was late so that when the advance guard of the excursionists, Mr. Carter of Wakefield, had reached the state house at two o'clock he found the minority adjourning for lack of a quorum. He protested without avail, and the majority when it reached the state house passed resolutions of indignation, which were submitted the next day. Mr. Carter opposed adjournment to go to the ball games, hence his tears.

The annual House Tunnel junkies have been given up for years.
The bill providing for the settlement of the claims of Boston relative to the use of the outfall sewer by the Charles and Neponset river valley systems of the Metropolitan district, has been engrossed by the senate, against the ardent opposition of Senator Harwood. His opposition came from a number of amendments which were put on by the committee on Sewers and means of the upper branch, evidently at the instigation of the Corporation Counsel of the city of Boston. Mr. Bailey manages to retain the bill of all six to no controversy in which the city of Boston is concerned, and no man who ever opposed him was anything but his firm friend personally. This characteristic of his makes him worth watching as a mover of bills, and the fact is appreciated; but what is not appreciated is when a man thinks he has got a bill in good shape and then finds that Mr. Bailey has used his remarkable influence with a committee to turn it over to the committee on Sewers and means of the upper branch, evidently at the instigation of the Corporation Counsel of the city of Boston. GATHERING OF GRADUATES.

ALUMNI DAY AT NEWTON BAPTIST THEO-LOGICAL INSTITUTE.

Alumni day was observed Wednesday at the Newton Theological Institute. There was a large gathering of former students present, and in spite of stormy weather the various exercises of the day were successfully carried out.

The morning's program consisted of examinations of the middle class and French students by Prof. Thomas and Mr. Williams, and at 1.30 p. m. meetings of the various classes were held at Colby hall and in the new library building.

At 3.15 p. m. the annual meeting of the alumni was held in the Baptist church, and an address was delivered by the Rev. Francis W. Bakeman, D. D., of Chelsea, on "The Danger of Overvaluation of the Critical Element in Ministerial Education." Luncheon at 5.30 in the Hills Library was followed by brief addresses by former graduates. Among those to speak were the Revs. J. K. Richardson of Brockton, W. J. Clones of Littleton, W. S. Ayres of Portland, Me., and J. H. Farley of Lawrence, and Prof. J. B. Thomas of the institute.

A business meeting followed, and officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Joseph S. Swain; vice-president, Thomas D. Anderson; secretary, George H. Whitman; treasurer, E. A. Capen; orator, O. C. S. Walker; alternate, Frank Rector; vacancy in committee on nominations, John B. Gow; committee on entertainment, E. B. Jones, F. M. Gardiner and H. G. Gay.

In The Green Mountains.

"In the Green Hills of Vermont" is the alluring title of the Central Vermont railroad's 1897 guide book for tourists and those in search of a quiet summer home. It is a publication of unusual merit, containing more than a hundred pages of entertaining text, richly illustrated with half-tone cuts of the choicest bits of Vermont scenery, and a vast amount of information calculated to give the reader a clear idea as to what the lovely Green Mountain state has to offer in the way of summer attractions. Chapters are also devoted to Lake Champlain, to the Adirondack region and to Canada resorts reached by the popular "Green Mountain Route." A five-cent stamp will secure the book by addressing T. H. Hanley, Central Vermont railroad, 191 Washington street, Boston.

—Manager Loomis of the Newtonville exchange has leased for Mr. J. L. Richards his house on Newtonville avenue, formerly occupied by Mr. Edward D. Van Tassel, to Mr. E. A. Locke of Waltham, who expects to occupy it about June 15. Mr. Locke is identified with the watch interest in Waltham.

—The rumor that Mr. Loomis was to open a "department store" in connection with his real estate business is a canard. This funny item probably originated in his wish to offset the effort which some of the enterprising real estate brokers are making to include real estate brokerage in their line of business.

—Regular meeting of the Newtonville Baptist Division was held at the residence of Miss S. B. Upham, Churchill avenue, Wednesday afternoon. There was quite a number present and a pleasant social hour enjoyed. The next meeting will be at the residence of Mrs. G. P. Cook, Prescott street, Wednesday afternoon, June 16th, at 2:30.

—The last lecture in Mr. Charlton Black's series was held Friday evening in the high school drill hall. Mr. Black's subject was "Sir Walter Scott," and during his lecture he read numerous selections from the works of the novelist. The lecture was given under the auspices of the English department of the high school, and the proceeds will be devoted to the purchase of books for the English library.

—Sunday, being Children's Sunday, will be specially observed all day at the Methodist church. In the morning, at 10:45 the pastor, Rev. Franklin Hamilton, will preach a special sermon to children, for whom seats will be reserved in the front of the church. All children will be welcome and parents are kindly invited to see that their children are present promptly. At 4 p. m. there will be a public meeting of the Newtonville Sunday school, which the public is invited cordially. At 7 p. m. the annual children's concert by the Sunday school will be held with the usual interesting exercises, followed by an annual award of prizes. All are invited. Those who bring flowers for the decoration of the church will kindly leave them at the church parlors Saturday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock.

—A meeting of the executive board of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs was held Monday forenoon in the parlors of the New church on Highland avenue. The president, Mrs. Peloubet of Auburndale, presided. Arrangements were made for the coming season's work. It was decided that the first meeting in the fall should be of a social character. The following chairmen of committees were appointed: Educational, Mrs. Bidgett; Municipal, Mrs. Dr. Mary Faxon; Social, Mrs. H. H. Carter; Mrs. J. Wellington; Mrs. Tucker; Mrs. Harwood and Mrs. Walton. It was decided that the January meeting of the Federation should be held under the auspices of the municipal committee.

—One of the most charming of early June weddings was that of Miss Elsie Means, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Elwell of Highland avenue, and Mr. Frank Cummings Shepherd of Boston, assistant engineer of the Boston transit commission, which took place Tuesday evening, at 6:30, in the New church on Highland avenue. Promptly at the appointed hour the bride party entered the auditorium by the main aisle. The six bridesmaids, dressed in pink, were Misses Helen Gilson, dressed in pink, and carrying pink fans, the gift of the bride. Immediately in advance of the bride and her father was the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Elwell, the bride's sister. At the church the bride party was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Winthrop S. Field of Taunton. The ceremony was performed by Prof. Charles H. Leonard of Tufts, who officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents. The bride was given away by her father. The ushers were Messrs. Thomas M. Keen, Chester P. Dodge, Robert Bruce Wallace, Alfred Kimball, Downes, J. Frank Nicholson and Arthur W. Dean, most of whom were the groom's classmates at Tech. The bride, a charming blonde, was gowned in ivory white satin, trimmed with chiffon and white violets. She carried a bunch of lilies of the valley. Miss Elizabeth Elwell wore pink brocade and tulle, with white lace and white roses of the varieties carried by the bride and maid of honor, arranged in striking masses against a background of tall palms. Immediately after the ceremony a largely attended reception was held at the home of the bride's father, Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Elwell, Mrs. Shepherd, Sr., and Miss Ella Shepherd, the groom's sister. Mrs. Elwell wore lavender moire velvet, trimmed with lace and white flowers. Mrs. Shepherd's costume was black satin with chiffon, and Miss Shepherd wore white India silk, with lace garniture. During the hours of the reception an orchestra, stationed in an upper hall, discoursed popular operatic airs. The house was prettily decorated with white and pink roses, and masses of the graceful asparagus vine. On their return from their wedding tour, Mr.

and Mrs. Shepherd will be "at home" at 114 Dartmouth street, Boston.

—Mr. and Mrs. Colburn of Otis street left this week for Maine, where they will remain during the summer months.

—Mr. Charles S. Dennison is having a pretty lodge built adjoining his stable on Kirkstall road for the use of his butler and family.

—Mr. Edward Payson Call and family of New York are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Whiston at their home on Highland avenue.

—Judge Hedges, private secretary of Mayor Strong of New York, was the guest last week of Dr. George H. Talbot at his home on Walnut street.

—Among those present at the meeting of the Minister's Union on Monday last, were Prof. Kishell of Boston University, and Judge J. Kennedy of Newton.

—General Hull Lodge, A. O. U. W., will observe ladies' night Friday evening, June 11th. The grand lodge will be represented by District Deputy, Wm. A. Clark.

—Mrs. George H. Shapley of Nevada street is registered at the West Point hotel, West Point, during the commencement exercises of the military academy, at which she has been a guest.

—Many of the residents of this place are learning for the first time where they reside, as the official notifications of the numbers of the lots have been left at their respective houses during the week.

—The regular meeting of Mt. Ida Council, Royal Arcanum, will be held Monday evening. Owing to the death of the late pastor, Mr. Edward Sands, an election of officers will be held on that evening.

—Michael Benn, a laborer, aged 23, living at 20 Jeffrey street, Boston, while at work on the new Walnut street bridge Wednesday morning, lost his footing and fell into the excavation, 20 feet below. He was taken to the Newton Hospital.

—Among the June weddings was that of our popular druggist, Mr. John J. Lee, and Miss Alma Schrott. The ceremony was performed Wednesday afternoon by Rev. M. J. Dolan. After a short wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Payne will reside on Bowers street.

—Newtonville people are unwilling to abandon the desire for the main post-office here, and a petition has been placed in Mr. Gaudet's drug store for a second main office to be established here, as it is impossible to change the location of the one already granted.

—Messrs. Charles L. W. Pettie, Percy G. Sile and Edward H. Woodworth graduated from Technology this week with the degree of bachelor of science. Mr. Woodworth read a paper on "An Investigation of the Rectifying Solubility Effects of Di-ionie and Tri-ionie Salts" at the class-day exercises.

—A goodly company of the clergy and laity of Newton assembled on Monday afternoon last at the Methodist church, to listen to a presentation of some of the gospels, by Dean Bennett of Boston University Law school. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Ministers' Union.

—The regular meeting of Dalhousie Lodge, F. and A. M., was held Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Worshipful Master, W. S. Slocum; senior warden, Charles A. Kellogg; junior warden, Frank Moore; senior deacon, Clarence Hainsworth; junior deacon, Robert C. Bridgman. There was a large attendance as this was the closing meeting of the Masonic year. The exercises closed with a banquet in the dining hall.

—The parlors of the New church on Highland avenue were filled Monday and Tuesday evenings by such enthusiastic and appreciative audiences, as the performances of the clever company of well-known comedians, who presented "Box and Cox" and "A Picked-up Dinner," could not fail to attract. The first mentioned piece was presented in the form of an operetta, and though it has been seen before many times in Newton, this latest production can be readily classed as one of the best. The highly amusing comedy lines, the ludicrous situations, and the catchy songs were given with fine effect, and called forth rounds of applause. Mr. Maurice Neufaud scored a hit as "Box." His singing and acting were capital. Mr. Stutson as "Cox" with his imitable pantomime, his funny make-up and his singing was irresistible. Mr. Kempton as "Bouncer" showed a clever conception of this character part, which he portrayed to the entire satisfaction of the audience. "In A Picked-up Dinner" which followed, the honors can be equally divided between the three characters, as the cast was one of even excellence. Mrs. Philip W. Carter, as "Miss Mary," was the most successful of her part, and assumed the role of Mrs. John Thompson with rare finish. Mr. Kempton was fully up to his high standard, and his work was cordially received. Miss Lucy Carter sustained the part of Biddy with true merit, and was admirably costumed to meet the exigencies of the character.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Withrow of Pawtucket are the guests of relatives here.

—Mr. and Mrs. William R. Churchill of New York are the guests of relatives here.

—Mr. and Mrs. Moses Quimby left this week for their summer home at Sandwich, N. H.

—Miss Edith Matteson graduated last Saturday from the Sloyd training school at Boston.

—Mrs. Daniels left last week for the mountains, where she will remain during the summer.

—Deputy Clark and Suite were entertained Monday evening by the A. O. U. W. Lodge at Arlington.

—Mr. and Mrs. Leon Cress of Chestnut street gave a dinner last week in honor of Mrs. Abba Gould Wolson.

—The regular meeting of John Eliot lodge, A. O. U. W., was held Wednesday evening. Several candidates were initiated.

—"Children's Day" will be observed at the Congregational church next Sunday. The morning service will be especially for them.

—The Nonantum Fife and Drum Corps will give an entertainment consisting of musical and literary renditions Thursday evening, June 24.

—Mr. George R. Wadleigh graduated from the mechanical engineering department, Institute Technology, Tuesday with a degree of bachelor of science.

—Mrs. E. N. L. Walton was re-elected vice-president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs at the annual meeting held yesterday at Great Barrington.

—A strawberry festival and lawn party will be held tomorrow evening at Miss Gates, Waltham street. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the Sunday school improvement fund.

—The Newton Ladies Home Circle will have an outing at the home of Mrs. Boit, in Wakefield, Tuesday, June 15. Meet at Union Station, Boston, at 9:30 a. m. Basket lunch. If stormy will go Friday.

—Mrs. Flora D. Sampson and Mrs. F. O. Stanley were delegates from the West Newton Women's Educational club at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs at Great Barrington yesterday.

—At the Myrtle Baptist church, last Friday evening, a delightful and well attended concert was given by the Lend-Hand Society. A collation was served. The proceeds of the affair will be used to aid the pastor.

—Sometime Wednesday evening a new house on Sherburne avenue belonging to Mr. Ryan, was broken into and a quantity of carpenter's tools, valued at $30, stolen. The chest, in which the tools were stored, was broken open with a chisel.

—Mrs. Ann Skinner, widow of Eben F. Woodworth, died Tuesday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Frederick L. Felton, Chestnut street. Deceased was 95 years of age and was one of the oldest residents of this place. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Felton.

—There is a rumor that a Boston real estate syndicate has purchased the old hotel building, and that they will tear the building down and erect a fine building on this site. A portion of the building will be utilized as a modern hotel and the remainder will contain stores and offices with the most modern conveniences.

—Miss Florence L. Henderson read several selections at a concert in Rockport, Memorial Day. She was very cordially received, and many times Miss Henderson will become a favorite as a reader, combining, as she does, much dramatic power, under perfect control, with a graceful and winning manner that gains for her at once the approval of the audience.

—It has been suggested that the city purchase a strip of land on the south side of Margin street and use it to make the street wider at the rear depot. It has some two feet before taking a portion for the drive to the depressed tracks, and now it will be almost dangerously narrow at this point. If the city decide to do as has been suggested, it will add much to the beauty of this spot as well as the safety.

—Newton lodge, I. O. O. F., will observe its 10th anniversary June 14 at a special meeting. The program will include the following program: Organ prelude, E. Burdon; singing by school; invocation, superintendent; prayer, congregation; Anthem, "Sing Alleluia Forth"; Miss Jennie G. Inman, soprano; Miss Mary Gates, E. Burdon, mezzo; Dr. E. L. Jordan, basso; Scripture reading, Asst. Supt. E. O. Burdon; prayer, past Supt. H. L. Burdon; response by quartet, "Heart Be Still"; report of secretary and treasurer, Miss Hunt; original lines, Mrs. Mary E. Pike; duet, "In the Cross of Christ We Glory," Howe, Miss Inman and Dr. Jordan; recitation primary department; singing by school; address by Rev. A. A. Berle of Brighton; anthem, quartet; cornet solo, Harry B. Inman; singing by school and benediction. The report of the secretary and treasurer, Miss Hunt, was delightfully written, and showed a successful year of work both financially and spiritually. The music under direction of E. E. Burdon was excellent. The church choir is finely balanced and show artistic finish and interpretation, in all their work. The duet gave full play to the rich voices of the soprano and baritone. The church was crowded, the speaker interesting, and all went home well repaid for having attended.

—For Saturday, June 12, Fresh killed fowl, 13 cents a lb., Fresh Salmon, 20 cents a lb. Newton Public Cash Market, 413, Centre street, Newton.

—The local branch of the W. C. T. U. will hold the last meeting of the season Tuesday afternoon in the Baptist vestry. The exercises will open with an informal reception to welcome the president, Mrs. Richard Howe, who has been in California for several months. The flower committee will continue their good work the same as last summer.

A STRANGE MEETING.

By PERCY RUSSELL.

Yes, certainly, he thought he must be followed. He looked hurriedly but searchingly round him and fancied that he could see some garment in the distance among the trees, and—yes—farther off, his eyes, used to the twilight of the forest, detected two figures or parts of figures in outline. When looking again, he could see nothing. He resumed his progress. Was his neighbor already tracking him to ascertain the whereabouts of his rich deposit of the precious gun? Shame on him if he were! And now he became aware that a tame weka was following close in his footsteps. The weka is a New Zealand fowl something like a wingless pheasant—a true apteryx and the most inquisitive creature under the sun. Whenever a man stops or rests in the bush, it must go right up to him, although usually its life pays the forfeit of its curiosity. More was a man who hated killing for sport, and this particular weka had become attached to him like a dog and often followed him about, but not being inquisitive about him often proved of use by directing his notice to anything unusual. The weka, however, did not seem to have observed what he had, and he now tramped doggedly on toward the spot where he contemplated a hard day's work.

Yes, truly somebody had been there since his last visit. There were deep furrows that he had never made and a quantity of the clear yellow gum lay about in small fragments. More felt like a man robbed. It is true he had no special title to the deposits, but it had come of late to be to him as his own property, and to a man bankrupt in fortune and happiness even a shred of something he called his own was dear and sacred. "Yes," he said to himself, "I might have guessed as much. It's those rascally Maoris who have found me out." He knelt down more closely to examine the ground when he heard a kind of scuffle on the loose ground and the weka dashed forward at an advance

ing object, while a cry from another quarter, a cry of some one in distress bewildered, for the moment transfixed him. Then he became aware of a big Maori dashing in on him with club in one hand and a spear in the other! He knew Tu Wiri Roa at a glance, the hulking, lazy, tattooed savage who had passed the summer on the beach, basking in the sun, doing a little unloading once a week and boasting of the white men that his grandfather had devoured.

More felt that his last hour had come. He had not time to reach for his gun, spear or his spade, but as the Maori struck the weka darted somehow between his feet, and in his haste he somehow stumbled, the blow fell short, and More, who had dropped forward on one knee—a trick he had learned long ago in the colony—rose, hitting upward with his fists with such force that his assailant tumbled back in a heap. More did not give him an instant to recover himself, but wrestling the greenstone mere from his grasp dealt him a stunning blow on the temple and then looked round. The Maori was no longer in sight, but he heard a noise among the branches and again a cry, a scream such as only a woman can utter, and with out waiting to reflect More dashed forward and presently caught sight of the Maori, who appeared to be dragging a body after him and was trying to gain the top of a declivity which More had often noticed in this part of the bush, but had never taken the trouble to ascend. In his present mood excitement and physical exertion were exhilarating wine to More, and he bounded up the slope with the agility of a youth. The savage saw him coming, and, dropping his burden, the form of a woman, stood at bay flourishing his mere around his head and looking out from the web of his tattoo marks with the ferocity of a demon. More did not hang back, and although his antagonist had the advantage of higher ground the two struck together with such deadly force that both were flung to pieces in a flash of fire. More was quite unhurt, although his arm was jarred to his shoulder, but the Maori clapped his hands to his eyes and, leaping down, raced by More and fled right into the thickest of the trees.

Then More glanced down at the motionless form on the ground. It was a woman, still fair, and as she lay on her back with her face upturned and ghastly in the green twilight he recognized at a glance his wife.

While More was endeavoring to revive the wife thus unexpectedly and, as it seemed, miraculously brought face to face with him after such a long and terrible separation, he heard shouts and presently found himself in the center of quite a little party, headed by the absentee settler, his neighbor.

Mrs. More, who very partially revived, was carried away on a bed of branches to the house of Mr. Mugent, who had led a party out to look for her, and while walking back, for he insisted on

More accompanying him, he explained that Mrs. More had entered his family in Devonshire, and that when he had determined to return to New Zealand and resume occupation of an estate there that had been his uncle's Mrs. More declared that she must go, too, for she had a presentiment that her husband had gone to the colony. "We were all very fond of your wife," said Mr. Mugent, "from the first and dreadfully sorry for you both. You had no sooner disappeared than Mrs. More was full of remorse for having behaved as she did. She had led a dreadful life of misery with her father, although a fair outside was put on things, and it seems that she had no idea that you could not afford the style in which she wished to live. When we arrived here, we happened to hear down at the port of your eccentricity in living all by yourself in a whare up here, and your wife immediately declared that Providence had brought her near you. We did not know what to do or what to advise, as you had the character, excuse me now, for being just a little misanthropic and unneighborly, and we were too anxious to bring about a reconciliation to precipitate matters too soon. Your wife, in spite of all we could say, would go down to your whare and peer in and bring away some of your flowers. Then we were warned that two Maoris of bad character were prowling about, and this induced me on missing her to-day to come down with some of my people to see that no harm happened to her. However, all has ended well, and I think you cannot do better than stay with us, at all events until we see how Mrs. More gets on."

There was a sincerity in Mr. Mugent's manner that went to More's heart. He felt at once heartily ashamed of his moroseness, and he felt, too, all his old tenderness come flooding back as he thought, with a thrill, of being once more under the same roof with his wife. The Mugent home was a good specimen of a sheep station, a little dilapidated through being shut up for some time, but otherwise well appointed, and to More—used so long to a rough whare or the rude accommodation of the poorer houses down at the port—it seemed veritably a palace. Then Mrs. Mugent and her three daughters were so very kind, and they appeared to be so very fond of Beatrice, that he said to himself he evidently had not known what a treasure he really had. Mrs. More revived that evening. Happily she had not sustained any serious injury from the rough treatment she had received from the Maori, and she recognized and kissed her husband with a fervor and sweetness that made a new man of him at once. As Mr. Mugent said, he looked already ten years younger. His wife would have said much of her remorse for all the injury she had caused him. But More would not hear a word of self-condemnation. He was overjoyed beyond expression to recover his wife, and he was besides heartily tired of his solitary unsocial life, and ashamed of the unworthy way in which he had squandered his gains away periodically.

Mr. Mugent visited the gum deposit that More had discovered. The Maori had, it appeared, dug out a good deal, but had only heaped it up for future removal. "After," remarked Mr. Mugent significantly, "they had murdered you and buried you in place of the fossil." The gum was of fine quality, worth £150 per ton on the London market, and Mr. Mugent at once offered to buy the deposits of More on generous terms. It was also arranged that More should have a post on the estate as manager, and this was evidently because Mr. Mugent had grown too fond of Mrs. More to be reconciled to losing her.

More was overwhelmed with his new-born happiness and determined, while exerting himself for the interest of the Mugents, to work up his own neglected holding. He was not troubled again by the vagabond Maoris. Tu Wiri Roa had received a wholesome chastisement, and as for Tangaroa, who shivered his mere against that wielded by More, it appeared that he had an eye cut out by one of the splinters that flew round his head, and this greatly quelled his fighting ardor.

More was never tired of telling Beatrice that she had saved his life through following him as a loving shadow, and she would laughingly call him "her fond, foolish boy," and declare that the weka deserved all the credit, for it was that ungainly, awkward, wingless, inquisitive fowl which, getting between Tu Wiri Roa's feet, made him stumble and miss his blow at a critical moment. And Mrs. More went on, "If you had been one of those horrid let us go out and kill something men, you would never have left one little weka alive to save your wife and restore you to me, and me to forgiveness and happiness unspokeable."

NEWTON CEMETERY CORPORATION.

Forty-third Annual Meeting Held Wednesday Afternoon—Officers' Reports—Election of Trustees and Other Business.

The forty-third annual meeting of the Newton Cemetery Corporation was held in Supt. Ross' office on the grounds Wednesday afternoon. The usual number of trustees and lot-owners were present. About 3.30 o'clock vice-president Warren P. Tyler called the meeting to order. The records of the last meeting were read and accepted.

Supt.-Ross read his annual report which stated that 36 monuments and 111 tablets have been erected during the year. 237 interments have been made making the whole number 4694. The chapel has been in use 21 times. 52 lots have been purchased and 5 re-purchased making the total number of lot-owners 1434. About 6200 days labor has been performed by the workmen. The expenditures were $4781.33. About 500 lots of 300 feet each are graded ready for sale worth besides perpetual care about $130,000.

The report of the treasurer was next read which showed that the sale of lots from June 1, 1896, to June 1, 1897, had amounted to $10,923.75. An increase of $4,362 had been made to the perpetual care fund. Also that the assets above the liabilities amounted to $9632.34.

The report of the trustees was read by Mr. Tyler in the absence of the president, for year ending June 1, 1897.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES OF NEWTON CEMETERY CORPORATION.

The trustees refer to the reports of the treasurer and superintendent for detailed information of the business of the last year.

The cemetery grounds have been kept in the usual good condition and some improvements have been made. Among these a canal for the drainage of the graves and edge-stones on the main avenue from the house to the level ground near the front gate, and also on the side avenue. They are neat and handsome and promise to be durable.

The number of interments in the last year was larger than for any previous year, and there was an increased use of the chapel and receiving tomb.

The increase of the Perpetual Care Fund for the year was $4362, and it now amounts to $97,735.46. Another year will probably carry it above the point we have been looking forward to for some time—$100,000.

The sales of lots for the year amounted to $10,923.75. A large proportion of the lots sold were on the slope west of the chapel, which was recently graded; so that that important improvement is justified financially as well as esthetically.

An unpleasant difficulty has been encountered in the lowering of the water in three of the ponds, which have been agreeable features of the grounds. The explanation we have been able to discover for this change of the water level is that the sewer, or the drain under it, has tapped the subterranean streams in the vicinity. We have presented the case to the sewer committee of the city council, and negotiations for compensation are now pending. As the cemetery is not managed for profit, but for the use of the people of Newton, and in a way which enables all the citizens to take pride in it, we hope for liberal consideration on the part of the city government.

Necessary work has been done on the avenues. The houses owned by the corporation and occupied by the employees have been repaired and improved. The old spruces on the Beacon street boundary, which had become ragged and unsightly, have been removed and the border planted with flowering shrubs.

A change has been made in the financial management of the corporation by electing Mr. Otis Pettie, treasurer at a salary of $500. Mr. Ross, the superintendent having voluntarily consented to accept a smaller compensation when relieved of the practical work of the treasurer heretofore done by him.

The superintendent, Mr. Henry Ross, and his assistant, Mr. H. Wilson Ross, continue to merit the confidence of the board.

REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

WAGON, HORSES AND MAN HURLED INTO CHARLES RIVER AT LOWER FALLS.

One of the most peculiar accidents, and at the same time most remarkable escape, occurred Tuesday evening at Newton Lower Falls.

About 6.30 a large drag, belonging to the Bishop mill company, with two men on the seat and a load consisting of nearly four tons of paper stock, was descending the steep hill leading to the Charles river bridge on Wales street, at a lively pace. As the driver turned the horses to swing into the circle, and the whole load swung violently against the railing of the bridge.

There was a crash, which served to warn the driver and his companion, and as the wagon and horses crashed through the railing they sprang from their places.

One landed in the river free of the team and scrambled ashore in safety. The second man caught hold of some bushes on the bank and drew himself to a place of safety.

The momentum of the heavy team carried wagon and horses over the edge of the bridge and into the river, a sheer fall of 18 feet into four feet of water.

The spectators rushed to the parapet expecting to see the horses mangled and drowned, but were surprised to see them clear themselves from the wagon, and wade leisurely up stream until they could reach shore.

The wagon load floated off, and was drawn ashore at the mill a few rods down stream. Investigation showed that the wagon was uninjured and it was raised from the bed of the stream Wednesday. The only damage resulting from the accident was the breaking of the harness.

A. H. Hatter, with E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I have never before given a testimonial in my life. But I will say that for three years we have never been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, and my wife would as soon think of being without flour as a bottle of this Remedy in the summer season. We have used it with all three of our children and it has never failed to cure—not simply stop pain, but cure absolutely. It is all right, and anyone who tries it will find it so."

With the coming of night women are careful to bar the doors of their homes against the intrusion of robbers and assassins. There are more dangerous enemies than either the burglar or murderer against which few women take proper precautions. A woman may own the most magnificent jewels and the costliest plate, but after all she is a mortal, and her health is her most precious possession.

It is this that she fails to guard against the dangers of weakness and disease of the distinctly womanly organism. Nearly every complaint from which women suffer has its inception in troubles of this nature, and is continually aggravated by them.

An unfailing remedy for all weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine, and the multitude of ills that follow in this train is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on these organs and makes them strong and healthy. It prepares for happy, healthy widowhood and capable, almost painless motherhood. Over 90,000 women have testified to its wonderful merits. No honest druggist will offer something else as "just as good."

"While I was living at Eagle Rock, Botetourt Co., Va.," writes Mrs. G. A. Connor, of Allegheny Spring, Montgomery Co., Va., "a lady friend came to me and said: 'My daughter, aged 15 years, has repeated hemorrhages at the nose, and she has never the necessary incontinence of womanhood.' I advised her to get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The lady purchased one bottle and it cured her daughter. She was well and happy when I left there."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical

Adviser is a physician that is always in the house, ready to give advice and assistance any moment, day or night. It contains 1,008 pages, 300 illustrations, and several chapters devoted to the reproductive physiology of women. Over a million women own and value it. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

NONANTUM.

—Mrs. Alfred Popper sailed on the Gallia last week for England.

—Mary McDonald of Newton Centre lost a sum of money on Watertown street last Friday evening.

—The large two-family house at the corner of Beach and Crescent streets will be sold at auction tomorrow by R. Forknall.

—The Sons of Temperance held the last of this season of the monthly meetings in St. Elmo hall. The speakers were Messrs. Fred Feary and Francis Tolman.

—Timothy Malloy, who was wanted last August by the police to answer to a charge of illegal liquor selling, but who left town before the case was tried, was arrested last Sunday morning by Sergeant Kennedy of the O'Halloran. The case was called Monday morning and continued for one week.

—The Nonantum club held its annual meeting at the club house on Watertown street, Monday evening. The principal business was the election of officers, which resulted in the choice of the following: Mason E. Stearns, president; John E. Butler, vice-president; Herbert Deakes, secretary and treasurer; Dr. Thomas F. Carroll and Joseph G. Kiburn, executive committee. Plans for the summer season were considered, and the subject was submitted to a general discussion among the members. It was voted to hold a "gentlemen's night" tomorrow evening, when the ladies of the club will act as hosts. Steps will be soon taken for the improvement of the tennis courts.

—The first case which the Newton police have brought into court under the new transportation law was tried last Saturday morning before Judge Kennedy in the police court. The defendants were Moore Pignanti and Ralph Bruno, agents of Eugene Selig, a Commercial street liquor dealer. They were charged by Patrolman Davis with the illegal delivery of liquor in Adams street, May 6. Sgt. Clay and Patrolmen Davis and Burke of division 2 presented testimony to show that the defendants were not common carriers, that they left liquor without the signature of the receiver, that they were not provided with the books required by law and that their cases of liquor were not properly marked. F. B. Sweeney for the defense, presented no evidence, but asked for a ruling on the legal points involved. He suggested that the law was not explicit on the points involved to permit of holding his clients. Judge Kennedy refused to rule on the points involved offhand, and continued the case for a week.

—Next Sunday at the Beniah Baptist mission Mr. E. L. Curtis of West Newton will speak.

—The Twilight baseball club of this place was defeated by the Richfields of Dorchester in a game on Stearns' field last Saturday afternoon.

—Patrick Quinn of Harvard street reported the loss of a bicycle at the station house about 11 o'clock last Sunday morning. He had left the machine standing against a building near the coal yards on Washington street. Officer J. J. Davis found the machine about 3 o'clock that afternoon. It was being ridden by a boy, who claimed a man had found it and given it to him. A charge was made against the boy as his story was evidently true.

—In the St. Elmo hall on Bridge street, and amid profuse decorations of daisies, butter-cups and other wild flowers, the Sunday school scholars of the Beniah Baptist mission celebrated the second anniversary of their organization. There were recitations by the young people, singing by Miss Alice Turner, Miss Alice Butler, Mrs. Lizzie Wilson, Miss Grace Hudson and Edna Niblock. Miss Lizzie Griffin read an original poem written by herself for the occasion, and Miss Clara Chapman read a selection entitled "Welcome to the Third Year." Mr. Stephen Moore made a congratulatory address, and the service closed with the singing of a hymn.

MARVELOUS RESULTS.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to take this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would deposit mucus in the case of my wife. A rare collection of ancient curiosities, evidently collected with rare good taste; a number of antique silver coins, an ancient sword and a bank book, showing deposits amounting to $250. She was buried by her neighbors in the Newton cemetery, and her few possessions and the money which was left after the funeral expenses were paid have been handed over to the state authorities, who are engaged in the endeavor to discover her relatives."

REV. DR. HERR DELIVERS THE BACCALAUREATE TO SEMINARY GRADUATES.

In the absence of President Alvah H. Hovey, the Rev. George E. Herr, D. D., of Boston delivered the baccalaureate before the students of the Newton Theological Institute and a large congregation at the Newton Centre Baptist church, Sunday morning.

Mr. Herr said that the character of Nicodemus had been largely misinterpreted. It had been assumed that coming to the Lord as he had done, that he was a secret disciple of Christ. No statement was further from the truth, he said, and in the New Testament, on three occasions, we find evidence to the contrary.

When Christ's disciples had for the time deserted him, in the example of Nicodemus we find for one time in history that only one man stood on the side of our Lord.

Here the speaker contrasted the last hours of the Grecian philosopher, Socrates, and Christ, stating that while a period of some 400 years separated the lives of these two men, in many respects they were very much like each other. We could not, however, compare the last hours of Socrates and those of Christ, without realizing the vast difference of space that separates many from the revelations of God.

We do not get our best views of the truth through reason, but by intuition. The quality of the best preaching is not what leads men to the conclusion of the best process of reasoning. Our process of reasoning is but little more than stopping to vindicate what intuition had already discerned.

Are we not justified in saying that a teacher who brings the truth comes from God; also one who tells us that he has been oppressed by the mighty works of God? Many people say that they would believe the New Testament if the accounts of the miracles were taken away. The miracles, he said, perfectly harmonized with the rest of the story, and he was surprised that only 33 bright jewels were scattered on the earth when so many more were needed. He did not wish to comment on whether the story were true or not, but merely wished to impress the fact that they were there.

If, at the last supper, Christ had taken the disciples to a window, and pointing to a star, had told them that it was heaven, and that after leaving them he would be there, and that they would be left on earth, would it be any more amazing than what he did say—"Whither I go, ye know, and the way ye know?" and his answer to Thomas, when the latter asks how can we know the way? Jesus said to him: "I am the way, and the truth and the life."

WILL MEET IN MONTREAL.

ATTRACTIVE VACATION CONVENTION OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF INSTRUCTION.

The city of Montreal in late years has become one of the most popular tarrying places for the summer tourist on the continent. Retailing tariffs can never serve to bar out the American visitor from his annual enjoyment of Canada's picturesque scenery, and they certainly will never temper the proverbial hospitality of the people of Montreal toward their Yankee cousins.

The members of that great educational organization, the American Institute of Instruction, are to be delighted on the fact that their annual meeting is this year to be held in this charming city by the St. Lawrence, the sessions to begin July 9 and continue till the 12th.

For various reasons this is expected to be one of the most notable conventions ever held by the Institute. It occurs in the mid-vacation season, to be held in one of the most salubrious, picturesque and historically interesting sections of North America, and will be subject to a low priced excursion rate that will place it within the reach of all.

The program of the meeting itself will be interesting to all who are in sympathy with educational attainments, and especially helpful to all grades of teachers and school officers. The Dominion of Canada has some of the brightest speakers and strongest educational thinkers of America, and their leaders will have a place in the official program. Some of the most prominent educational workers in the United States, including both men and women, will also be heard, and one of the striking features will be a meeting in honor of Hon. Henry Barnard of Hartford, who, at the age of 87, is the most eminent living educator.

Special preparations for the accommodation of the visitors have been made by the Montreal entertainers and the committee in charge. The rates at the first-class hotels will be from $1.75 to $3.00 a day, and from $1.00 to $1.50 a day at private boarding houses. The round trip excursion fare from Boston by any direct route will be $9.00, with correspondingly low rates from other New England points. Innumerable side trips from Montreal may be enjoyed, including excursions to the Ottawa River by rail and back by boat down the St. Lawrence and the famous Lachine Rapids for $1.00 to Quebec and return by rail $2.00, or one way by boat $2.00; and from Quebec to the picturesque Saguenay River, by boat both ways, $4.00. Opportunities for independent side trips to the far-northern islands, the city of Toronto, Niagara Falls, and other noted places along the Canadian border will also be offered.

Participation in all these reduced rates will be contingent on membership in the Institute. This costs only $1.00, and membership is not restricted to those who are actually connected with school work. Applications for membership may be sent to Mr. E. W. Arthy, superintendent of schools in that city, and for out of town accommodations to W. A. Kneeland, Montreal.

Information regarding excursion tickets from Boston may be obtained at City Ticket Office, 322 Washington street, Union Station, and the principal ticket offices on the Boston & Maine system.

The tickets are good going July 5th to 9th, and good returning July 12th to 31st. Stop-over privileges will be allowed at points north of Plymouth, White River Junction, or North Conway.

The Newton Club Athletic Association nine outplayed the Murray & Irwin aggregation on the Cedar street grounds at Newton Centre, Saturday afternoon. The Newton nine went to the bat only six times while their opponents had seven chances, but the score was 18 to 0. Warren of Newton knocked out the first home run which has been made on the Newton Centre grounds this year, and every man on the nine hit safely with the exception of Wales, who was out with the team for the first time.

DROWNED AT RIVERSIDE.

ERNEST H. GAMMONS, A PROMISING WEST NEWTON YOUNG MAN, THE VICTIM OF A CANOE ACCIDENT ON THE CHARLES—THROWN FROM A CAPSIZED CANOE—HELP DID NOT REACH HIM IN TIME—HIS COMPANION RESCUED—BODY RECOVERED BY POLICE—THE FUNERAL.

Another of those summer fatalities that have taken place on the Charles river between Newton and Waltham, during the canoeing season for several years, occurred last Saturday evening. About 10.15 o'clock a canoe containing two men capsized on the river, midway between Riverside and Waltham, and as a result of the accident, Ernest H. Gammons, son of Mrs. T. E. Gammons of Chestnut street, West Newton, was drowned.

Mr. Gammons and a young man named Samuel Ryan of Taylor street, Waltham, had been canoeing near the Newton Boat Clubhouse, and at the close of the band concert started toward Waltham. Shortly after leaving this point they accepted a tow from a passing steam launch. When off the Wabewawa clubhouse the canoe upset, and both men were thrown in the water. Ryan managed to swim to the launch, and was dragged aboard. Gammons sank almost immediately, and did not rise again.

Police headquarters was at once notified of the affair, and a squad of officers under Sergt. Purcell at once began dragging the river. The work continued through the night but it was not until 9 o'clock the next morning that the body was found. It was brought up on a grappling iron by Officer Quilly, in the cove near the Rustic bridge on the old Pulsifer estate. This was but a few yards from where the drowning occurred. At this point the water is about 15 feet deep.

The remains were taken to West Newton and handed over to the family. To them the blow was doubly sad, made so by the fact that that day was his twentieth birthday, and a celebration had been planned.

Mr. Gammons was a civil engineer employed by Charles H. W. Wood of Boston. He had an unusually promising future, and was held in high esteem by his associates. He was a private in Co. C, 4th Regt., M. V. M., and very popular as a member of the company. He was a native of West Newton, where he had resided all his life. Mr. Gammons was a member of the Wabewawa Canoe Club, and held a high position socially.

With all the ceremony of a military funeral, the body of Ernest H. Gammons was consigned to its final resting place Wednesday afternoon.

The funeral services were held at the family residence on Chestnut street, West Newton, at 3 o'clock, and was largely attended. Co. C turned out with full ranks, in command of Capt. E. R. Springer, to pay the last honors to their comrade.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. H. Harris, of West Newton. Theodore P. Prudden, the interment was in the Newton cemetery, where three volleys were fired over the grave and "taps" was sounded by the company musician.

The Grain-O Law Suit.

Rochester, N. Y., May 25, 1897.—The great $50,000 damage suit instituted by a Michigan Cereal Company against the Genesee Pure Food Company is at an end. They settled it and took it out of court for the ridiculously small sum of $500, and, as a practical result, Grain-O is in greater demand than ever. The new plant, only just completed, is to be duplicated so that not only the old friends of the delicious food drink, which completely takes the place of coffee, but the new friends it is making every day, can be supplied. The beverage which the children as well as the adults may drink with benefit, will be furnished in unlimited quantities. Suits may come and suits may go, but Grain-O goes on forever.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Riverside Recreation Grounds.

Mr. Charles W. Hubbard, the originator of the Riverside Recreation Ground, had a party of distinguished men of Boston and Newton last Saturday, out to see how far the execution of his plan has progressed.

The Hon. Henry E. Cobb, mayor of Newton, Dr. D. A. Sargent, Dr. H. P. Bowditch, Dr. E. M. Hartwell, Dr. Curtis, Dr. Channing, Dr. Bradford, Supt. Aldrich of the Newton public schools, Chairman E. B. Haskell, Secretary Woodbury and Mr. Richards of the Metropolitan park commission, Mr. Duggan of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Wm. S. Eaton, Jr., Mr. J. T. Langford and Mr. Livingstone Cushing, all of whom are deeply interested in public spirited enterprises, the development of athletics and physical culture, were of the party.

Arriving at the grounds about 4 o'clock, they were given a sail up the river as far as the rapids and down stream to Waltham in a launch, after which Mr. Hubbard piloted them over the grounds. He did not find it necessary, however, to call attention to the beauty of the view from the club buildings or the rise of ground where the tennis courts are. That was a point which could fail to notice. After the tennis courts had been inspected and the other athletic grounds looked over, the party returned to the clubhouses and went through the house.

There is one building already occupied by clubs of students, and a larger one which is all but finished. Here there are accommodations for about 200 canoes, beside the gigantic 17-paddle war canoe and a couple of nine-paddle craft; a place set aside for the checking of bicycles; buffet, reception room and toilet room for ladies; a large cafe for general use; rooms provided with shower baths and lockers, which will be let to clubs; rooms, lockers and baths for individuals, and other accommodations of a kind not ordinarily numbered among the accessories of athletic grounds.

Not the least important of the features of the Riverside grounds is the swimming pool, into which half a dozen young men took a plunge. The superintendent of the grounds, James B. Knowlton, took the temperature of the water several times during the afternoon, and found it was 68 degrees at each reading.

Ground has been broken at a corner of the pool, where the water is some 12 feet deep, for a diving tower, which will be about 20 feet high and will have diving landings at different heights from the surface of the pool.

When the members of the party had inspected the reservation and the buildings, Mr. Hubbard entertained them at luncheon and afterward some remained to listen to the concert at the Newton Boat Club, a stone's throw away, and to review the procession of canoes that glided silently up and down the river at their feet.

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are to-day its warmest friends. For sale by E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; Lacroix & Genest, Nonantum; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

SILENT SUFFERERS.

Women do not like to Tell a Doctor the Details of Their Private Ills.

The reason why so many women suffer in silence from the multiple disorders connected with their sexual system is that they cannot bear to broach the subject to a man, even if he is a physician.

No one can blame a modest, sensitive woman for this reticence. It is unnecessary in these times, however, for a woman makes to all afflicted women a most generous offer. Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., bids every woman who suffers to write to her and confide every symptom that annoys her, and she will give her advice without charge, and that advice is based upon the greatest experience ever possessed by man or woman in this country, and extends over a period of twenty-three years, and thousands upon thousands of cases. Why suffer in silence any longer?

"I was troubled with such an aching in my back and hips, and I felt so tired all the time, and had for four years. For the last year it was all I could do to drag around. I would have such a ringing in my head by spells that it seemed as though I would grow crazy. I ached from my shoulders to my feet and was very nervous. I was also troubled with a white discharge. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., received a prompt reply and followed her advice, and now I have no backache and begin to feel as one ought; in fact, I never felt better in ten years than I do now. I thank God that I went doctoring with Mrs. Pinkham when I did, for if I had not I know I would have been in my grave."

—MRS. NELLIE E. COLONY, Nahma, Mich.

my sister, when you can get help for the asking? Don't fear to tell her everything. The case of Mrs. Colony, whose letter to Mrs. Pinkham we publish, is an illustration of the good to be received from Mrs. Pinkham's advice; here is a woman who was sick for years and could get no relief—at last in despair she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham—received in return a prompt, sympathetic and interested reply. Note the result and go and do likewise.

—Monday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock a decidedly interesting hearing was given by the board of health on the petition of Dwight Chester for a barn on Langley road, Thompsonville district. There was large opposition present and the hearing lasted until six o'clock. Mr. Dwight Chester, the petitioner, was the first to speak, stating to the board sundry particulars relative to the erection of the barn. Mr. George Ward, the owner of some 110 acres of land at Thompsonville, on a part of which Mr. Chester desires to locate his barn, said that owning as much land as he did, he desired to dispose of a portion of it to Mr. Chester. The barn in question was to be built near a small stagnant pond which he intended to fill up and build a road through that doing away with the objection that filth from the barn might run into it. The barn would be large enough to accommodate 20 cows, but as the building was to be entirely modern in every particular and built according to the regulations of the board of health, he did not see where there could be any objection to it. The opposition was represented by Mr. D. D. Caulk, a Boston lawyer, who was not backward about making the case painfully evident that there was no love lost between Mr. Ward and the residents in the vicinity of where the barn was to be built. His remarks in part were to the effect that Mr. Ward was an oppressor of poor people in selling land for the purpose of placing a cow barn in their midst. The people in that vicinity, while poor, still had some rights and should be exempt from any such annoyance. There had been a great many cases of measles, scarlet fever and other diseases in that vicinity, many of which could be traced to the pond on Mr. Ward's land. Things were therefore bad enough now, without having the filth from a cow barn allowed to run into the pond. The question at issue was whether or not the board of health was to consider the health of that vicinity first, and let Mr. Chester and his milk business take a back seat. Mr. Ward thought that the residents of Thompsonville that he would if they were so many stones. Mr. Chester was not a man who was obliged to depend for his living on the selling of milk. It was only a hobby of his, and the residents thought the health of the community should first be considered. A number of others who were strongly against the granting of the petition next spoke, denouncing the position of Mr. Ward in terms decidedly far from being complimentary. They all expressed themselves extremely doubtful as to the carrying out of the improvements proposed by Mr. Ward, and desired that the board wait until the improvements were completed before granting the petition for the building of the barn. The latter part of the hearing rapidly growing into a personal wrangle between the opposition and Mr. Ward relative to the depth of his pond, how much land he owned, etc., it was closed by the chairman. The board will announce their decision on the matter next week.

—Mr. Ezra C. Dudley has returned from his southwestern ranch.

—Miss Rodell of Pelham street leaves today for her home in Poland, N. Y.

—A children's concert will be held next Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church.

—Rev. J. S. Chandler and family of Warren street have removed to Auburn-dale.

—The oldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Amos E. Lawrence has recently made them a visit of a few days.

—Mrs. Samuel M. Tourtellot is in Europe for the summer and will visit relatives in England and Scotland.

—Mr. M. D. Hicks and family of Boston have taken Mr. J. H. Edwards house on Circuit road for the summer months.

—The pupils of Miss Spear, Miss Maile and Miss Wheelock are to give a pianoforte recital in the Unitarian church parlors, next Saturday afternoon, June 12, at 2.30.

—Mr. Wm. M. Mick has accepted the position of general agent for the Guarantee Fund Life Society with headquarters at the City Hotel. His family will remain here for the present.

—"Finding the Path of Duty" was the subject of Rev. Mr. Mullins' sermon last Sunday evening. The discourse was the first in his series of practical themes for summer evenings.

—Services at the Unitarian church next Sunday at 10.30. Sunday school at 12. Confirmation and Communion services. Hale Union at 7.30 conducted by the young people. All are welcome.

—A lawn party and promenade concert, under the auspices of the Congregational church, will be given on the Charles S. Davis estate, Pleasant street, on Tuesday, June 15, from 4 to 10 o'clock. The proceeds will go to the building fund of the church. The Enterte Mandolin, Banjo and Harp Club of Boston will furnish a very attractive musical program. In the afternoon a special entertainment for the children has been arranged.

—Mr. Edward A. Haskell, son of Col. and Mrs. E. H. Haskell, was married to Miss Jennie Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Thayer, of Braintree, Mass., on Wednesday. Owing to a recent death in the bride's family the wedding was a very quiet one, and only the relatives of the contracting parties were present. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Haskell will reside on Elm street, Braintree, and will be at home October 12th and 19th.

—Within a few weeks residents of this place will enjoy the benefits of the free delivery of mail by the carrier system. The first three days of this week, and Saturday of last week, examinations for the position of carriers have been held at City Hall. There were over 140 applicants.

—The Newton Centre Improvement Association has been organized. The number will undoubtedly be left for Postmaster Ellis to choose his 19 carriers from. The examination papers of the would be carriers will be examined at Washington and the reports will soon be received. The service on the south side will be as complete as that which Newton has had for some time.

—Walter L. Caswell, a carpenter, was found wandering about the streets, in a demented condition Monday afternoon, and was sent to police headquarters by Patrol-Taffe. Caswell fell from a building a few days ago, and has since been subject to attacks of insanity. He was sent to his home in New Hampshire next morning. Caswell was again found wandering about the streets at 3 o'clock, Wednesday morning, and was locked up by Patrolman Martiner. He was found to be insane on the subject of religion. In court that morning he was committed to the Worcester asylum.

—The Newton Centre Improvement Society has made a proposition to the city in regard to the purchase of a tract of land at the corner of Boylston and Centre streets, Newton Centre, for an addition to the Newton Centre playground. The association has raised half the purchase price, and requests the city council to appropriate the remainder. The land in question adjoins the playground, and is needed to complete its development. It is at present held in bond for the improvement association by a number of wealthy gentlemen of this place, including Judge Bishop, Hon. A. C. Walworth, M. O. Rice and D. H. Andrews.

—It gives us pleasure to refer our readers to the announcement made in our advertising columns of the consolidating of two newspapers, interests so long established in this village. The estate of George Warren and Mr. J. W. Hill have incorporated under the name of Warren & Hill Coal company, for the purpose of carrying on the retail coal and wood business.

—Hill is one of our oldest merchants while Mr. Warren has for some years been identified with the wholesale coal trade in Boston. It is rumored that new methods of handling coal will be introduced by this firm which will produce results advantageous to the consumer.

—A musical of unusual interest was given at Mrs. Frederick Thaxter Parks, Devon road, on Wednesday evening, June 2. Miss Marie Schumacher's playing nothing but praise can be said of her strong, sure bowing, her artistic conception and temperamental interpretation and her friends will surely watch her progress with great interest as she certainly gives promise of becoming a finished artist. Mrs. Parks' beautiful home was simply a perfect setting for the young musicians. The artistic manner of the only boys' quartet was finer, if possible, than ever before. The lending of her home and her own gracious presence can not fail to act as an inspiration to all who are privileged to give, and also to listen, to the beautiful music one is always sure to find there.

Judge Dunbar Appointed.

In the appointment of James Roberts Dunbar, an associate justice of the superior court, to fill the vacancy in the chairmanship of the special commission on the revision of the taxation laws, caused by the death of Judge Lowell, Gov. Wolcott has made a fortunate choice. Judge Dunbar is in every way qualified for the duties of the position. He is learned in the law and he is beside an intelligent as well as a diligent worker. With Judge Dunbar in the chair, it remains probable that the commission will be able to make its report in October, according to instructions, although it was feared that the death of Judge Lowell might necessitate the asking of further time.—Boston Transcript.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La Cyene, Kas., "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation and those of others I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market." The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by E. E. Partridge, Newtonville; Lacroix & Genest, Nonantum; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

—Mr. Waterhouse, Mr. Prescott, and Dr. Wiley, and other gentlemen of Newton Centre, have been on a fishing trip to New Hampshire, and were absent nearly a week.

—A cellar for a house is being built on Griffin avenue, near the residence of Mr. E. Moulton, for Mr. A. S. Williams of Hyde street. Mr. T. D. Sullivan has the cellar contract.

—Invitations are out for the wedding of Mr. William Wallace Heckman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Heckman, of this place, and Miss Cornelia Bangs Boardman of Boston, formerly of Brookline, to take place, June 22, at Christ church, Longwood.

—At the annual meeting of the C. L. S. C., held on Monday last, the following list of officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. W. S. Richards, pres.; Mrs. A. F. Hayward, vice pres.; Mrs. S. D. Whittemore, sec'y; E. W. Warren, ass't sec'y; Miss E. M. Bacall, treas.

—The Newton Highlands branch of the Boston Flower Mission opened its work on Tuesday morning. Large contributions of flowers were received at the depot and made up into suitable bouquets for the ladies in charge. The work will be carried on Tuesday and Friday mornings during the summer.

—A lawn party will be given in aid of All Souls' Unitarian church at Mrs. H. J. Patterson's, Hartford street, Saturday afternoon, June 19th, from 2.30 to 5.30. A pretty assembly of dressed dolls will be for sale, and an attractive table of dolls' millinery will be a specialty. Ice cream and cake, candy and lemonade, also for sale. Mr. Patterson has generously provided with the music of the children's choir. A very enjoyable time is anticipated by all. If stormy it will be postponed to June 26. Ice cream and cake for children free.

—The marriage of Miss Gertrude Nelson of the Newton Highlands, and Walter Hubard Seaver of West Roxbury, took place on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, at the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Nelson, which was attended by the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was charmingly attired in a white orizandie gown, with tulle veil, and carried white roses. The groom was in a suit of black, decorated with ferns, palms, potted plants, wild blackberry, etc. Rev. Mr. Havens, assisted by Rev. Mr. Phillips, performed the ceremony, after which a wedding supper was served. The happy couple left for a wedding trip, and on their return will go to housekeeping at her home on Hartford street, and will be "at home" after Sept. 1st.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mr. D. F. Welsh has returned from Colorado.

—Albert Theviagre has removed to Needham.

—Mr. George Chambers has purchased a handsome new Goddard buggy.

—George Chamberlain and family have taken a house on Central avenue.

—The local cricket team were defeated at Newton last Saturday afternoon.

—Next Sunday evening at 6 o'clock a children's concert will be held at the Baptist church.

—The auction sale by H. A. Sherman on the Needham side has been postponed until this afternoon.

—Conductor A. Bennett of the Newton & Boston street railway has with his family removed to Needham.

—Children's Sunday will be appropriately observed at the Methodist church next Sunday with special services.

—The repair department and a part of the Newton Rubber works has been removed to Pearl street, Boston.

—The morning of Wednesday, June 16, will be observed in the Wade school as a special day. There will be an exhibit in the school hall of drawing, science, sewing, language, sloyd and kindergarten. All are most cordially invited.

—The Newton Upper Falls Athletic Association enjoyed a banquet in the club hall on High street, Thursday evening last week. A pleasing entertainment program was furnished by Prof. Bender of Boston, assisted by other talent.

—About 12 o'clock Wednesday noon a platform car loaded with paving stones and being hauled over the electric car tracks by a box car, left the rails on Woodward street. Traffic along the line was considerably delayed, but no damage resulted.

—A petition signed by a number of residents of this place, was presented to the city government last Monday evening asking that Eliot street from Chestnut street to the river, be widened. The widening of this street is apparently necessary on account of the fact that it is traversed by well as electric cars. It could be easily widened as there is considerable vacant land on both sides.

—The Wade school has been presented by Mrs. Levi C. Wade with a most valuable collection of framed photographs. Mr. Levi C. Wade, for whom the school is named, was the first master of the school, and these pictures are presented in memory of him. The children of Upper Falls are indeed fortunate in coming under the influence of such masterpieces of art, for we believe the environment of the school room do much to widen a child's horizon and to deepen and strengthen his ambition. It will repay the people of the vicinity to visit the school and see this collection.

—New Designs in needle work are now on exhibition by Walter M. Eddy, 144 A Tremont street, Boston, and the ladies of Newton are invited to call and see them.

The Famous Hudson River Chain.

There are not many people who would recognize in the name Samuel Wheeler a person who did valuable service for our country in the war of the Revolution. It was he who made the famous Hudson river to stop the British war ships from ascending the stream. At the time General Washington was puzzled about defending the river.

"I wish I could get a chain made, but that is impossible," he said, and General Mifflin, overhearing the remark, exclaimed: "Not so. We have a man in the army, a townsman of mine, one Wheeler, who can make you such a chain."

General Washington had Wheeler brought to him, and said: "I want a chain to put across the North river to stop the British ships. Can you make it?"

"I can," replied Wheeler, "but I cannot do it here."

"Then," said Washington, "I will cheerfully give you permission from the army to do so, for badly as we want such men as you, I cannot afford to keep you."

Mr. Wheeler made the chain, and its links were hauled across New Jersey, to be finally strung across the river, where it did good service. By building a fire under one of the links and then using a sledge hammer and a chisel, it was ultimately cut apart.—Harper's Round Table.

The Death of Willie Lincoln.

In St. Nicholas Mrs. Julia Taft Bayne gives an interesting glimpse of "Willie and Tad Lincoln," who were playmates of her brother, Budd. Mrs. Bayne gives the following account of the death of Willie Lincoln: On Feb. 1 Budd had a severe cold and was kept in for a few days, and Tad reported that "Willie had a cold too." When Budd returned from a visit, he said: "Willie is dreadfully sick. He talks about me and the pony all the time." My mother went to inquire, and Mrs. Lincoln told her they feared typhoid fever.

Sometimes the president would come in, stand awhile at the foot of the bed, and go out without speaking. Once he laid his arm on Budd's neck as he sat at the bedside, and, leaning over, smoothed Willie's hair.

Although on Feb. 20, at noon, my mother brought news from the White House that Willie was better, saying that he had held Budd's hand and knew him. Willie died at 5 o'clock of that day. Tad was overcome with grief and was ill for some time after.

They Made the Turn.

"Oh, it'll be done!" said Farmer Bruce as he shifted his seat from a soapbox to a buckles chair just vacated. "Nobody 'most would believe it 'less he seen it."

"Don't seem possible," said the blacksmith from his perch on the counter.

"Well, 'tis," insisted the farmer. "When I was doing a job-a-draggin' fun Uncle Josh 'bout 30 years ago, he, bein one of them sarn clecklers, cressed me down with a hickory sprout 'cause he said I wasn't lettin' th' drag lap 'cordin to his orders. I was 'bout 's hot tempered as Uncle Josh an' pretty soon when he was leamin' over th' fence talkin to some neighbor he stepped on th' road I slips up abind him with a beard an' gives him a crack that you could a-heard a quarter of a mile."

"Course he took after me, an' he let out a yell that skeered th' oxen, an' they went scatterin' over that thar plowed field with th' drag flouncin round like th' tail of a kite. You never see such a doggone scamperin as they was with them two steers bellerin at every jump. Uncle Josh whoopin like mad an me a-makin' short turns when he'd git 'go near. Finally he had to go to look after th' oxen, fur they was anchored to a stump an' fillin th' air with their heels, tails an' noise. I wouldn't lend no hand till he 'greed to call it all even. Then, sir, we foun th' yoke up side down an th' off ox on th' high side an th' high ox on th' off side. I could never figger out how 'twar done, but 'twar."

"I've seen it, too," said the storekeeper. "Don't know whether th' critters stan on their heads or turn sumersets. But if you tie their tails together they can't make the turn."—St. Louis Republic.

Picking the Winners.

At progressive card parties many different methods are in vogue to count up the games won and lost at the end of the evening in order to determine who are the prize winners. One of the most popular methods which have recently been introduced is to puncture the score cards of the players with a punch of some fancy design similar to that used by railroad conductors.—New York Mail and Express.

—Stone White and J. D. Norton, both of Waban school, left for their homes in the West, yesterday.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brown, formerly of Newton Highlands, are at Mrs. De L. Shepley's for the summer.

—Mr. F. W. Webster and family have closed their house and taken their departure for the seashore for the summer.

—R. C. Batchelder is proving himself quite a "phenom" in winning, taking second in the 880 yard run of the interscholastic games at Cambridge, last Friday.

—The little Misses Lillian Buffum and Madeline Small have just recovered from a long and severe illness and greatly appreciate being out and with their playmates once again.

—Mr. Charles J. Buffum's chorister glee club, composed of 14 boys, took part in the services held by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company in the Old South church, Boston, last Monday.

—Bishop Lawrence of Boston administered confirmation to ten candidates at the Church of the Good Shepherd, last Thursday evening. Six of them were presented from this place by the pastor and four were from out-of-town.

—Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Clark have sent out invitations for their reception at Windsor hall on Friday, June 11th, at half past three o'clock. The young ladies of the school and the guests will listen to an address by Dr. Helen L. Webster of Wellesley college.

—A musical by the pupils of Miss Alice Cutler of Abundant, assisted by Miss Grace Parker of Arlington, was given at Waban hall last Saturday afternoon. Her pupils of this place, who took part, were Edith Childs, Jesse Gould, Margaret Davidson, Eliot Robinson, and Charles Flint. The hall was well filled and each player was warmly applauded.

—On Saturday afternoon last a musical was given in Waban hall by some of Miss Cutler's pupils, assisted by Miss Grace Parker of Arlington. The hall was beautifully trimmed with daisies, festooned in long chains about the chandeliers and banked with green in the window seats. An interesting program was presented, and warmly applauded by the friends present.

—Next Sunday, being Trinity Sunday, will be a day of special interest for the Church of the Good Shepherd. The morning service will be at 10.30 o'clock and will include morning prayer with a sermon by the rector, Rev. Wm. Hall Williams. As this day marks the close of the school for the season, the sermon will be specially addressed to the children of the parish, and at the close of the service there will be a presentation of gifts to members of the Sunday school in acknowledgment of faithful attendance. The afternoon service at 4 o'clock will constitute a part of the annual commencement exercises of the Waban school. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Charles S. Murkland, A. M., Ph. D., president of the New Hampshire college.

NEWTON.

—Pianos, Farley, 433 Washington street.

—Fine French and hall clock repairing in all its branches at W. A. Hodgdon's, French building.

—Developing and printing for amateurs done by E. E. Snyder.

—Mr. William E. Seales of Galveston, Texas, is at home for his usual vacation.

—Watch, Clock and Jewelry Repairing, Mason's, 390 Centre street, Eliot block.

—Mr. Sydney Harwood and family are occupying their cottage at Point Allerton.

—Up to date men's Vicid shoes in black and colors, J. McCammon, Newton & Aub.

—Mr. E. S. Hamblen and family left Thursday for their summer home at North Scituate.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Foster of Copley street are guests at the Cottage Park Hotel, Winthrop.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Corey left this week for Pt. Allerton, where they will spend the summer.

—Barber Bros. are to move the first of August to the two western stores in the new Associates block on Centre street.

—Mr. L. L. Garrison, 2nd, was best man at the wedding of Mr. Alexander C. Duncan to Miss Florence J. Griffin at Roxbury, Tuesday.

—Miss Ina F. Haskell, who has been visiting Dr. Frisbie's family for the past month, returns tomorrow to her home in Dover, N. H.

—The Misses E. and M. A. Ball have removed from Eldridge street to 433 Washington street, just above Lowell street, Newtonville.

—Simpson Bros. are laying a very handsome artificial stone pavement about the new station, and the railroad evidently intends to have the surroundings an ornament to the city.

—William Ferguson, a Newtonville painter, fell from a ladder Saturday afternoon while at work on a house on Church street, and broke his leg below the knee. He was taken to the Newton hospital.

—The Thompson house on Pearl street, belonging to James Stevenson of Boston, was sold at mortgagee's sale on Monday at 3 p. m. There was not a large attendance and the place was bid in for Mr. Stevenson for enough to cover the mortgage and interest. Mr. Elliot J. Hyde was the auctioneer.

—At a meeting of the Periodical Circle of Grace church, held last week, the following were elected: President, Henry B. Poole; vice-president, Amy Shapleigh; secretary, R. G. Garrison; treasurer, Mr. Hamblen; executive committee, the above officers and Grace George, Annie Wilson and Ethel Spears. The object of this circle is to send reading matter to the missionaries, teachers and poor districts.

—A pleasant social event in Newton last Friday evening was a reception tendered by George E. Merrill of the Immanuel Baptist church by his parishioners. The reception was held in the church parlors from 8 to 9. Rev. Mr. Merrill was assisted by the officers of the church and received the congratulations of a large number of his parishioners and other Newton friends on his return from an extended tour in Europe. A musical entertainment followed the reception.

—The Newton Journal has removed from Eliot block, Elmwood street, to larger and more convenient quarters across the track, where the north store in the Nonantum block has been fitted up especially for the printing business. Moving a printing office is no easy task, but the work was begun last Friday night, and completed on Saturday, and on Monday the Journal office was ready for business. The Journal started in life on the opposite corner from its present location, so it is now in its native air, and we hope success will attend it, even if its location is not quite so convenient for the public as that of the GRAPHIC office.

—On the playground at Newton Centre last Saturday afternoon the Y. M. C. A. held the fourth and last in the series of athletic contests. Several well-contested events made up an interesting program which was witnessed by a large number of association members. The summary: 100-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore; 200-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore; 400-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore; 800-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore; 1,600-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore; 3,200-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore; 6,400-yard dash—Won by C. V. THE MISSING LINK

By RODRIGUES OTTOLENGUI.

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

"The object of my visit," began Mr. Barnes, "is of such grave importance that I approach it with hesitation, and I may even say reluctance. Will you give me your closest attention?"

"I understood from your note," replied Mr. Mitchell, "that you wished to consult me in regard to some case which you are investigating. As you are well aware, I take the keenest interest in the solving of criminal problems. Therefore proceed. But first let me light a Havana. A good cigar always aids my perception."

The two men were in the sumptuous library of Mr. Mitchell's new house, which he had bought for his wife shortly after their marriage. It was 10 in the morning, and Mr. Mitchell, just from his breakfast room, was comfortably attired in a smoking jacket. After lighting his cigar, he threw himself into a large Turkish chair, rested his head upon the soft cushioned back and extended his shaggy feet toward the grate fire, his legs crossed. As he blew little rings of smoke toward the detective, he seemed absolutely unsuspecting of the story about to be told.

Mr. Barnes, on the contrary, appeared ill at ease. He declined a cigar, and without removing his overcoat, he leaned his left arm on the low marble mantel as he stood talking, his right being free for gestures when he wished to emphasize a point.

After a brief pause he began: "While I am not officially connected with the regular police, my young friend Burrows is, and is highly esteemed by the superintendent. You will remember him in connection with that case up in New Hampshire. On that occasion he held opposite views from mine and we worked against each other. But he learned his lesson, and since that time we have been close friends. Now he often consults me when puzzled."

"Somewhat as you have recently honored me?" interjected Mr. Mitchell. "Precisely!" said Mr. Barnes. "Burrows called upon me about noon on last Sunday. The story which he had to tell was the most remarkable in some respects that I have heard. Briefly it is as follows: As you know, it is common practice among speculating builders to erect a row of houses, finishing them at one end first, so that, not infrequently, one or two of the row may be sold while the mechanics are still at work at the other end. In this manner ten houses have been built in this immediate vicinity."

"In the street just back of me," said Mr. Mitchell.

Mr. Barnes watched him closely at this moment, but he seemed entirely composed and merely attentive. The detective proceeded: "It appears that two of these houses have been sold and are already occupied. The next four are completed, and the sign 'For Sale' appears in the windows. The others are still in the hands of the workmen. The four which are for sale are in the care of a watchman. They are open for inspection during the day, but he is supposed to lock all the doors before going to his home in the evening and to open them to the public again on the following day. According to this man, he locked all the doors of these four houses on Saturday night at 6 o'clock and opened them again at 8 on Sunday morning. Between 8 and 9 he showed two parties through one of the houses, and after dismissing the last was sitting on the stoop reading the morning paper, when he was startled by hearing a scream."

"A moment later he saw two women rush out of the house next to where he sat, and from their actions it was evident that they were terribly frightened. It was some time before he could get any lucid explanation from either, and when he did he understood them to intimate that some one had been murdered in the house. He asked them to show him to the spot, but they most positively declined. He therefore, with unusual display of common sense, summoned a policeman and with him visited the room indicated by the frightened women, who made no attempt to run away, though they again refused to go into the house, even with the officer. What the two men found was horrible enough to account for the women's actions. In the bathtub lay the body of a woman, the head, hands and feet having been cut off and removed."

"I should say that under these circumstances identification would be most difficult," said Mr. Mitchell, "unless indeed the clothing might afford some clue."

"The body was nude," said the detective.

"In that case, you have to deal with a man who has brains."

"Yes! The murderer has adopted just such methods as I would imagine that you would pursue, Mr. Mitchell, were you in his predicament."

Mr. Mitchell frowned very slightly, and said: "You offer me a doubtful compliment, Mr. Barnes. Proceed with your case. It is interesting, to say the least."

"It grows more so as we proceed, for we have once more an evidence of the futility of planning a crime which shall leave no clew behind."

"Ah! Then you have found a clew?"

Mr. Mitchell removed his cigar to speak, and did not resume his smoking, but seemed more attentive.

"Listen!" said the detective. "The policeman immediately notified his superiors, and by 10 o'clock Burrows was at the house, having been detailed to make an examination. Having done so, and recognizing that he was face to face with a crime of unusual importance, he hastened to solicit my assistance, that I might be early upon the scene. I am satisfied that I reached the house before any material alteration had been made in any of those small and minute details which are overlooked by the careless eye, but which speak volumes to one with experience."

"I suppose, then, that you can describe what existed from your personal investigation? That is more interesting than a report at secondhand."

"I went over the ground thoroughly, as I think you will admit when I have told you all. Here was one of those wonderful cases where the criminal exercised extreme caution to obliterate all traces of the crime. His actions could only be surmised through analytical and deductive methods. There are some facts which cannot be hidden, and from these a keen mind may trace backward. For example, the head and extremities had been removed and a minute scrutiny of the remaining parts might disclose many things."

"Ah! Here we note the triumph of mind over matter." There was just a slight sneer, which nettled the detective. Mr. Barnes proceeded with some asperity. Indeed he spoke more like himself—that is, with less hesitancy, as though heretofore he had found the story hard to tell, but that now his scruples had vanished.

"An examination of the stumps of the arms proved conclusively that a sharp knife had been used, for not only had the tendons and vessels been cleanly severed, but in two places the cartilage, capping the ends of the bone, had been shaved off smoothly."

"Come, Mr. Barnes," said Mr. Mitchell, "do not dwell so upon unimportant details."

"The weapon is always counted as a very important detail," said Mr. Barnes sharply.

"Yes, yes! I know!" said Mr. Mitchell. "But you are above the ordinary detective, and you surely perceive that it is matter of no consequence whether the knife used was sharp or dull. In either case it could be hidden or destroyed, so that it could not be found to serve in evidence."

"Oh, very well!" said Mr. Barnes testily. "I will come to the deductions concerning the neck. Here there were several points of interest. Again it was evident that a sharp knife was used, and in this instance the condition of the edge of the knife becomes important."

"Indeed? How so?"

"The most minute scrutiny of the body disclosed no wound which could have been the cause of death. Unless poison had been administered, there are but three ways by which death could have been effected."

"And those are?"

"Suffocation, either by choking or otherwise; drowning; by holding the head under the water in the bathtub, or by some moral wound inflicted about the head, either by a blow, the use of a knife or a pistol shot. I doubted the pistol, because so careful a man as the assassin evidently was would have avoided the noise. A stab with a knife was possible, but unlikely because of the scream which would surely result. A blow was improbable, unless the man brought the weapon with him, as the house was empty and nothing would accidentally be found at hand."

"To drown the woman it would have been necessary to half fill the tub with water before thrusting the victim in it, and such an action would have aroused her suspicion. Besides, the clothes would have been wet, and this would have interfered with burning them. Thus by exclusion I arrived at the belief that the woman had been choked to death, a method offering the least risk, being noiseless and bloodless."

"What has the sharpness of the knife to do with this?"

"It was, in my mind, important to decide whether the head had been removed before or after death. A dull knife would not have aided me, as a sharp one did. With a sharp knife a severing of the carotid artery before death would have resulted in a spurting of blood, which would have stained the walls or floor, so that it would have been difficult or impossible to wash away the telltale marks. But after death, or even while the victim were unconscious, a cool hand with a sharp blade could cut down upon the artery and remove it without any spurting of blood. This is the method which I have adopted, and it is the only one which would leave no clew behind."

"I should say that under these circumstances identification would be most difficult," said Mr. Mitchell, "unless indeed the clothing might afford some clue."

"The body was nude," said the detective.

"In that case, you have to deal with a man who has brains."

"Yes! The murderer has adopted just such methods as I would imagine that you would pursue, Mr. Mitchell, were you in his predicament."

Mr. Mitchell frowned very slightly, and said: "You offer me a doubtful compliment, Mr. Barnes. Proceed with your case. It is interesting, to say the least."

A "Dreadful Good Time" at Rosemary Cottage.

Rosemary Cottage, at Eliot, Maine, is the paradise of tired mothers and the children of the poor in the summer heats. The two weeks' vacation under its green trees, provided by the Fresh Air Fund, Boston, to which the public has so generously contributed for eighteen years, means new life and hope, fresh strength and rosy cheeks, a love of simple pleasures and a store of happy memories laid up for months to come, for those who are fortunate enough to share its hospitality.

"We spent a very happy two weeks," writes a mother. "It was the first holiday I have had for eleven years. I feel like a new person altogether and the children have a different appearance. They had such a dreadful good time every minute they were there." The adjective may provoke a smile, but the sincerity of the pleasure who can doubt? It is worth something to have made so much happiness available for the first time in life to this mother and her little children.

"Rosemary is a homelike place, managed with a motherly tact and understanding which win the hearts of the children. 'We are all in the country except papa,' writes a little girl. 'This place is so beautiful that mamma calls it heaven on earth. With great big hills. The hotel we live in is on a big hill, and it has lovely rooms. We love it very much.' 'My sister and I are getting rosy cheeks,' writes a little girl of eleven. 'We have good times in the grass and swings; and we get all the cow's milk we want to drink, and plenty to eat. The matron is a lovely lady. She reads us stories and sings with us. Two weeks have gone so fast we wish it was just at the beginning.'"

In these good times the boys have their full share. "I had a fine time," writes one. "We played ball and went picking berries. I went to church both Sundays. I like the matron very much, and I ought to, for she does a great deal for us so that we can have a summer time. She reads us stories and sings with us every night in the parlor. She let four of us boys go to Greenacres. She gave us lunches, and we had a fine time. We didn't come home until it was quite late. They gave us our supper in the kitchen, and we told them that all us boys would like to eat our supper in the kitchen every night. All the children went up on the hill Saturday night. We had a fine time. We rolled down the hill and went picking berries. We saw the White Mountains and a great many other things. We had to go through a lot of snow and sleet. THE LATE LEGISLATURE.

The legislature that has just adjourned was in some respects a remarkable one.
It did some good things for which we are all thankful, such as amending the antiquated and unjust newspaper libel law, which will free newspapers in some degree from merely speculative libel suits, brought principally to give unscrupulous lawyers something to do. Senator Harwood and Representative Pickard were in favor of this justice to the newspapers.It is interesting to find how this legislature stood in regard to the contest between labor and capital, one of the great questions of the day, and one which promises to be more prominent still, owing to the tyrannical and unjust exactions of the great trusts and corporations.There were a number of labor measures presented, but it is rather surprising to note that not a single one passed, and every bill reported favorably by the committee on labor was rejected. This is particularly notable, as coming at a time when the complaints against the encroachments of capital are so widespread, and have been made the great issue in a political campaign.The great corporations, on the other hand, while they did not have things entirely their own way, nevertheless got nearly everything they really wanted. The West End free transfer bill illustrated the great influence of capital, and while the House passed the bill for the fourth time, the real fight against it was made in the Senate, and as usual the Senate was under corporate influence and defeated the bill.
The elevated railroad bill was passed, but it is to the credit of the House that many privileges that the Senate was willing to grant were stricken out in the lower branch. The elevated railroad people secure very valuable privileges as it is, and for these the people receive very small return. The bill to permit the Boston & Maine to buy the stock of leased roads, a great stock-watering scheme, easily passed the Senate and was only defeated in the House by a very narrow margin, so great was the influence of this great railroad corporation. Even this defeat is said by a well-known lobbyist to be only due to the fact that the railroad was so sure of the passage of the bill that it refused to put out any money.The corporate influence against the Hudson River and Berkshire railroad and the Bynon bicycle railroad bill was sufficient to cause a tremendous struggle over both measures.The insurance corporations had very great influence in the Senate but the House was not disposed to grant any favors, owing to revelations, in connection with the insurance commissioner, and the companies did not get any very valuable concessions. The gas corporations of the state had sufficient influence to prevent any unfavorable legislation, as did the telephone monopoly.Taken all in all, it will be seen that Capital has very little to complain of, as it secured most of the privileges it desired, while labor got nothing. The interests of the people, apart from the labor question, were much better looked after than by some recent legislatures, thanks to the House, and there is a good deal of encouragement in this. We have not had any such open surrender to the corporations as has been the case in Illinois, New York, and some other states, and for this all should be thankful.GAMALIEL BRADFORD, in a letter regarding Mr. Bishop's article in the Forum, on the evils of boss government, asks the pertinent question: "How far are we on the road in Massachusetts?" That the lobby is in a flourishing condition at the State House is shown by the outcry about it. It is only a question of time when some man of genius shall see his way to introduce Mr. Platt's methods.
Indeed, if the biennial amendment, sinking state elections in the national, had been accepted by the people last year, it would have been almost sure to indicate a time.
Mr. Bishop's remedy is independent nominations—about as effective as to try to dam up Niagara with sand. The only possible remedy is to set up legitimate and responsible one-man power, in place of the illegitimate and irresponsible power of Mr. Platt and his fellows; to give to the Governor chosen by the people for one year, and responsible to them, his proper share in the government, and to reduce the Legislature to order and system, in place of anarchy and chaos. The fate of the whole country is at stake, and may be said to depend largely upon whether Massachusetts is willing to put her hand to the work."The Upper Falls people are protesting vigorously against having their postoffice abolished. They say it is one of the oldest offices in the state, that Newton Highlandsis too far away to accommodate the people, and that they have nearly as many inhabitants as either Newton Centre or Newton Highlands, while their mail is much more important, as the former are only residence villages, while the Upper Falls serve the four largest business corporations in this part of the state, the Pettie Machine Works, the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company, the Newton Rubber Company, and Silk Mill, whose mail is a very important matter. The employees of the mills would have to go to Newton Highlands, some over a mile, to get money orders cashed, and they have a great many of these. The taking away of the Upper Falls office is only another illustration of the total lack of business sense displayed in the whole Newton postoffice business, and shows what a ridiculous mess results when business questions are allowed to be decided on other than business principles.WORK has at last begun on Washington street, a force of men being employed near Adams street, and it is said that the steam roller will be put on this section just as soon as the last section of the boulevard is finished, which is expected to be this week.
The street railway company have let the contract for laying the double track, and as the rails have arrived, it is said that next week will see the beginning of this work at West Newton, and the tracks will be laid as far as the car house, where the B. & A. tracks encroach upon the street. Then the other open sections of the street will be attended to, and as fast as the tracks are laid the city employees will follow and put the street in order. As the B. & A. temporary tracks will probably be given up within a month or two it does not seem unreasonable to think that Washington street can be got into good order by early in September, at least.The arrangements for the extension of free delivery are progressing. The postmasters at all offices except Newton Centre will be changed for superintendents, and their salaries will be $1000 at Newton, Newtonville and West Newton, $900 at Auburndale and Newton Highlands, and the office at Newton Upper Falls will be abolished, and only a sub-station maintained, for the sale of stamps, with a salary of $900. Upper Falls people will get their mail from the Highlands office.
Except in Newton there will only be two deliveries a day, including the central office, but Newton will have three as heretofore, as the many business establishments there and the large population could not get along with less. Newton will also have one more clerk than any other station, and two more than all except Newtonville and West Newton.A NEW YORK patent medicine man has conceived a new idea, as the result of the hard times, and he sends us some machine made verses on "Cuba Free," in which the metre is quite as remarkable as the rhymes, and kindly gives notice that we are at liberty to print the verses, provided we print the puff of his patent medicine that accompanies them. Appropriately enough this generous offer is signed "Evelyn," but we hope this is not a sample of the "new woman's" idea of business even if she does rhyme "Columbia" with "phobia."COUNCILMAN WARREN showed great presence of mind, Monday night, in moving to adjourn, and so cutting off further inquiry into the condition of the sidewalk appropriation, which seems to be in a rather delicate state, owing to the severe attacks made upon it from all quarters.
The new members are finding that even the largest appropriations can be exhausted, although some of them still insist that the regular highway appropriation is in a very satisfactory condition.EVERY one will commend the Common Council for their amendment of the bell-ringing order on the Fourth, which postpones the ringing of the morning bell from 4.30 to 7 o'clock. There will be noise enough on that morning, without the bell-ringing, and the councilmen have shown good sense in doing something to make the night before the Fourth less dreadful than usual. They evidently appreciate the fact that the noise is not necessarily an evidence of patriotism.POSTMASTER ELLIS of Newton Centre will still have to come to Newton, the center of business and population, to deposit his post office receipts, as the law requires that postmasters can make their deposits only in National banks, and there are no such institutions in the rural district on the south side.It must be rather aggravating for the postmasters at West Newton and Newton Highlands, to find that their salaries have been advanced another hundred dollars, just as their offices are to be abolished.

Reception to Rev. F. E. Clark

Every one is invited by the Auburndale Congregational C. E. Society to a reception at their church, tended Dr. F. E. Clark by the Newton Union Monday evening, June 21st at 7.45 o'clock. There will be short address of welcome, and Dr. Clark will speak.

NONANTUM.

While the new house, which Dr. O'Donnell is building, is in process of completion, he can be found around the corner on Crafts street in the same office.

Two Postoffices for Newton.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:—
Will you kindly give place in your columns to the accompanying announcement made in the interest of all who love Newton.If the citizens of Newton will unite and ask for two postoffices, one at Newton Centre on the circuit road for the eight thousand people on the south side of the city, and one on the main line of the Boston & Albany railroad for the twenty thousand people on the north side, they can have these two offices. For Senator Hoar and Congressman Sprague have agreed to present this petition to the postoffice department.In an interview, June 1, in which this proposal was made to the First Assistant Post Master General, he asked, would this second office be on the main line of railroad?
Would it be at the centre of population?
At the point most easily accessible from every part of the city? How far would this office be from the other office? (Offices must be two miles apart.) With what other places would it be directly connected? Receiving satisfactory answers to the questions, he said: "You had better work along that line." June 3rd, Senator Hoar informed the writer that he and Mr.
Sprague had agreed to ask the postoffice authorities for these two offices. June 9th, Hon. C. F. Sprague wrote: "I wait only to hear a request from all sections that such a change in the present plan is desirable, and that all the different districts unite in asking for it." Unity is the solvent of our difficulties. The postoffice department will not open the case to the conflicting claims of either side. The thing to do is to get the petition before the department at the earliest possible moment. If any public spirited citizen will aid in obtaining signatures in his own locality, petitions will be promptly furnished, and all who love peace will be his debtor. A country that is worth dying for is worth living for too. MRS. D. C. HEATH, Newtonville.

and Miss Alice Adams is announced.—Several cases of measles and mumps are reported on the north side of the track.—Mr. George Johnson of Keyes' drug store took a wheeling trip to Nashua, N.
H., Sunday.—Mr. Joseph Lee, formerly of the Woodland Park Hotel, has opened a cafe at Norumbega park.—Miss Johnson, formerly of Boston, has opened a millinery store at her home on Washburn avenue.—Two well known horsemen are arranging for a contest at Katik to test the qualities of their horses.—Dr. Arthur S. Cooley expects to leave soon for Athens, Greece, where he will remain several weeks.—Mr. Charles Bourne is constructing a street through his property from Auburn street to Potter place.—Mr. Elliot W. Keyes, Apothecary, has on, Vosko Gyorgy, Everett Nichols and Antion Pallonist.—Mrs. A. J. Johnson of Charles street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edna Hathaway Perry, to Mr. Henry

Dudley Newell of Somerville.—The mud-scow, owned by Contractor Dennison, which was taken from its moorings on the Charles river last week, was recovered Monday near Waltham.—Residents and storekeepers have been busy this week in anticipation of the new free delivery system, numbering their dwellings and places of business.—Mr. and Mrs. Butler of the Woodland Park Hotel are congratulated on the advent of a daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Sands, Grove street, have a similar reason for rejoicing.—About 7.30 o'clock last Saturday morning William McClellan, employed on the B.
& A., had his hand slightly injured while coupling cars at Riverside. He was removed to the Emergency Hospital, Boston.—Auburndale lodge, A. O. U. W., held its regular meeting in Auburn hall, Wednesday evening. The regular business meeting, which included the admission of two candidates, was followed by a strawberry supper.—A workman employed by Thomas Mague had his foot crushed about noon Wednesday while unloading a load of car-ties from a wagon on the boulevard. One of the ties slipped and landed on his foot, which was considerably hurt.—The Boston Herald says: Riverside is in its glory. In fact, it is paradise by day and dreamland by night, where the canoes fit like so many water swallows up and down the stream. There is not a lovelier water park in the country than this section of our silvery Charles, and all the world thereabouts may well prize what nature and the useful have done to perfect its charm in the sight of man.—A brilliant event on the Charles river last Saturday evening was the observance of the annual illumination at Riverside and the promenade concert given by the Newton Boat Club. The clubhouse and other public boat houses were decorated with hundreds of Japanese lanterns, and with the many canoes in the river formed an attractive picture. Music was furnished by Baldwin's Cadet band of Boston, which was stationed on one of the club's broad verandas from 7.30 to 10 o'clock, and later in the clubhouse, where dancing was enjoyed in the big assembly hall by several hundreds of the members and friends.—Sunday morning cars were run for the first time over the new extension of the Commonwealth avenue street railway company's tracks from Auburn street to Norumbega park. Considering the weather there was a large amount of riding on each trip. This week the favorable weather called out hundreds of passengers. The new cars are without an equal in the city, and the street railway company is to be congratulated on the success of the recent addition to its already equipped line. The new tracks are constructed on a very smooth roadbed and the trip from terminus to terminus makes one of the most enjoyable of suburban trolley car rides.When you are suffering from Catarrh or

NEWTON WINS AGAIN.

DEFEATS THE NEWPORTS BY A SCORE OF 8 TO 3.The Newton Club A. A. nine added to its unbroken series of victories by defeating the Newporters of the New England League on the Cedar Street grounds at Newton Centre yesterday afternoon by the score of 8 to 3.For the first time this season a home run was scored, Dowd putting it over right field fence and bringing in three runs in the fourth.Pickett and Bowen in left field each did some good work, Bowen's running catch in deep left being one of the features of the game. Hawley at short did the best work for the victors.In the last half of the ninth the Newporters filled the bases, and were only prevented from scoring by the clever double play by Hovey and Dickinson. The score:

EXCURSION ROUTE BOOK.THE MOST COMPLETE PUBLICATION OF ITS KIND.On June 1 the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company issued the 1897 edition of its Summer Excursion Route Book. This work is designed to provide the public with short descriptive notes of the principal summer resorts of Eastern America, with the routes for reaching them, and the rates of fare. There are over four hundred resorts in the book to which rates are quoted, and over fifteen hundred different routes or combination of routes. It is compiled with the utmost care, and altogether is the most complete and comprehensive handbook of Summer travel ever offered to the public.Its 219 pages are inclosed in a handsome and striking cover, in colors. Several maps, presenting the exact routes over which the tickets are sold, are bound in the book. It is also profusely illustrated with fine half-tone cuts of scenery along the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad and else where.Any doubt as to where the Summer should be passed will be dispelled after a careful examination of the contents of this publication.On and after June 1 it may be procured at Pennsylvania Railroad office 205 Washington street, Boston, at the nominal price of ten cents, or by mail for twenty cents.

Police Court.

Monday morning there was an unusually large number of cases. Among the most interesting were eight Poles, who had been christening at their boarding house on Eliot street, Upper Falls, Sunday evening. The chief features of the program according to the testimony of Officers Mc-Kenzie and Seaver, were a case of absent, a general melee, the latter occurring every half-hour or so up to 10 o'clock, when the whole crowd was placed under arrest with some difficulty. Their fines amounted to $70.John Carlton, a discontented boarder residing at Nonantum, pleaded guilty to assaulting his landlady, and is now $12 out of pocket.Cole and coal got Giuseppe Delvechio, a West Newton Italian, into trouble. About 4.30 patroling Cole of division 4 saw Delvechio filling a bag with coal from the pockets in C. F. Eddy's coal yard at West Newton. He placed him under arrest, and Monday morning he was fined $12 for larceny.Timothy Maloy for keeping a liquor nuisance was fined $100.Thomas Connors, of Kerry Cross arrived home Monday morning from the state farm.
Tuesday evening he participated in a "wake," and again falling into the arms of the law was given a year at Bridgewater.Daniel Sweeney, a neighbor, is to accompany him. Joseph Ryan, John McBride and James Feeley, three small West Newton youths, appeared in court Tuesday morning for assaulting and stealing strawberries from an Italian boy, who was delivering them for his employer, Joseph John and James were in a very repentant frame of mind and shed many tears.Joseph was fined $2 and John and James $3 each. A brother of one of the boys shortly after their arrest, took it upon himself to assault one of the witnesses, with the result that he will be brought into court.Lyman Morrell, for larceny of a satchel, the property of an Arabian peddler, was discharged. Morrell was joking with the peddler last Saturday, and in a spirit of fun, as he claimed, hid the man's valise.
The latter expostulated, and brought his case in court. Morrell was ordered to pay the Arabian for goods the latter alleged were missing from his valise.July 4

—Mr. Otis E. Hunt is at North Falmouth, Mass., for the summer.

—Miss Mary Emerson leaves next week for North Conway, N. H.

—Mr. F. S. Rollins and family are at their summer home at Nantucket.

—The local tribe of Red Men held their regular meeting Wednesday evening.

—The regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held in Dennison hall, Tuesday evening.

—Mr. E. P. Call, who was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Whiston, has returned to his home in New York.

—The regular meeting of Waban Lodge, I. O. O. F., was omitted last evening, owing to its being a holiday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson, who were the guests of a friend here, have returned to their home in Fall River.

—There are letters remaining in the post-office for Mrs. Lyman Abbott, C. C. Cutler, William H. Linds and Frank Grigg.

—Mrs. A. H. Sisson is enjoying a short stay at Fall River, and will also take in Portsmouth, R. I., before her return.

—Mr. and Mrs. John E. Davis of Otis street are at Chattanooga, Tenn., where they expect to remain about two weeks.

—If you leave your valuables at the storage vaults of the First National Bank, before going away for the summer, you can dismiss all worry, and the cost is very little.

—Frank Joyal reported at police headquarters, Friday afternoon, that some time Thursday night a quantity of tools belonging to him were stolen from his chest in a new house on California street.

—A preliminary meeting preparatory to organizing a local branch of the Knights of Malta will be held this evening in Dennison hall. This project has been talked of for some time and it is expected that a large number will become charter members.

—John Cunniff of Natick met with an accident of peculiar circumstances in this place about 7 Wednesday morning. He was leading a cow when the animal attacked him, knocked him down and stamped on him. He was badly injured about the chest.

—The Loomis agency has leased for Mrs. A. U. Hitchings, her residence on Washington park to Mr. N. H. Stannard of Boston, who expects to occupy about July 1st.

—Mr. Stannard represents a line of builders supplies in the line of lime, cement, fine brick and drain pipe.

—The funeral of Mr. Wm. H. Mendell, who died at the Boston City Hospital last Tuesday night, was held Friday afternoon, at his late residence, Washington Park.

—The Rev. Mr. Vickerstaff, who is visiting the members of the family and near relatives were present. The interment was made at Forest Hills.

—The Dumares house so long unoccupied on the south side of Bowers street is being repaired and put in order under the supervision of Manager Loomis, and occupancy on or before July 1st, by Mrs. Edward Sands. The piazza will be extended several feet, new concrete front walk and other minor improvements.

—The Newtonville Cycle Club enjoyed a delightful spin to the Wayside Inn at South Sudbury, yesterday forenoon, leaving from the residence of Mr. Geo. W. Brown at 9:30. Lunch in the form of a basket picnic was served at noon and after a short time passed in viewing the beauties of the place, the return trip was made.

—Wheelmen complain of the large amount of glass found in the streets of our "Garden City." The greatest amount seem to be found in the most central localities. One of the best known riders of this place narrowly escaped an accident Sunday morning on Walnut street, owing to the remains of a beer bottle near the car track. A new tire was necessary and the rider is some dollars out of pocket.

—Rev. Mr. Dutton of the Central church will spend July and August in the West, and the services of the church will be supplied by the following: July 11, Rev. H. J. Patrick; 12, D. J. July 18, Rev. W. F. Sloane; 20, D. J. July 25, Rev. W. F. Green; Sept. 5, Rev. J. S. Williams. September Communion will be Sept. 12.

—An enjoyable entertainment was given in Dennison hall, Monday evening, under the auspices of Mr. Ida Council, Royal Arcanum, by the "Electric Trio" of Boston. The trio consists of Mr. Williams of Council No. 4, and Messrs. Green and Johnson, all well known to the popular reader, Miss Gill, assisted, and won well merited applause. Refreshments were served at the close of the program, and the evening closed with dancing from 10 to 12.

—Mr. G. H. Loomis of the Newtonville exchange reports the sale by him of the Cohen property, corner of Harvard street and Norwood avenue, to Mrs. C. M. Rochford of Abundant. This sale includes the unfinished house on corner, and the cottage house south of it, and about 20,000 feet of land. The purchasing parties propose to finish up this long neglected and unsightly property as soon as possible. Mr. and Mrs. Rochford will at once occupy the cottage which has been recently vacated.

—The following is from the Akron, O., Evening Journal of June 5th: "The Ohio Universalist State Convention was held at Blanchester. Thursday afternoon was given to the consideration of Budget College affairs. The election of the Rev. Ira A. Priest to the presidency was heartily approved by a unanimous vote. Rev. Mr. Priest made a most able address which was listened to with marked attention. His plea for a renewed interest in the College was eloquent. After talking for over an hour and a half, he started to sit down, but the great convention had been worked to a high pitch by this time and insisted on his talking longer. 'It was the most able address I ever heard,' said Mr. Tinker, a trustee."

—Mt. Ida Council, Royal Arcanum, at its regular meeting on last Monday evening, elected the following officers, the changes being necessitated by the death of its late Regent, Mr. Edward Sands: Regent, D. Frank Lord; Vice Regent, Alfred E. Vose; Chaplain, Senior Past Regent, H. A. Boynton. At the close of the business the ladies of the members and friends were invited to the Council hall where a very pleasing program was presented by Brother Albert E. Sisson, who made selections on the piano, banjo and guitar, by the Electric Trio Concert Company, and recitations by Miss Gill. A few words of welcome and an explanation of the benefits and principles of the order were given by the new regent. At the conclusion of the program, strawberries, ice-cream and cake were served, after which there was dancing. Mr. Ida Council was organized seven years ago with 48 members by Mr. Herbert A. Boynton who is the present Grand Secretary of Massachusetts. As an illustration of the promptness with which the benefits of the order are paid, the widow of Mr. Sands received the amount of insurance in just 10 days after the date of his death and the beneficiaries of Brother Henry B. Chesley, who died subsequently, in just 15 days from date of death. The Royal Arcanum now numbers nearly 200,000 and is constantly increasing in membership, and is reckoned today as the most equitable and conservative of the organizations. The Supreme Council made no change in the rate of assessments at its late session and it was unanimously decided that for the present the order is on a firm foundation and that any charge that may be needed, could be postponed for some years.

—Buy your fireworks at Tilton's, Boston.

—Mr. Preston and family are enjoying a stay at Falmouth.

—Mr. T. Aubrey Byrne of Walker street is in New York for a few weeks.

—Mr. E. A. Locke and family of Waltham have moved into the J. L. Richards house on Newtonville avenue.

—A new piazza has been put on either end of the depot, making a continuous protection around the building.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wefel of Walker street are enjoying an extensive tour through the West and Mexico.

—There will be a Bible lecture illustrated with the stereopticon at the Congregationalist church, on this evening.

—The Maternal Association connected with the Congregationalist church will hold its picnic Saturday, June 19th.

—The Misses E. and M. A. Ball have removed from Eldridge street, Newton, to 89 Washington street, just above Lowell street.

—The regular convocation of Gethsemane commandery will be held Tuesday evening. The annual election and installation of officers will take place.

—Mr. Horatio Carter has moved to his house on Austin street, until recently occupied by Mr. Shirley. The latter has gone to Duxbury for the summer.

—Mrs. George H. Shapley returned this week from West Point, where she was the guest of Seth M. Miliken, son of the late Congressman Seth L. Miliken.

—The regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias will be held Monday evening. The 2d and 3d ranks will be worked followed by the annual election of officers.

—The Commonwealth avenue street railway have recently purchased several new eight wheel cars containing 15 seats. This gives a seating capacity for 75 persons.

—Supt. Henry Ross of the Newton Cemetery was confined to his room for several days this week, but with better weather he hopes to be about again as usual.

—The next regular meeting of Boynton Lodge 29 of Odd Ladies will be held Tuesday afternoon, June 22, at which time the semi-annual election of officers will take place.

—Among the seniors of Tufts College Divinity school, ordained to the Universalist ministry at College Hill Tuesday, was Mr. Herbert Elmon Benton of this place.

—The Sunday school connected with the Congregationalist church held its Children's day concert on Sunday morning last, at which time also several children were baptized.

—Charles F. Hutchinson formerly of this place and recently ordained at Trinity church, Boston, has been called to Calvary church New York City, to serve as an assistant to Dr. Parks.

—Among the gratifying improvements at the corner of Walnut and Foster streets is the removal of the old picket fence. These fences are fast passing away and a better order of things prevail.

—The Methodist Christian Endeavor society will hold its annual meeting with the election of officers at the church on next Friday evening, at the close of the regular prayer meeting.

—Children's Sunday was observed at the M. E. church with an appropriate sermon to the children by the pastor in the morning, and the regular concert by the Sunday school in the evening.

—A large party from here attended the lawn fete and promenade concert for the benefit of the First church building fund on the grounds of Mr. Charles S. Davis, Newton Centre Tuesday evening.

—The young ladies' band of King's Daughters connected with the Methodist church held a sale of ice cream and cake on the parsonage grounds last Saturday afternoon, with good financial results.

—The Newton Clubhouse and grounds were the centre of attraction, Wednesday evening, guests coming from all parts of the city and the Newton & Boston railway running special cars. Outside the house was a large throng that filled the street and the adjacent lawns, listening to the fine music of the Germania band. The electric illumination also excited great interest of the spectators. The church and grounds were brilliantly illuminated, and many hundred guests were present.

—Last Friday evening, Gen. Hull Lodge, A. O. U. W., celebrated its 6th anniversary by an entertainment complimentary to the ladies, who were present in large numbers. The entertainment consisted of mandolin and guitar playing by the Clover Club, Boston, singing by Miss Bessie K. Dennis, of Chelsea, and Bro. P. E. Stutsen caused many smiles by his humorous selections. Dis. Dep. G. M. W. W. A. Clark, and P. M. E. D. Clark talked upon the subject of the order, after which there was dancing. It was an enjoyable affair and much credit is due the committee in charge.

—An Italian fruit merchant, whose place of business is in the old Claflin block on Walnut street, was victimized, Wednesday evening, by two of a class known as "hit workers." While the women, who was in charge of the store in the absence of the proprietor, was attending to her duties two well-dressed young men left their bicycles on the sidewalk in front and came evidently to make purchases. One engaged the woman in conversation while the other emptied the contents of the cash drawer into his pocket. Both left rather hastily and started off on their wheels. It was not long before the woman realized she had been robbed and notified the police. She could give but a meagre description of the men and could not tell how much had been taken, though she thought it was about $7.

—The annual meeting of Newton Royal Arch Chapter was held Tuesday evening, and the following officers elected: High Priest, A. L. Harwood; King, John Glover; Scribe, H. A. Boynton; Treasurer, L. E. Binney; sec'y, George F. Williams; Capt. of the Host, C. A. Kellogg; principal sojourner, E. P. Hatch; Royal Arch Captain, J. W. Hamilton; Master of 3d val, Mr. Charles Fessenden; Master of 2d val, H. W. Jackson; Master of 1st val, George E. Thompson; Senior Steward, James Beck; Jr. Steward, Horton Allen; Tyler, Alexander Chisholm; organist, George Brown. The work of installation was performed by District Deputy Grand High Priest, George D. Davidson and suite. In behalf of the chapter a Past High Priest jewel was presented to High Priest, A. L. Harwood, by Companion Priest. A large gathering was present as this was the last meeting of the season for the chapter.

—Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard returned Sunday after a short trip.

—Mr. John Frost of Clyde street is in New Bedford for a week.

—The western half of the Walnut street bridge is nearly completed and will soon be open for travel.

—Mr. F. S. Rollins has sent his handsome new pair of horses to Nantucket, where he expects to pass the warm season.

—Services at the Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday evening at 7:30. The short talks on stray subjects, which are interesting to many of our young people, will be continued by the pastor, Rev. Franklin Hamilton. The special topic for the evening will be "A visit to Luther's home in Germany." In the address Mr. Hamilton will give personal reminiscences of his recent visit to these interesting places in South Germany, which are attracting much interest in this country. The anniversary of the birth of Luther's comrade, Philip Melancthon. Special music and solo. All seats are free. All are cordially invited. In the morning at 10:45, Mr. Hamilton will preach. —If you leave your valuables at the storage vaults of the First National Bank, before going away for the summer, you can dismiss all worry, and the cost is very little.

—A concrete sidewalk is being laid on Otis street, from Chestnut to Forest avenue, nearly half a mile in length, the work being done by Simpson Bros. The walk has long been needed.

—Mrs. T. E. Gammons extends her sincere thanks to the ladies of the O. C. M. E., the Odd Ladies and all others who helped or expressed sympathy for her in her recent bereavement.

—About 25 Odd Ladies of Boynton Lodge No. 20 accepted the hospitality of Sister Wade at her new home in Malden, June 18th. The visit was enjoyed by all and she proved herself a genial hostess.

—Mr. Joseph Fyfe, who is paymaster on the Steamer Niantic, arrived with the steamer in Boston harbor this week. Since leaving here on March 10, he has been to London and to Montevideo, some 10,000 miles.

—The depot has been lowered nearly to the level of the new tracks of the B. & A. and the work of lowering the grade at the lower half of Margin street between Chestnut and Highland streets is rapidly progressing.

—Mr. Levi C. Ela has sent out cards for the marriage of his daughter, Miss Mary Florence, to Mr. Herbert F. Pierce, of the engineer's department, at the Unitarian church, Wollaston, on Tuesday, June 29th, at 8 p. m.

—Mrs. Henry Lambert of Chestnut street met with a serious accident Tuesday morning. A rug in the parlor of her home caused her to trip and fall, fracturing her hip. A surgeon was called and she is as comfortable as could be expected.

—There are letters in the postoffice for Mrs. Arthur W. Barrows, Frank Ellison, Miss Margaret Byrne, Emily C. J. May, Mr. Hayes Clark, Thos. Kennedy, Geo. H. Day, W. A. Lyman, Patrick Dougherty, Mrs. Harriet Taylor, James Devine, Henry Wolfe.

—Considerable criticism is heard in reference to the Margin street construction. It is feared that the passage to and from the station will be dangerous, owing to its narrowness and close proximity to the end of the bridge, over the B. & A. tracks. It is inevitable that later Marginal street will have to be widened.

—The Chestnut street foot bridge, now opened for pedestrians, is fully appreciated by them and many a sigh of relief is heard when told they need not climb the bridge. The southern half of the big wooden bridge has been removed, and only two flights of steps remain which will still be used in case of passing trains blocking the passage.

—Children's Sunday at the Unitarian church called out a very large attendance. The church was very attractively trimmed, the pulpit, lattern being a mass of flowers. Nine children were christened during the service. Rev. Mr. Jaynes made a very interesting address to the children, and special music was furnished, Miss Alice Morton singing several solos.

—The lawn party and strawberry festival, for the benefit of the repair fund of the Congregationalist chapel, at the home of Miss Gates, Waltham street, Saturday evening, was one of the most successful affairs given by the members of the Sunday school. The house, stable and grounds, were handsomely decorated with bunting and brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns.

—The spring meet of the Middlesex Interscholastic Athletic Association, composed of the Framingham, Concord and Milford high schools and the Allen school of West Newton, was held at the Middlesex south agricultural grounds in South Framingham last Saturday. Allen won the trophy, a silver cup, given for the highest number of points, scoring 98 to Framingham's 40. Erickson of Allen took first prize in every event in which he contested, five in all. The Allen school boys were very jubilant over such a brilliant victory.

—A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frost, Fuller street, at five o'clock P. M., on the premises on the corner of Walnut street and Turner street, near the new Congregationalist Church. The house contains nine rooms, is in the very best of condition, has all the modern improvements, and has recently been renovated and improved. The lot contains about 10,000 feet, and the situation will recommend itself to the most fastidious. Terms $250 at sale, and cash for the balance.

return they will take up their residence in Haverhill.

—Mrs. Martine Woods left this week for Europe, where she expects to remain during the summer months.

—Deputy Grand Master Workman W. A. Clark will make an official visit to Norwood Lodge tonight, accompanied by a delegation from General Hull, Waltham, John Eliot and Needham Lodges.

—Among the recent June weddings was that of Miss Anna Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Coffin Folger, and Mr. Josiah Blake Langley of this place. The ceremony took place at high noon, Tuesday, at Nantucket. After a wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Langley will be at home Wednesday, Oct. 20, 3 to 5 and 8 to 10.

—The local branch of the W. C. T. U. held the last meeting of the season Tuesday afternoon in the Baptist vestry. The president, Mrs. Richard Rowe, gave an interesting description of her trip in California, telling of the various points of note which she visited. She spoke especially of the quantities of tobacco used in San Francisco by women as well as men. The business meeting was followed by an informal reception tendered to the president. A large audience was present and nine new members were added to the union.

—The closing exercises of the West Newton English and Classical school were held Wednesday morning in the school hall. The pupils acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner, showing the usual thorough training throughout the school season. We may be pardoned if among so many good productions special mention is made of two essays, one on the "Recent Grecian Troubles" and the impromptu farewell address to the graduating class. The hall was handsomely decorated with potted plants and cut flowers.

—An important social event in Newton last evening, was a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Leonard, at their home on Forest street. Several hundred of the society people of the various Newtons, Brookline Boston and other towns were present. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard received in the north parlor of the house, and were assisted by Mrs. F. M. Thatcher, Mrs. Richard Elkins and Mrs. A. L. Lindsay. The house and parlors were handsomely decorated with roses, palms and trailing ferns. Music was furnished during the evening by an orchestra.

Some years ago, wooden bedsteads were all the rage. If you still think so, we would advise you to drop in at the store of Morris, Murch & Butler, 42 Summer street, (near Washington street) and see the stock of iron and brass beds that they carry. It is an eye opener, and yet, when one stops to consider how neat in appearance a metal bed is, how inexpensive, and how cheerful and inviting it makes a room look, one stops wondering at their popularity. The firm in question are undoubtedly the largest dealers of the kind in the United States, and have a capacity for handling a large trade. They have brass beds fit for a queen, or iron beds suitable for the cheapest room of a boarding house. All shapes, all sizes, all prices. Everything is marked in plain figures, so customers can see at a glance what they are looking for. There are nearly eighty different kinds of beds. They also carry an immense quantity of pillows, springs and mattresses.

prevent the identification of the corpse, he decided to remove the head, hands and feet, parts which are personally characteristic. He takes off the clothes and burns them. We found the ashes in the kitchen stove. He takes the body to the bathroom, and places it in the porcelain tub, turns on the water and then proceeds with his diabolical scheme. Even though we suppose that he first filled the tub with water, the better to avoid stains, when we remember that he took away the severed parts, it is inconceivable that not a stain of blood, not a smudge of pinkish tint, would be left anywhere. Granting that he might have endeavored to wash away any such drippings, still it would be marvelous that not one stain should be left.

"Yet you found none?" Mr. Mitchell smiled and resumed his smoking. "Yet I found none!" said Mr. Barnes. "But this was a most significant fact to me. It led me to a suspicion which I proceeded to verify. The plumbing in this house was of the most approved pattern. Under the porcelain bathtub there was a patent trap for the exclusion of sewer gas. This is so fashioned that some water always remains. Supposing that bloody water had passed through it, I should find this trap partly filled with water tinted in color. I removed the screw, which enabled me to catch the water from the trap in a bowl. It was perfectly clear. Not a trace of color."

"From which you deduced?" asked Mr. Mitchell.

"From which I deduced," said the detective, "that the woman had not been killed or dismembered in the house where she was found. Moreover, by examining the other houses and emptying the traps, I found one which yielded water plainly colored with blood, and I also found a few smudges about the bathtub, places where blood had flowed and been washed off. The assassin thought that he had made all clean; but, as often happens with porcelain, when dried there still remained a slight stain, which even showed the direction in which it had been wiped."

"Very good! Very good indeed!" Mr. Mitchell yawned slightly. "Let me see. You have discovered what? That the knife was sharp? And that the woman was killed in one house and carried to another. How does that help you?"

"At this point Mr. Barnes gave Mr. Mitchell a distinct surprise. Instead of answering the question, he asked suddenly:

"Mr. Mitchell, will you permit me to examine that watch chain which you are wearing?"

Mr. Mitchell sat up straight in his chair and looked sharply at the detective, as though trying to read his inmost thoughts. The detective stared back at him, and both were silent a moment. Then, without speaking, Mr. Mitchell removed the chain and handed it to Mr. Barnes, who took it with him to the window and there examined it closely through a lens. Mr. Mitchell threw the remains of his cigar into the fire, and placing both hands behind his head as he lay back in his chair, he awaited developments. Presently Mr. Barnes returned to his place by the mantel, and in resuming his narrative it was noticeable from his tone of voice that he was more than ever troubled.

"You asked me," said he, "how my discoveries helped me. I say from the bottom of my heart that they have helped only too well. That I proceed in this matter is due to the fact that I must follow the dictates of my conscience rather than my heart."

"Brutus yielded up his son, you know," suggested Mr. Mitchell.

"Yes! Well, to resume my story. The point of importance was this: Imagine the assassin with both hands at the woman's throat, two things were inevitable. The woman would surely struggle with arms and legs, and the murderer would be unable to resist, his own hands being occupied. What more natural than that the arms of the dying woman should be wrapped about the body of her assailant; that the hands should grasp and rend the clothing? Might perhaps come into contact with a watch chain and tear it off or break it?"

"And are you intending to examine all the watch chains in the neighborhood upon such a chance as that?" Mr. Mitchell laughed, but Mr. Barnes took no notice of the intended taunt.

"I have examined the only chain I wished to look at. Deducing the struggle and the possible tearing off of some part of the assassin's attire, I was glad to know which house was the scene of the crime. Having satisfied myself in this direction, I proceeded to search for the missing link in the chain of evidence, though I must confess that I did not expect it to be truly a link, a part of a real chain. The idea that a watch chain might have been broken in the struggle did not occur to me until I held the evidence in my hand."

"Oh! Then you did find your missing link?"

"Yes. I personally swept every room and the staircase, and at last I found the link. But it would be more correct to say your missing links than mine, Mr. Mitchell, for it was from this chain that it was broken."

"Indeed!" Mr. Barnes was amazed at the imperturbable manner in which this statement was received. Becoming slightly agitated himself, he continued: "As soon as I picked up that link I was shocked at my discovery, for from its peculiar shape I recognized it as similar to your chain, which I had often observed. Still I hope that there might be some mistake; that it might have fallen from some other man. But you have permitted me to examine this chain and the last doubt is swept away. I note that every alternate link is solid, the intermediate ones having a slit, by which the links are joined into a chain. The wrench given by the dying woman strained one of these links so that it opened, allowing the chain to part, and later this particular link dropped off. Either you did not observe it at once or else, being small, you could not find it."

It this occurred as I have described, what would be the result? Your chain, where parted, would terminate at each end with a solid link. Thus to unite the chain again my lens shows me that you have saved through one link and so rejoined your chain. But not only do I see the freshly sawed link, but as must necessarily be the case, we have two links adjacent, each of which can be opened."

"And your next move will be?" asked Mr. Mitchell, still undisturbed.

"I have no recourse open to me except to arrest you. That is why I have found this whole interview so painful."

"I understand your position, and sympathize with you thoroughly," said Mr. Mitchell. "And yet, see how easily you might dismiss this whole theory of yours. These houses are in my neighborhood, immediately back of me, in fact. I am a householder. What more natural than my taking an interest in property so near me. Why may I not have visited the houses and examined them? Then, what more possible than the chance that in passing from one room to another my chain should have caught on a doorknob and been broken, the link dropping as you have suggested? My repairing the damage would be but a natural sequence, and the subsequent murder and your train of reasoning are resolved into mere coincidences."

"That is ingenious, Mr. Mitchell. But some instinct tells me that I am right, and that you did commit this crime."

"Intuition, which I suppose is what you mean by instinct, is not always reliable; but, oddly enough, in this instance you are correct. I did kill that creature. Moreover, the sequence of events was as you have deduced. I commend you for your skill, for, believe me, I used every precaution to prevent detection."

"Then you confess? My God! This is horrible!"

At the prospect of arresting Mr. Mitchell, a man who had won his most ardent admiration, Mr. Barnes was so overcome that he sank into a chair and stared blankly at his companion.

"Come, come!" said Mr. Mitchell, "don't break down like that. The affair is bad enough, I admit, but it might be worse."

"Might be worse!" ejaculated Mr. Barnes, amazed at the words as well as the half-jocular tone.

"Why, yes! Much worse! Why, Mr. Barnes, have you not had evidence of my ability to thwart detectives before today? Do you suppose that I shall permit myself to be detected, arrested, imprisoned in this affair? Nothing is farther from my mind, I assure you. True, you have, with your uncommon skill, discovered a part of the truth. But that need not trouble me, for no other detective will be as shrewd!"

"Do you mean to suggest that I should shield you in this matter?"

"Well, yes, that is about what I expect from your friendship."

"Impossible, impossible! I wish that I could do what you ask. But no. It is impossible."

"There! I have tried your patience long enough. Let me tell you the whole story, and then you may decide as you please. Immediately after that unfortunate affair with my cousin, and after abducting little Rose from the Montebon woman, I took her with me to Paris, where I placed her in a convent school."

"A few months after this a friend presented me with a poodle. French poodles, as you know, are considered the most intelligent of all dogs, and this one seemed to be the wisest of his species. My friend had already trained him to perform many tricks, and these were done at command, without special signals, so that I could not but believe what my friend claimed, that the dog actually understood what was said to him. Thinking this matter over one day it presented itself to me in a singular light.

"In the training of animals man has always aimed to make the dumb brute understand and carry out the master's wishes. No one, so far as I then knew, had ever trained a dog to express his own wishes in any way intelligible to the master. This I undertook to do and was fairly successful. I printed words on cards, such as 'food,' 'drink,' 'yard,' etc., and, by means which I need not recapitulate, I taught my dog to bring me the special card which would represent his wishes. Thus when he was thirsty he could ask for 'water,' or when he wished to leave the house he brought the card marked 'yard.' Imagine my astonishment when, one day, a little Skye terrier belonging to another lodger in the house came to me with the 'food' card in his mouth. At first I supposed it to be merely an accident, but I soon discovered that the terrier understood the cards as well as did the poodle. How, unless the poodle had taught him? Do dogs, then, have a language by which they may communicate with each other?"

"This was a new thought, which attracted me more and more as I revolved it in my mind. Then it occurred to me that if animals have a language, monkeys would offer the best field for study, and I began investigating. The discovery that the apes do have a language has been made recently by Mr. Garner, and by him the fact has been published to the world. But I made the discovery several years ago, though I kept it to myself, for reasons which you shall hear."

"I practiced upon the monkeys in the zoological gardens in Paris and London until I was a veritable crank on the subject of monkey language. Nothing would satisfy me but a trip to Africa. Thither I went, and made great progress, so that by the time I captured a fine chimpanzee on the Kongo I was able to readily make him understand that I meant him no harm. At first he received my overtures with hesitation, his previous experience with my race rendering him skeptical as to my good qualities. But after a time we became good friends, or, I might say, chums. After that I gave him his liberty and we took strolls together. He was a very sociable fellow when one really got to know him well, but we found the resources of the monkey language inadequate to our needs. The experiment with my dog recurred to me, and I undertook to teach him a human tongue. I chose German as the best adapted to his limitations, and he made such progress that in a few months we could converse with tolerable ease."

"I undertook to tell him something of the world of civilization, and one day it occurred to me to expound to him the Darwinian theory. He listened with an expression of learned thought upon his face which would have well suited the countenance of a philosopher, but when I had finished he astounded me by announcing that he thought he could show me that higher race of apes which, being more humanly developed than any species now known, might well be designated the missing link, which connects the simian race with man. I begged him to do so, and he undertook the task, though he said that it involved a long journey. I urged him to go, and he left me."

"A month had passed, and I had begun to think that my new friend had deserted me, when one day he walked into camp, accompanied by the most humanlike ape I had ever seen. It was neither chimpanzee nor gorilla, but a combination of both in those characteristics which were most manlike. The most conspicuous advance beyond the anthropoid apes now known was the hairless skin. The hands and feet, too, were more human in shape, though on the latter the hallux still retained its prehensile character, which perhaps is necessary to a tree dweller. The face was peculiarly human, though the jaws retained certain distinguishing attributes of the ape—as, for example, the space between the anterior and posterior teeth and the fanglike canine teeth."

"As you must already suspect the sequel, I may hurry on to the end. This creature was a female, and in the trip to our camp my chimpanzee friend had become much attached to her—indeed I may say he had fallen in love with her. He had also begun her higher education, so that when we met she was able to address a few words to me in German. As you may well imagine I was greatly interested in this animal and did all in my power to teach her. She made even more rapid progress than the chimpanzee had, and I was thinking of the sensation I could produce in Paris by sending cards of invitation to the nuptials of my monkey friends, which I determined should occur in the great metropolis."

"Imagine my horror one morning upon finding the chimpanzee dead. I did not immediately comprehend the full significance of this; but, upon questioning the ape a few days later, she candidly confessed to me that she had killed the chimpanzee, her only reason being that having decided for the future to live as a human being she deemed it wise to destroy her companion, that he might not be able to divulge the secret of her origin."

"Instantly my mind was awakened to a danger which menaced myself. I, too, knew the secret of her savage ancestry. And the fact that she had not slain me also was probably due to her hope that I would fulfill my promise and take her with me to more civilized parts. Indeed, so certain was I of this that I took the first opportunity to foster that ambition in her bosom. At the same time I carefully planned a secret departure, and a few nights later succeeded in getting away unobserved while the ape slept. Throughout the journey to the coast I constantly feared pursuit, but was fortunate enough to get safely on shipboard without hearing more of the savage creature."

"At dusk on last Saturday I was strolling through the next street, when to my amazement I saw coming toward me what appeared to be a woman, whose face, however, was so startlingly like the ape which I had left in Africa that for a moment I was dazed. In the next instant, realizing that if my suspicion were true I might be in danger even after the lapse of time and hoping that it was merely a chance resemblance, I quickly turned into one of the new houses still open for inspection. I did not dare to look behind me, and even thought it a trick of my excited imagination, when I fancied that I heard steps following me as I ascended to the second floor."

"I turned upon reaching the floor above, and instantly with a savage cry the brute was upon me, her hands upon my throat, making a desperate effort to strangle me. I gripped her neck in a similar manner, scarcely hoping to save my life. Fortune favored me, however, and after a lengthy struggle the ape lay dead at my feet. I suppose that several years of life in civilization had sapped her savage strength."

"My subsequent proceedings were actuated by two motives. In the first place any public connection of my name with such a horrible encounter would naturally have greatly annoyed my wife, and, secondly, I could not resist my innate fondness for contending with detectives. I removed the head, hands and feet to prevent identification, and also because with them I can convince you that the animal was an ape and not a woman. As there is no law against the killing of an ape you must see, Mr. Barnes, that it would be futile to arrest me."

"You are right," replied Mr. Barnes, "and I am truly glad that your explanation places you beyond the law. You must forgive me for my suspicion."

The two men joined hands in a firm clasp, which cemented their friendship and guaranteed that the secret which they shared would never be divulged by either.

THE END.

Newton A. A., 11, Carters, 7.

At Melrose last Saturday, Newton added one more link to its unbroken chain of victories by defeating the Carters of that place, 11-7. The home team and the crowd on the bleachers combined to rattle the Newton men, who nevertheless played a very steady game.

The game throughout was an exhibition of dirty ball playing by the Carters, who resisted all attempts of the visitors to make the game a gentlemanly one, and, seconded by a howling mob on the bleachers, endeavoring to get the game by roving.

The management failed to provide enough balls, and every few minutes there was a long wait when the ball went over the fence.

The field was in very bad shape, the outfield especially, it being full of holes and flooded with water in many places.

Bowen did splendid work in left, accepting all his five chances and making an unassisted double play at second. Supple was Carter's best man. The score:

Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient, always reliable, easy to take, easy to operate.

Malden, 15, Newton Upper Falls, 10.

The Maldens and Newton Upper Falls played a loose, but interesting game in Malden last Saturday. The general showing of the home team was good, Brown, Blackman, Connell, Eaves and Donovan doing the best. For the visitors Jope caught excellently, and Sammy Curran did good work in the box. Newton 58' Everett 45.

On Stearns field Saturday afternoon Newton met Everett, and won in a well-contested game. "Parson" Davidson showed up in his old time form for 17, and that promising young player, Genest, did well, with 13. Everett batted in good shape, but was not able to reach Newton's total. NONANTUM.

—Next Saturday the cricket club will play the B. A. A. at Longwood.

—The small drinking fountain has this week been in use for the first time this season.

—The Twilights defeated the Marines of South Boston, last Saturday, by a score of 28 to 10.

—Today the Eliot school scholars will receive a visit from their parents and friends.

—Two young children of Mr. James Murphy of Watertown street are reported ill with diphtheria.

—Mr. William Ballantyne of Allison street won first prize in the bicycle race at the Scotch picnic last week.

—Mr. Fred Crawford of Watertown, will lead the Euclid Baptist mission meeting in St. Elmo hall next Sunday afternoon.

—Wednesday afternoon the Jackson school was opened to visitors and the work of the scholars the year past, was viewed by the parents and teachers.

—In the police court Monday morning, Timothy Malloy of Brighton, who left Newton suddenly nearly a year ago, answered to the charge of maintaining a liquor nuisance on Cook street, from June to August of last year. Officer McAleer of division 2 was the complainant. He was found guilty, and was fined $100.

—Tuesday evening Charity lodge I. O. G. T. enjoyed a strawberry festival in the Athenaeum hall on Babby street. A pleasing entertainment was furnished by the members assisted by the friends from Cambridge, Boston, West Newton and Newton Lower Falls, who were also among the guests. Refreshments followed.

—The widening of Pearl street is about completed, and the residents of the vicinity are thankful for this improvement. There is considerable building going on the vacant land at the corner of Pearl and Watertown streets, and the foundations for several houses are being constructed. The roadway to be known as Langford road, is being carried through from Pearl to Morse street.

—The 30th anniversary of the North Evangelical church Sunday school was held last Sunday evening. The occasion was observed with appropriate exercises by the children including recitations, calisthenics, and singing. Mr. George C. Dunn delivered a congratulatory address, and Mr. Reuben Fornall, the retiring superintendent, spoke of his pleasant connection with the school, and closed with a few farewell remarks. The reports of the officers showed a slight decrease in attendance, though the affairs of the school were in a most satisfactory condition.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

Dickens's Oliver Twist, condensed for home and school reading by Ellis Boyce Kirk, with introductions for the parent or the teacher, and analytical questions for examination of the young reader, is added to Appleton's series of "Home Reading Books" is convenient, inexpensive, and attractive. There are a few pictures after the incomparable originals by Cruikshank. 60c.

The Beautiful Miss Brooke is an interesting example of the modern "bachelor girl," which is fast supplanting the independent and clinging pink and white maiden. As an instance of the American artist abroad, Miss Brooke is in the same class with Daisy Miller, only she is brought a little more up to date. Mr. Louis Zangwill has given her a unique setting, a single flirtation in the life of a brilliant and somewhat unscrupulous girl, and a very impressive Englishman. Miss Brooke was poor, and the temptation to land a wealthy nobleman was too much for her. But it is pity for herself, and not pity for Paul Middleton that leads her to reveal herself to him and break the engagement. Dull respectability? unmitigated misery? No! she must be wayward and happy in her own way. There is a world of romance in the pangs of passion and remorse that shake the slender volume. Appleton's Town and Country Library.

The Private Life of the Queen is the title of a new book by a member of the royal household, which will be published immediately by D. Appleton & Company. It is a special interest in the personality of Queen Victoria caused by the celebration to take place shortly, imparts a peculiar value to this book, which is the most comprehensive work on the Queen's daily life, habits, and immediate surroundings that has been published. It pictures the Queen's personality in a singularly intimate and entertaining way, and the account which she gives of the Queen's private life. The author, a member of the royal household, writing by authorization, has not only had every opportunity for acquiring information, but she also has the gift of expression, as she has proved by other successful ventures in literature.

Peter the Great is the title of a new work by K. Valisewski, author of the remarkable success "Romance of an Empress, Catherine II of Russia." The new book, which is to be of striking interest, will be published by D. Appleton & Company.

Appleton's series of History for Young readers is published in dainty little volumes, which give the main facts in the history of the great nations of the time, written in an attractive style, and in a way to cultivate the taste for serious reading. The two volumes that have come to hand are England, by Miss Francis E. Cooke, and Germany, by Kate Freileigh Kroeker. Miss Cooke takes up the English story with the landing of Julius Caesar, and brings it down to the passing of the third reform act in 1884. The writer aims to give a clear conception of the growth of the English nation, and chronicles the principal events in its history and circumstances that brought about its development. In the German history, the story begins with the wars of the ancient Germans with the Romans, and ends with the accession of the present emperor. Only the broader outlines of course can be given in a small volume, but they are such as give an intelligent idea of the course of this great empire, and to arouse the young reader to further investigation. Parents could hardly find better books for their children.

Appleton's series of Home Reading books is further enlarged by another volume in the field of Natural History, "In Brook and Bayou, or Life in the Still Life," by Clara Kern Baylis. (60 cts.) The book has an introduction by the editor, Prof. W. T. Harris of Washington, who gives some excellent hints to parents and teachers, about the proper way to interest the young in serious reading, which is one of the valuable things in the volume. The author aims to interest children in the beginning of things, in the study of animal life. The book has an abundance of plates, showing the small animals that inhabit our ponds and pools, and their wonderful construction as revealed by the microscope, and the writer says her chief aim has been to show the child how much more interesting the world is than it ordinarily seems. The lower forms of animals are first treated of, the Desmids and Diatoms, which may be said to have been caught in the act of turning into animals, and so on up through the scale of life to the crustaceans, giving many interesting details. Such books can not fail to arouse the powers of observation, and to make the student see how full of life the world about us, even when man is absent.

Uranus and Saturn.

For the first time since April, 1894, the planet Uranus is in position to describe and easy to identify. Down in the southeast is the red star Antares, the heart of the Scorpion. Above are three bright stars in a curve, whose center would be just above Antares. The upper one is Beta, the middle one is Delta. Close below Beta is Omega, which shows in operation as a fine double star. Nearly as far above Delta as that is above Antares is the planet Saturn, the brightest of the group. Below and to the right of Saturn, nearly as far from it as Delta is from Beta, is Kappa Librae, just visible to naked eye, the four forming a long rectangle. Close above Kappa and nearly as bright is the planet Uranus, the two forming in operation a glass as a fine double star. To the right and above Kappa, half as far from it as is Saturn, is the very faint star 41. On June 5 Uranus was in line from Kappa toward Saturn. He is slowly moving toward 41 and which he will pass about the end of June. Saturn is moving parallel with Uranus. Uranus is the next planet beyond Saturn and twice as far away. E. G. C.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. SOME FACTS ABOUT NEWTON

WHICH HAVE BEEN PRESENTED TO THE POSTAL AUTHORITIES AT WASHINGTON.

The following facts about Newton will be of interest to every one on account of the agitation that has been raised over the location of a central postoffice:

1. The city contains twenty square miles.
2. Every resident usually builds as far from the center of the city as possible in order to be as near as possible to the Boston & Albany railroad station, the post-office, and the provision stores on which his family rely.
3. Until within five or six years the B. & A. line has been the only means of travel. The main line from Boston to Worcester was built at the beginning of the century. The villages along the main line were the first located and the main line postoffices have been established about forty years. The so-called Circuit Road was completed in 1886. The first circuit mail was sent January 21, 1891. Before that the villages on the circuit were on a branch line with their mail going and coming through Boston, for they had not, and they have not now, any through line east or west.
4. The City of Newton contains seven wards, with a population in 1895 of 27,930. Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4 are on the main line of the Boston & Albany railroad and contain but 3,019 acres. For convenience of the citizens, the city is divided into these wards as the northern half of the city.
5. Wards 5 and 6 contain 5,455 acres and are on that branch of the B. & A. called "The Circuit." For convenience we will call this, the southern half of the city.

The following comparative statistics are from the manual of city government for 1897:

- A. Population by Census of 1895—Northern half, 19,236; southern half, 8,354.
- B. Real Estate—Northern half, $26,654,360; Southern half, $13,171,200.
- C. Personal Estate—Northern half, $7,614,275; southern half, $3,109,450.
- D. Total Valuation—Northern half, $33,668,575; southern half, $16,340,650.
- E. Assessed Polls—Northern half, 5,977; southern half, 2,420.
- F. Registered Voters Nov. 3, 1896—Northern half, 3,559; southern half, 1,592.
- G. Republican Votes cast—Northern half, 4,541; southern half, 1,157.
- H. Number of Acres—Northern half, 3,619; southern half, 5,455.

- I. Average Population to the Acre—Northern half, 4.9; southern half, 1.5.
- J. Municipal Representation—Northern half, 5 aldermen, 10 councilmen; southern half, 2 aldermen, 4 councilmen.
- K. Population by Wards—Northern half, 7,429; southern half, 4,287. Ward 1, 5,412; Ward 2, 3,433; Ward 3, 3,574; total population of northern half, 19,236; southern half, Ward 5, 4,114; Ward 6, 4,240, total 8,354.
- L. Center of Population—Ward 2 on the main line of the Boston & Albany R. R. contains the center of population of the entire city. Thus: West, Wards 3 and 4, 6,067; Ward 2, 5,412; East, Wards 5 and 6, 8,317; south, Wards 5 and 6, 4,114, 4,240.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mrs. Fisher is visiting Mrs. Leach of Chestnut street.

—Mr. Charles Johnson of High street is sick with malaria.

—Frank Proctor returned Saturday from a trip to Worcester.

—The different stores were closed yesterday in honor of Bunker Hill Day.

—Mrs. Mary Caverly has bought a new house on Chandler place and now occupies.

—Miss Maggie Mullen is ill at the Carney Hospital, suffering from diphtheria.

—There are letters in the post office for Wm. J. Hall, John Hoyt, and Walter Smith.

—A large addition to the working force at the Newton Rubber works was made this week.

—It is reported that the Henry Billings estate has been bought by F. W. McAleer and others, who will immediately begin to develop the property.

—Quite a number of the Masonic fraternity attended the exercises of the Norfolk lodge in Needham Monday evening.

—Seven carloads of Needham children enjoyed a ride from that place to Newtonville and return Tuesday afternoon.

—A meeting of Echo bridge council Royal Arcanum was held Wednesday evening. After the transaction of regular business, a strawberry supper was enjoyed.

—C. A. Gould of Woodward street reported police headquarters Sunday night that some time during the evening some one stole his bicycle, valued at $75, from his yard.

—Children's Sunday was fittingly observed at both the Baptist and Methodist churches last Sunday evening. The special services consisted of singing and recitations by the young folks.

—The street railway people are the subject of some unpleasant criticism on account of their action in leaving wooden poles and paving stones on different streets. The residents feel that the streets would be much improved with these articles removed.

—The Christian Endeavor society enjoyed a lawn party on Mr. John Coward's estate on Eliot street last evening. There was a large attendance of young people, and the prettily decorated grounds were well filled. The affair was in every way a success.

—The pupils of the Wade school gave an exhibition of their work in drawing, science and story in the large hall of the school building Wednesday morning. The exhibition was well attended by parents and friends, who highly commended the work of the various classes. The exhibit of the kindergarten classes proved especially interesting.

—There is great opposition in this place to the proposed plan of the postoffice inspectors in abandoning the present post-office in establishing simply a stamp agency. It seems to be the general opinion that the facilities would be injured by this plan rather than improved. With but two mails a day, the service would not be as good as that which Waban receives.

—There is in this place four of the largest manufacturing interests in the city namely: Pettie Machine Works, Gamewell Fire Alarm Factory, Newton Rubber Works and the Silk Mill. These concerns do a large mailing business and require prompt service. The money order office is well patronized by the employees of the different factories, who would find it a great inconvenience to transact business at Newton Highlands. Upper Falls people say they have taken no part in the contest for the central postoffice, and would like to be fairly treated. They say that progress is marching backward in this instance.

BOGUS AUTOGRAPHS.

ROBERT SPRING'S SUCCESS IN BOLD LITERARY FRAUDS.

His Specialty Was the Signatures of Early American Patriots, and His Forgeries Are Treasured by Many a Collector. How He Was Detected.

One of the most expert of autograph forgers flourished in this country and for a time enjoyed a success only equaled by that of the notorious Vrain Letter, the Frenchman who victimized M. Charles, the savant, to the tune of 40,000 francs. The name of this rogue was Robert Spring, and though the actual scene of his rascality was not New York, there are many in New York's collection that are infected by his fabrications, and that, too, in the department now held in highest esteem—that of American history, and especially of Washington.

Spring was a Londoner born, and served his time as indentured clerk to a scrivener of that city. This person, Furnival by name, was a noted bibliophile, and it was in his employ that Spring doubtless acquired his knowledge of old books and his marvelous facility in using the pen.

It was in 1845 that Spring came to this country and opened a bric-a-brac shop in Baltimore, dealing also in rare books and autographs. In the last line his business was large and profitable, as he made the autographs himself, needing no other tools than the stump of a quill pen, a bottle of brown ink and a few blank leaves taken from the volumes on his shelves. Encouraged by his success, he overdid the thing, and Baltimore became undesirable as a place of residence. So he removed to Philadelphia in the early fifties (1854 it is supposed) and opened another curiosity store on South street, west of Broad, and for a number of years did well and even prospered.

Collecting autographs was a fashion of the time, and Spring fabricated them by the ream, asserting in later years that he had sold at least 600 Washingtons, besides many Clymers, Franklins, Hopkinsons, Jeffersons, Whipples and others. He was very partial to the signatures of the signers. In fact, and supplied them to the trade and libitum. He not only had much knowledge of the way Revolutionary history, but also was an excellent narrator, and is his convivial moments a most amusing companion. His frauds must have been almost numberless, for he did a large business, both in New York and Canada, selling to a lawyer in this city 60 bogus letters from Benedict Arnold and his wife Margaret, while he supplied the erudite Edwards with many Franklins and Washingtons.

Suspicion was first aroused against him when the library of one of the early American judges, a connection of the Washington family, was sold at auction in Philadelphia. Many of the books had in them the autograph of Washington, and these naturally brought high prices. But it was thought extremely odd to say the least, when in one of the volumes a letter of Spring's was found, worded ambiguously and offering his services to some one interested in the sale, a nephew of the judge. Moreover, a copy of a book printed in 1804 was also traced with Washington's signature. It is difficult to see how Washington could be so easily duped, but the fact published after his death, and this posthumous proceeding provoked much talk, well informed bookmen being of the opinion that Spring's omnivorous industry in deception had been employed in giving a fictitious value to volumes with the autographs. However, this was mere suspicion, and came to nothing.

Perhaps, indeed, if Spring had led a regular life he might never have been more than dimly suspected. But for his drinking habits it is a question whether he would have been detected at all. Wary and reticent when sober, he was just the opposite when drunk, and toward the last of his life this was his usual condition. While intoxicated he would make no secret of his forgeries, but would take up a pen and show his skill by writing a Penn, a Clymer or a Morris. To a friend he declared that he had sold to a country clergyman an autograph of Pontius Pilate for $3, and he described with much humor the trembling eagerness with which this modern Dr. Primrose secured his fabled prize.

His actual detection was due to a Dr. Davis of Philadelphia, to whom he had sold a number of the signatures of the signers. By accident one of them became wet and faded out. It was then found that it had not been written with ink, but with a brownish pigment which the forger himself had made. Dr. Davis' inquiries made Spring's swindling manifest. Spring was arrested and taken before Mayor McMichael, who declared that there was no excuse for such pranks. "Collectors," he proceeded to say, "had the means of testing the characters of these writings by comparison with numerous authentic specimens of the handwriting of the immortal Washington, to whom we are so indebted," etc. Accordingly, a Washington autograph was borrowed for the moment from the Independence hall collection, about the genuineness of which there could be, of course, no doubt. This autograph was laid side by side with the forged paper. Their agreements were startling, but confusion and tribulation followed when Spring said quietly:

"Why, gentlemen, that's one of mine too!"

For a few seconds there was silence, and then unmitigated disgust at themselves among the collectors assembled in court. Then the mayor told Spring that the dignity of the law would be vindicated in his case some day, and the forger left the room as soon as possible. Deprived by exposure of his former income, he lived meagerly and miserably, wasting in wretched dissipation the few dollars he made by petty forgeries. Finally his habits demoralized him completely, and he became reckless in his swindling and escaped imprisonment frequently only on the plea of extreme poverty. At length he died in the Pennsylvania hospital of asthma, aggravated by intemperance. Though he has been dead many years, his fabrications still exist in large numbers and enrich many collectors. Valueless papers are hard to trace, and, moreover, some collectors would object to the tracing. It is not always agreeable to have the authenticity of one's collection questioned.—New York Sun.

The Popes.

Two hundred and ninety-three popes have succeeded each other, and only 11 of them, including the present pope, have reigned more than 17 years. Leo XIII. has reigned 19 years. Plus IX. reigned 32 years, thereby justifying the popular superstition that no pope would reign more than 35. Leo owes his fine health and astonishing powers of work, firstly, to his frugal upbringing in the Italian hills, and in the next place to his regularity of lifelong abstinence. He lives on less than 5 francs a day.

Send for handsome pamphlet, "How Best to Heat Your Home." GURNEY HEATER MFG. CO., 163 Franklin Street, corner Congress, Boston, Mass.

"I am here on my feet steady for twelve hours every day and only get a chance to sit down to a meal once a day. The rest of the time I eat by fits and starts and, of course, I do considerable drinking in a day, consequently my stomach used to be out of order most of the time and I would have a bad taste in my mouth every morning. I was telling this to a traveling man one night and he advised me to try Ripans Tablets. I did so and they are simply great. I use them regularly every night, and my stomach doesn't bother me at all now. I keep them here, too, under the bar, and many's the young fellow I've made swallow one as he was leaving here for home pretty late and pretty full. One taken then is certain to stave off the headache that you know is likely to come under such circumstances next morning."

A new style tablet containing TEN RIPANS TABLETS in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low priced set is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (50 tablets) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the FRANKS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. —On Saturday June 5th and Tuesday June 8th, occurred the recitals of Mrs. Bird's pupils. They were largely attended and both affairs were highly interesting and entertaining. All of Mrs. Bird's pupils played with a style and individuality that mark them as musicians, and the playing at the two recitals was no exception to the rule, all playing in a most artistic manner.

—A leading event of the week was the lawn party and promenade concert held Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. Charles S. Davis on Pleasant street. It was given under the auspices of the First Congregational church society, and proved in every way a social and financial success. The handsome grounds were made brilliant by festoons of Japanese lanterns, and other elaborate decorations which greatly added to the illumination and charming effect. A feature of the evening was the music furnished by the Euterpe mandolin, banjo, and guitar club, the selections being especially fine. The committee who arranged the affair should be congratulated on its success, as their efforts were untiring to attain this end.

—Col. and Mrs. Edward H. Haskell, and the Misses Haskell were guests of the Secretary of the Navy on Thursday, on the occasion of the presentation of the statue of Victory to the Battleship Massachusetts.

—Services at the Unitarian church at 10.30. Sunday school at 12. At 5 o'clock, Rev. B. F. McDaniel will preach on Boston Common. June 17, the Hale Union gave a picnic to sixty children from the Parker Memorial. The day was spent at Gooch's Cave.

—Yesterday morning the Chestnut Hill Club ball team defeated the Miltons on the club grounds and defeated the latter by a score of 12 to 11. The game was a rattling good one, and was much enjoyed by a large number of spectators. Lunch was served at the club house at the close of the game.

—Associates hall was crowded Tuesday evening, the occasion being the strawberry festival given by the church debt society of the church of the Sacred Heart. The hall was handsomely decorated, and presented an attractive appearance. The principal feature of the evening's entertainment was dancing, which was enjoyed until nearly midnight. During the evening refreshments were served. The affair was in charge of a committee of young people of the church, who are deserving of praise for its success.

—Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, a successful lawn party was given yesterday afternoon and evening on the grounds of Mr. F. M. Fowle on Norwood avenue. The lawn was brilliantly illuminated and crowded by church members and friends who thoroughly enjoyed the evening. The evening's amusement included singing by the Plantation Quartet of Claffin University, Orangeburg, South Carolina, with banjo and mandolin accompaniment. Refreshments were also served.

—On Saturday, June 12, eighteen children, pianoforte pupils of Miss Speare, Miss Malle and Miss Wheelock, gave an interesting recital in the Unitarian church parlors. The little people did their work with a determination and purpose that will well be envied by older pupils. The parents showed great interest not only in their own children's progress, but also the combined results of these young teachers. The young ladies are pupils and assistants of Mrs. Bird and this being their first public recital much interest was manifested.

—Late last Friday afternoon, Officer Taffe found three little children wandering about the streets of this place. He sent them to police headquarters, where they gave their names as Mary J. Bradley, 8, George W. Bradley, 2, and Eva Pearson, 4. It was ascertained that their home was on Nonantum street, Brighton. While they were being conveyed to Brighton in the patrol wagon, they were met by their father, who was anxiously looking for them. They had walked all the way from Brighton to this place in search of their father's place of employment on Waverley avenue, Newton.

—The Church of Our Saviour at Longwood was the scene of a fashionable wedding, Wednesday evening, when Miss Alta Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hall of Newton, was united in marriage to Mr. H. H. Howe of Brookline officiating. The maid of honor was Miss Margaret K. Shepard. The bridesmaids were Miss Grace Howell, Miss Sonies, Miss M. Kendall and Miss O'Brien. The ushers were Messrs. A. Turner, Edgar J. Rollins, Walter Saucy, C. W. Fitz, Charles Pierce and A. D. Denison. A reception followed at the residence of the bride.

—Members of the Newton Centre Golf club opened their attractive new clubhouse last Saturday afternoon with an informal reception from 2 to 6 o'clock. There were over a hundred guests representing the society folks of the Newtons and Brookline. The reception room was tastefully decorated with potted plants and a profusion of wild flowers. On the floor were laid handsome rugs, which with the elaborate furnishings and the extensive decorations produced a charming effect. The house committee which includes Rev. E. M. Noyes, Mr. D. W. Kidder, Mrs. R. F. Alvord, Mrs. Clinton Hunter and Mrs. A. A. Tiley, received assisted by members of the club. Light refreshments were served. The clubhouse is situated at the junction of Langley road and Ripley street or at the foot of the links. It is two stories high, and has on the upper floor a side of the second story are wide verandas. The lower floor is used principally for the storage of bicycles, and articles taken on the links. On the upper floor are two large rooms. The large reception room is connected with locker-room which contains some 40 lockers. During the afternoon the home club played a team match with the Wollaston club with the following result:

—Master Walter Greenwood entertained his teachers, Miss Annie Lamphier, Miss Gallison and Miss Henshaw, last Monday, in honor of his tenth birthday. Dr. Caroline Wentworth also favored them with her presence. Recitations and singing by Master Greenwood and his sister was a feature of the entertainment.

—The preparations for the lawn party, which is to be given in aid of All Souls' Unitarian society, at Mrs. Patterson's, Hartford street, on Saturday, June 26th, are nearly completed, and there is every prospect for a very enjoyable and successful affair. The dolls and the various articles for the bazaar are being made up. It is thought that it will be postponed to June 26th. As boys will not feel greatly interested in dolls, a "Grab Bag" will be given, and the prizes will be such things as boys delight in, and they will feel amply compensated for not being girls.

—It was the Children's Sunday at the Congregational church last Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with red plants and evergreens. One child was presented for baptism and two children received Bibles, it being the tenth anniversary of their baptism. Selections of music were rendered by the former quartet, and a short sermon by the pastor. A Sunday school concert was given in the evening, and the Boys' Brigade, who are also members of the school, were present in uniform. Mr. Wentworth of Boston made the address. A very large congregation was present at both the morning and evening services.

—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Congregational church will occur on Thursday, June 24. From 5.30 p. m. to 7.30 p. m., reunion and reception. 7.30 p. m., historical address by Hon. James F. C. Hyde. Addresses by Rev. Daniel L. Furber, D. D., pastor emeritus of the First church, and the former pastor of those who left that church to organize one at Newton Highlands; Rev. Edward M. Noyes, pastor of the First church; Rev. Henry J. Patrick, D. D., pastor emeritus of the Second church, and a member of the council, which was called to recognize the church at Newton Highlands; Rev. George G. Phipps, Rev. Lawrence Phelps. NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Crehore have returned from their wedding trip and are at their home here.

—The service in St. Mary's Episcopal church next Sunday morning will be of unusual interest. The Dalhousie Lodge, A. F. and M. S., by invitation of the chaplain, Rev. H. U. Monro, will attend church service and listen to a special sermon for the occasion. The Dalhousie quartet will attend and render appropriate music with the regular choir. The public is cordially invited.

—The Methodist church celebrated the raising of the church debt, Thursday afternoon, the exercises beginning at 3 o'clock. The interior of the edifice was filled to the doors with members of the congregation and their guests. On the pulpit platform were seated the distinguished speakers. The pulpit platform and other parts of the church, were handsomely decorated with masses of flowers. The program, though of some length, was of a very fitting and appropriate character. The different addresses were of especial interest. The singing by Prof. and Mrs. Dobbins, and Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, was cordially received. Mayor Cobb was the principal speaker, and spoke of "The City's Debt to the Church." He was thankful to express what a debt was owed the church by the city. To it was owed the best type of citizenship. The church is that which keeps the city and state nearest the master. It is always safe in questions that come before the state and nation. In questions when their welfare is considered, there was never a time when it was not right. To the church the city and state owe everything. In every effort to uplift humanity, the church is always looked to for great assistance. Other speakers followed Mayor Cobb, after which refreshments were served on the lawn. A committee of young ladies were in charge of the tables. Following was the program:

Organ prelude. Mrs. Josie Wales
Music: Duet from the Orotorio of Naaman, Prof. and Mrs. A. Dobbins.

Rev. William R. Clark, D.D., A former Presiding Elder.

LOWERS THE RECORD.

THE ATHLETIC SPORTS AT THE NEWTON CLUBS GROUNDS.

On the N. C. A. A. track yesterday afternoon, Tom Burke of the New York athletic club picked 1.5 of a second off Lon Myer's world's record for 500 yards.

Flanagan, the Irish champion, tried to break his own record in hammer throwing, and although he failed to touch his former figures, he easily outclassed his competitors, Ellery Clarke and Healey, the Tufts man.

The first event on the program was the mile team race between Cambridge high and Andover. Cambridge was represented by W. W. Garrett, H. J. Winslow, G. L. Dow and W. A. Applegate, and Andover by F. W. Haskell, C. N. Kimball, C. H. Schweppe and A. H. Richardson, Garrett of Cambridge was off in the lead and secured a lead of about three yards at the finish. Garrett on the second lap got away even more quickly and increased the lead to nearly 10 yards, which Winslow widened up to 15. In the fourth lap Richardson nearly pulled the race out for Andover. At the half he was only four yards behind Applegate of Cambridge and finished only two in the rear. The winning Cambridge team finished in 3m. 33s. In the 16-pound hammer throwing the contestants were J. Flanagan, scratch; E. H. Clarke, B. A. A., 23 ft. and Rollo Healey of Tufts, 20 ft. Flanagan's best throw was 138 ft. 7 1/2 in., but on a foul he covered 142 ft. flat. Clarke covered 121 ft. 10 1/2 in actual throw, and Healey 127 ft. 8 1/2 in actual. The event was won by Healey, distance 147 ft. 8 1/2 in.; E. H. Clarke second, distance 141 ft. 10 1/2 in.; J. Flanagan third, distance 138 ft. 7 1/2 in.

The last event was the 500-yard handicap, with Tom Burke at scratch. There was a good field of fast men out, but the interest centered in Burke's attempt to out Lon Myer's record of 58s. The starters were T. E. Burke, N. Y. C. A.; Henry Lyons, N. Y. C. A., 15 yds.; A. H. Richardson, P. A. A., 20 yds.; F. W. Haskell, P. A. A., 30 yds.; H. W. Burdon, N. C. A. A., 30 yds.; Leicester Warren, H. A. A., 20 yds. and C. H. Schweppe, P. A. A., 23 yds.

There was a stiff breeze blowing at the start, which was against the runners. Before the first turn was passed Burke was half way through the bunch, and at the half L. Burke was in the lead, but he was far in the lead, and finished with plenty of space to spare. He ran a heady race and kept himself well in hand from the start. His time for the 500 yards was 57 4/5s, just 1-5 under Myer's record. His time for the quarter was 51s. flat. Haskell finished second and Richardson third.

It has been suggested that as the national government received $50,000 from the Charles River, it would be only a fair return for the government to locate the main post office in the village where the donor lived and to use the money in putting up a suitable building for such an office. Certainly no resident of any other part of Newton ever gave the government any money.

This week there have been several transfers of patrolmen in division 2, which went into effect Tuesday afternoon. Patrolman Campbell of division 2, who has covered a night route at Newton, has been assigned to mounted duty, and will cover a day route in Newton. Patrolman O'Halloran of division 2, has been transferred from Newton to Nonantum, and Patrolman McAleer and Kiley have been transferred from Nonantum to Newton to fill vacant routes.

The underwriters bureau of New England members held an annual outing at the residence of U. C. Crosby of Park street, Saturday. After luncheon had been served the afternoon was devoted to making practical tests of devices for preventing and extinguishing fires. Among those present were J. A. McDonald of New York, E. G. Richards and A. C. Adams of Hartford, John C. French, Geo. E. Kendall and Geo. B. Kendall of New Hampshire, Edmund C. Cowles, West Pollock, and E. M. Cragin of New York.

Newton Lodge 21, A. O. U. W., was visited Tuesday evening, by Grand Supervisor Warren F. Sanborn of Lowell and District Deputy W. L. Libbey of Roslindale, and a complimentary entertainment and dance. Both visiting officers addressed the company after which an entertainment was given consisting of readings by Miss F. M. C. Rich, R. C. Marsh and W. H. Pearson.

Last Saturday afternoon the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium members held their first 10 mile road race which was witnessed by a good-sized number. The start was made from the corner of Morse and Galen streets and the course was over the following streets: Morse, Watertown, Crafts, Walcott, River, Lexington to Commonwealth avenue boulevard and return. There were twelve entries but only seven made the start. The result was as follows: J. Boyce, first, handicap, 1 min, time 32m 17s; H. Paine, second, handicap 1m 38m, time 32m 17s; Walter Whitney, third, handicap 2m, time 32m 45s; H. W. Kenway, fourth, handicap 4m, time 34m 27s; C. V. Moore fifth, handicap, 3m, time 34m, 40s; O. H. Adams, sixth, scratch, time 31m, 18s; Harry Belcher, seventh, handicap 5m, time 37m, 81s. Boyce was the winner of the first prize and Adams of the time prize. The prizes of a silver water service, silver cake dish, presented by Thos. Long Co., bicycle shoes, E. E. Barnes' league base ball, C. H. Campbell; tennis shoes, J. McCann; golf stockings, Eliot clothing company; set of pictures, C. E. Harlow; pocket kodak, T. L. Mason; golf stockings, W. D. Shaughnessy.

The overhead bridge from Centre place to the temporary station was closed up this week and is being removed, much to the disgust of the large number who found it the shortest cut in getting to and from their homes. The bridge is said to have been in the way of the permanent tracks, and an obstacle to the grading of the station grounds, which the road desires to have finished as soon as possible. People now have to go round by Washington street and have to start for their trains several minutes earlier. There is a general demand for the including of a good corner from Mr. Brackett's wood yard in the approach to station grounds from Centre place, as the entrance from Centre street is to be rather narrow, judging from the grading now being done, and teams will have to enter from one street and leave by the other. The covered walks each side of the station are meeting with a good deal of ridicule, as the roofs are so high up and so narrow that they will be no protection from the rain, unless it should happen to come straight down, and but very little from the sun. The roofs are rather ornamental, but that is about their only merit. There is also no covering to protect people entering or leaving carriages, and as so large a proportion of the Newton patrons of the road come in carriages, it is strange that no attention was paid to their protection from the weather. In these respects the new station is far inferior to the old one, and too much attention seems to have been

ALDERMEN CONSIDER HOSPITAL MATTER MONDAY EVENING WITHOUT FINAL SETTLEMENT—VOTE TO HOLD A CONFERENCE WITH COMMON COUNCIL AND HOSPITAL TRUSTEES THIS EVENING—MEETING WILL BE PRIVATE, NO NEWS-PAPER MEN WANTED—SEVERAL IMPORTANT ORDERS, INCLUDING APPROPRIATIONS OF $10,000 FOR SIDEWALKS—DEPARTMENTAL EXPENSES $163,000—PLANS FOR REMODELING PIERCE SCHOOL HOUSE.

The most important matter at Monday evening's session of the board of aldermen was the Newton Hospital contract. It was taken from the table on Alderman Hobart's motion, and after a brief discussion was laid on the table by a vote of 3 to 4. The board may be said to have placed itself on record as opposed to the discussion of important matters in public. The vote to hold a private conference with the common council and hospital trustees clearly showed this.

It was 8.15 before the meeting was called to order by Mayor Cobb, a lengthy session of the ordinance committee causing the delay.

HEARINGS.

A hearing on the gas company's petition to attach wires to the telephone company's poles on Shaw street was opened.

Mr. Bell, a resident and property owner on that street, was the first remonstrant. He was utterly opposed to the placing of additional wires on that street, and would ask the board to have all poles and wires removed, and placed underground. He produced a petition to this effect, signed by every resident and property owner on that street, with two exceptions. These two, he said, were out of town. Mr. Bell, speaking further of the poles, characterized them as an eyesore, and unsightly. Messrs. Barnard, Lowry and Fuller also objected on the same grounds as Mr. Bell. On motion of Alderman Bailey the hearing was closed.

At the hearing on the telephone company's petition to attach wires to the gas company's poles on Hull and Appleton streets, no one appeared and the hearing was closed.

The next hearing in order was on the petition of the gas company for location on Winthrop street, with permission to telephone company to use poles. Mr. Whitmore was the first remonstrant. He objected to such poles as would be constructed, and presented a petition in remonstrance, with many signatures. He also read a letter from Mr. H. A. Fyfe, who was also opposed. Mr. Chandler spoke further in opposition, and the hearing was closed.

A hearing was opened on William Kellar's petition to erect a wooden building on 505½ on Webster street. No one appeared on either side and the hearing was closed.

PETITIONS.

The following petitions were received and acted upon as follows: Residents of Watertown street, for concrete sidewalks, highway committee; telephone company to attach wires to gas poles on Shaw street, Ward and Hammond street, hearing ordered for June 28; Max Becker, for junk license, granted; J. T. Cushman, to sell gunpowder, granted; D. A. Vachon, to sell gunpowder, granted; James Monahan, junk license, granted; of Mrs. R. Urbino for repairing of brook drain on Auburn and Greenough streets, highway committee; of John Adams and others for concrete sidewalks on Auburn street, highway committee; gravel sidewalks on Neholoid road, highway committee; two street lamps on Neholoid road, street light committee; C. F. Driscoll for two express wagons at Chestnut Hill, granted; Mellen Gray and others for laying out and acceptance of Albany avenue, highway committee; Erastus D. Colburn and others for a license for the communication of superintendent of buildings relative to the erection of a coal and wood yard near the Centre street crossing of the Boston & Albany Circuit tracks at Newton Highlands. The petitioners asked that a hearing be granted that they might be heard in opposition. A hearing was ordered June 28 at 9 o'clock. Petition of the telephone company for location of poles on Cabot and Walnut street, hearing ordered June 28; of George Johnson, for street bank, granted; of Max Fluchman for junk license, granted; of Isaac F. Kingsbury for concrete sidewalks on Seminary road, highway committee; of D. Selenne for innholder's license, granted; of John A. Andrews for reconstruction of plank sidewalks on Hammond street, highway committee; for concrete sidewalks on Seminary avenue, highway committee; for concrete crossings on Myrtle and Seminary avenues, highway committee; of the telephone company to use poles of the Commonwealth avenue street railway on Commonwealth avenue, granted; of A. D. Claffin for concrete crossings on Homer and Walnut streets, highway committee; of A. P. Claffin and others for concrete sidewalks on Walnut street and Commonwealth avenue; of Albert Metcalf for private telephone wire on Fountain street.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

On the petitions for concrete sidewalks on Chestnut street and Lake avenue the committee reported favorably. On the petition of Edlinboro street residents asking that the name be changed to Page road, the petitioners were granted leave to withdraw. On petition of Crafts street residents asking that the name of a portion of Crafts street be changed to Walnut, the same action was taken.

The finance committee reported in favor of an additional appropriation of $10,000 for sidewalks and street crossings. The street railway committee reported in favor of granting the Newton & Boston street railway company's petition for a turnout on Walnut street, at junction of Commonwealth avenue.

THE HOSPITAL MATTER.

Alderman Hobart moved that the Hospital matter be taken from the table. He said there seemed to be some misunderstanding in regard to what the city was to pay. He judged from the remarks of Alderman Downs at the last meeting that the latter understood the city was to pay for part-pay cases. This was incorrect. The committee was willing to pay only for services actually rendered. This was explicitly shown in the contrary public opinion that all bills must be approved by the overseers of the poor and the board of health. He had yet to hear of a person who had anything to say against the committee's report. On the contrary public opinion seemed to be that the city should pay fully and liberally, no matter what the cost. Comparisons with other hospitals were very favorable to the Newton institution. The city of Cambridge paid $10 a week for those cases sent by the overseers of the poor, and $20 a week for those of the board of health. Those that were sent to the Carney hospital were sent there for personal reasons. As to figuring the actual cost, the full expenses of running were in his opinion the actual cost of maintenance, as much as they would be to any business house. The hospital had already taken care of the city patients six months with absolutely no pay, and it seemed only right and just to pay about a speedy settlement. Mr. Hobart then read a letter from Mr. G. S. Bullens, which follows:

A LETTER FROM TREASURER BULLENS. To Alderman K. Hobart, Chairman of Committee on Hospital Contract. Dear Sir:—In looking over the "Newton Graphic's" report last week of Alderman

Downs' statement to the board of aldermen, when the Newton Hospital contract was presented as recommended by the special committee, I was astonished with the facility with which the alderman could figure out the cost per week, by leaving out a good many expenses and deducting a part of the receipts, viz:—amounts received for support of free beds. If he would deduct a few more things, he could probably make the cost five dollars a week less, but his "figurative" statements do not alter facts.

But seriously, my annual report for 1896 stated that the expenses of the Hospital were as follows:

Services of matron, nurses and help,	$7,634.91
Groceries and provisions,	5,640.31
Lighting,	1,042.08
Fuel,	5,071.21
Medical supplies,	2,479.70
Cost of maintaining ambulance,	364.00
Sundry disbursements of the matron,	1,054.84
General repairs and other expenses,	5,207.27
Total,	$29,888.27

All of the above amounts are correct, and every item can be substantiated by vouchers and by the auditors. The $29,888.27 does not include anything expended by the Hospital Aid Association for needed items, which amounts to about $600.00 as per their annual report. Alderman Downs in his statement deducts the item of $5,397.25 for general repairs, and other expenses, and also $3,300, contributions received for support of free beds. The item $5,397.25 is just as much a necessary item of expense toward the maintenance of patients as any of the other items, as you will see by the statement in detail which I send with this; and as for deducting a part of the receipts in order to arrive at the cost of running the Hospital, it is ridiculous, as any business man would say, and not worthy of consideration.

I therefore reiterate my statement that the cost for 1896 was $29,888.27, and dividing this amount by 247½, the number of weeks of Hospital treatment as stated to me by the superintendent, makes the cost per week $120.90 for all cases for 1896.

We do not ask the city of Newton to "contribute to a constantly accumulating fund," but to pay us at cost for value received, and that is all we ask or expect to receive.

Your committee have gone into this matter very thoroughly, and reported their findings to the city council, and it is very unfortunate that your report could not have reached the endorsement of every member of your honorable board. Regarding the amount of money on hand Jan. 1, 1897, I will refer you to my statement in the Newton papers, made under date of March 1, 1897, and also to my annual report, showing on hand, instead of $13,084.00 as reported by Alderman Downs. Of this amount, $7523.67 was received from the churches of Newton the last of the year 1896, for use in 1897. This matter of cash on hand, however, has nothing to do with the case under discussion. I merely wish to correct Alderman Downs' statement, and to say in his own words (taken from the Newton Graphic, that the Newton Hospital trustees "want it settled on business principles and not on sentiment." The Hospital trustees are entitled to respectful consideration, and are also entitled to have this matter settled very soon, and before the summer adjournment of the city council, as it has been before them for five months. The Hospital has not received any money from the city since Feb. 1st, 1897, for services rendered, and has consequently been obliged to borrow to meet its current expenses. What would have greater relevancy to this discussion, and we wish to emphasize this point, is the comparative statement of cost of treatment at different hospitals, which was included in the report by the committee, showing that whereas the cost of the contagious ward was $10.90 per week, or exclusive of contagious cases the cost was about $10.11, the cost at the Waltham Hospital was $13.29. Mass. General, 9.76 Boston City, 11.40 Worcester, 14.98 Lynn, 8.76 thus showing the economical administration of the Newton Hospital. Of these hospitals only Newton and Waltham include contagious cases in their charges.

Cash in bank,	$4470.14
Total,	$9470.14

Geo. S. Bullens, Treas. of Newton Hospital.

Continuing, Alderman Hobart said, in estimating the actual cost the committee had not considered what money the Hospital had received or whence it came. These facts had no bearing on the actual cost. The Boston City Hospital estimated its cost in this way. He believed the recommendation of the committee to be absolutely just and fair.

Alderman White moved as an amendment that the board, with the common council, hold a conference with the hospital trustees, Friday evening. This he said should be private, at which the representatives of the press could not be present. He stated that he made this motion in order that the newspapers might not get hold of everything that was said, for many things might be said that ought not to be spoken. Alderman Roberts hoped that the amendment would not prevail. The special committee had had several conferences with the hospital authorities, and the matter was well understood. He thought it should be settled at once and without further delay.

Alderman Knowlton seconded Alderman White's motion. He thought the conference would bring about a better settlement and the matter would be understood more thoroughly.

Mayor Cobb explained that a motion to lay the matter on the table could be made, and carried by a majority vote of the board to meet him and discuss this question. The board could not vote to hold this private conference.

Alderman Downs took exception to the figures of the hospital. He agreed the ordinary repairs should be included in the expenses. But some of those of $600.00, included in this sum, were for extraordinary repairs, and he had reason to believe they would not be so included by any business man.

Alderman Bailey said he would vote against Alderman White's motion. If it did not get settled now, and without any other conference, it was a most profound subject. This conference he thought unnecessary and would therefore vote against laying the matter on the table.

The vote was put and carried, Alderman White, Knowlton, Allen and Downs voting yes, and Alderman Hobart, Bailey and Roberts no.

ORDERS. An order was adopted appropriating $6000 for the completion of the Park and Tremont street widening.

Also $14.17 to be paid to W. F. Bacon. For the transferring of $250 from miscellaneous expenses appropriation to appropriation for police department, to meet the July 4th expenses.

For the construction of concrete sidewalks on Chestnut street and Lake avenue. The city treasurer was authorized to issue $15.00 worth of 4 per cent bonds to mature in 1927, and be designated "Newton water bonds."

An order was adopted requesting the public property committee to consider immediately plans for the remodeling of the old Pierce school building, for additional city offices and quarters for the police department and municipal court. The order included an appropriation of $500 for plans.

An order was adopted appropriating $163,000 for the departmental expenses of the city in July and August, and $1928 was appropriated for the construction of water mains in George street, Manet and Langley roads.

An order for the widening of Chapel street was adopted.

Also allowing the telephone company to use poles of the Commonwealth avenue street railway company.

Also granting the telephone company pole locations on Hull and Appleton streets.

Appropriating $10,000 additional for the construction of sidewalks and street crossings.

Also granting the Newton & Boston street railway a turnout location on Walnut street near Commonwealth avenue.

OTHER MATTERS.

Mayor Cobb appointed William Kirby a special policeman. Also 30 special patrolmen for duty July 4th and 5th.

Chief Randlett of the fire department presented a communication, calling the attention of the board to the need of additional hydrants on Bowdoin, Borden and Needham streets. The matter was referred to the water board.

A communication was received from the board of health notifying the city council of the completion of the Felton drain at West Newton, which was constructed under its orders.

A communication was received from the superintendent of buildings Elder, presenting the petition of the Warren & Hill coal company, who asked permission to construct a building, suitable for the storage of coal, in the Boston & Albany freight yards at Newton Centre. Referred to the license committee.

City Engineer H. D. Woods submitted a plan for numbering streets.

Remonstrance was received from the Bassett and May estates. Received and placed on file.

A remonstrance from Lasell Seminary against the construction of concrete sidewalks along Commonwealth avenue was received and placed on file.

Adams D. Claffin, L. H. McLain, N. C. Smith and others were appointed special policemen for duty on cars of the Commonwealth avenue street railway and North-bega park.

At 10 o'clock the board adjourned until next Monday evening, when the last meeting of the season will be held.

Refusing South American Trade.

The speech of Coolidge S. Roberts at the dinner to the South American business men, interested many of his friends in Newton, as he is a prominent member of the Newton Club, although he recently removed to Cambridge. The Boston Correspondent of the Springfield Republican says: "It has been my fortune today to talk with Coolidge S. Roberts, who has been charged with violating the proprieties in bringing in the subject of the tariff in his speech at the club. He is a duly accredited delegate here of the chamber of commerce of Buenos Ayres. He is a member of it, has lived in the Argentine Republic for many years, conducts a large trade both ways, sending out cargoes of our manufactures and importing hides, wool and other products of the Argentine Republic. He received two urgent letters from the chamber of commerce there, asking him to act as their official representative, and he is fully conversant with the feelings of the members of the delegation from the other South American countries. He was not only not out of taste, but he would have failed to rise to the opportunity of the occasion if he had failed to speak in the line in which he did. If the tariff passes, as it probably will, it will have a ruinous effect upon commerce between our country and South America, which might be made more profitable than it is now."

The comments in behalf of the Home Market club are noted, as also the declaration of Congressman Walker in favor of our policy of protection, and impressing it upon the visitors. But the truth ought to be known to those who depend upon the politicians for their facts and party inspiration, that there is a prodigious dissatisfaction here among the people with the tariff, and that it is the duty of the politician to be the Dingley or Aldrich sort. These people recognize that it is going to hurt business for many of our republicans. Names of prominent republicans are given, and it is pointed out that the tariff is a protection to the protectionists, and the average voters in the interior who are not in touch with the course of events may be reassured that there is high here in Boston with the pending tariff, and that there is being prepared an excellent basis for the revolt against the McKinley administration which is predicted by even some of the leading republicans. Last fall the republican majority assured the public that it was their purpose to enact only a moderate tariff. Now the manufacturing interests and trusts are repudiating that which is denounced by republicans as worse than the McKinley tariff which the people repudiated in 1890 and 1892. If ever there was deliberate playing into the hands of the democracy, this is it.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. of James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. R. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemminger, 222 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. Free Trial Bottles at J. G. A PROFITABLE IMPROVEMENT.

The foresight of the projectors of the Commonwealth Avenue extension will be still more evident when the figures of the assessors are made up, and the increase in valuation this improvement has brought will mount up into seven figures again for this year.

Last year had it not been for the increase from this source the tax rate would have been much larger, and the large number of new buildings put up within a year, and the increase in the value of the land, will again help the city out. It is said that the increase in valuation has been already sufficient to pay all the interest on the cost of the improvement, besides leaving a balance that would make a very respectable start towards a sinking fund to pay off the whole debt.

The men who planned this great improvement of course had their own selfish interest in mind, but they were also able to see what a great benefit it would be to the city, and the results will be still more gratifying as the years go on, and the unoccupied territory is built up. The boulevard runs through the most attractive part of Newton, as most of the land is high, commanding extensive views, and in every way adapted for the handsome residences that are being built along its course. At first it was thought that its distance from the railroad stations would be an objection, but fortunately there are large classes of people who do not want to have their homes adjoining a railroad station, and the street railway that has been now extended to Riverside seems to accommodate all those who do not keep their own carriages.

The amount of travel of all kinds that passes over the boulevard would astonish those who have not become familiar with it, and now that the boulevard is finished, it will tend to increase. The whole improvement is one of the greatest that a city like Newton ever undertook, and its successful completion may well be a source of congratulation to every citizen, who is interested in Newton's future.

EXCEEDING THE APPROPRIATIONS

The order appropriating $10,000 additional for sidewalks and street crossings would seem to indicate that the regular appropriation must have been expended without regard to any considerations of economy, and also without regard to the present financial condition of the city. There is no possible excuse for exceeding the original appropriation in any department, this year, in view of the high tax rate of last year, and the probability that it will be equally high this year. It is going altogether too fast to use up an appropriation before the middle of the year, without any public exigency calling for extra expenses. The original appropriation was a liberal one, and the sum was fixed by men experienced in city affairs, who felt that that was all the city could afford to lay out for sidewalks during 1897. If the committee have expended what was allowed them recklessly, and have no money left for cases where walks are urgently needed, then they are to blame, but that is no reason for granting an additional appropriation. The order ought not to pass the city council, and if it does it ought to be vetoed by the mayor.

What assurance is there if this order passes that the highway committee will not ask for an extra appropriation for highway repairs, or that other committees will not come forward with similar orders. When once the policy of exceeding the appropriations is begun, then it is time for the tax-payers to make vigorous protests. The committees all knew at the beginning of the year how much money they had to expend, and if they go ahead and expend it in the first six months, then they show very poor business management. Ten thousand dollars may not be a very large sum but it is the principle of the thing that is vicious, and that would ruin any corporation or city that followed such a policy.

A due regard for the interests of the city, its reputation as a place of moderate taxes, will not allow of any exceeding of regular appropriations, and adding to the tax rate of the present year, which will under the most favorable circumstances be as high as it is now to have it.

This much-discussed hospital contract was up again before the aldermen, Monday night, and after discussion it was voted to invite the trustees to another conference, this evening. Alderman White thinks some of the aldermen are so impulsive that it is a mistake to have reporters around, and to get around the difficulty, the hospital trustees are invited to a private conference with the mayor, and the aldermen will have the privilege of being present. It would certainly seem to be about time for the board of aldermen to be able to make up its mind on this question, which has been dangled over ever since the beginning of the year. The hospital needs the money, it now has to borrow to raise enough to pay the regular expenses, and the sum asked for is what has been voted in previous years. People generally feel that it is not to the credit of Newton to treat its only charitable institution in such a niggardly fashion, and as though the city council thought the trustees were going to steal the money. If this petty struggle is to be gone through with every year, it will be impossible to get any honorable men to serve as trustees, for they are paid nothing for their services, and only consent to serve as a matter of duty, and a wish to help those who are ill and suffering, and certainly their duties should not be made needlessly unpleasant.

The rumor that sacred concerts were to be given on Sunday at Norumbega Park interested a great many residents of the city, who enjoy music, but, owing to the lack of open air concerts in the city, have few opportunities to hear it out of doors. Nothing certainly could be more appropriate to the day than properly conducted concerts of this kind, in the long summer afternoons, and the concerts would certainly have furnished innocent enjoyment to a great number of people, who would have otherwise nothing to do. Most cities have concerts of this nature in summer, and it was thought that they would be welcome in Newton, especially as Mr. Adams D. Claflin, the President of the Norumbega Park Company, was to have charge of them, and was willing to submit the program in advance to the License committee, and these were to include popular hymns, and selections from the best composers of sacred music. Such concerts would have been an education to the people, but curiously enough the License committee refused a permit. It is difficult to see on what grounds, as the Park consists of many acres, the company own land on both sides of the river, and there were no residents near enough to be disturbed. It is hoped the committee will reconsider this action, as certainly the concerts, if properly conducted, as they would be, would be of great benefit to the people.

THERE seems to be a general effort to brace up throughout the country, and politicians and others who have been bemoaning the hard times are now beginning to talk about a revival of business. People like a change, and so the movement is meeting with favor, and if the talk is kept up long enough good times will be brought about. It is noted as rather curious that those who have complained the most of hard times are the people who live on a regular income or a fixed salary, and as the latter are by far the largest class in the community, their despondency has had a good deal to do with the hard times. They have economized, and as everything they purchased was cheaper than ever before, they have really been making money, as their incomes have not been cut down. When they realize this, and begin to take a more hopeful view, and use some of their hoarded money in paying bills and making purchases, the effect will be beneficial in every direction of business.

WORK has at last really begun on Washington street. Double tracks for the street railway have been laid from Adams to Crafts street, and two steam rollers and a large force of men are putting this section into condition. Above Crafts street the water department men are changing over the water main to the north side of the street. The rails have arrived for the double track in West Newton and they will probably be laid next and that section of the street fixed up. A stone curb has been laid most of the way on the north side from Newton to West Newton, and there is some hope now that this great thoroughfare will in time be a credit to the city.

MR. CUMMINGS of the West End Street Railway told our board of aldermen, before Tremont street was widened, that it would not pay the road to do anything toward the expense of widening, as the extension of the tracks to Newton would not bring them a profitable business. Perhaps he may have really thought this, but it is doubtful if any street railway line out of Boston pays as well as the one to Newton. Even in winter the cars were crowded for several hours of the day, and at the present time there is a demand for more frequent cars, so that those who wish to ride, can get seats.

THE Newton Education Society is to be formed next Tuesday evening at the Central Congregational church, Newtonville. This society will appeal to all interested in education and such a society is capable of doing a great work in Newton, if the people take hold of it in earnest. Little needs to be said in its favor as so much interest has already been aroused, but the notice for next Tuesday evening's meeting in another column will interest all who wish to know more of the new society.

The permanent tracks are being laid in the railroad depression, and a good deal of progress has already been made, so that it looks probable that trains will be running in the subway early next month. The work is now in such a condition that every day the progress is perceptible, and Newton will soon be freed from the present unpleasant condition of things.

UPPER FALLS kicked to some purpose over the taking away of its postoffice and making all its residents dependent on Newton Highlands for their mail. It is now to be placed on the same footing as the other villages and have a station with carrier service. The oldest postoffice in Newton is to be congratulated.

THE new postoffice regulations will go into effect July 1st, but it is hardly probable that the carrier system will be inaugurated until two weeks later, owing to the delay at Washington, in reporting on the recent examination for carriers.

To Montreal via Central Vermont Route.

Probably no more desirable excursion will be offered this season than that to Montreal on the occasion of the annual meeting of the American Institute of Instruction, which opens its sessions in the Canadian metropolis July 9, and continues through three days. The advance sale of tickets and the many inquiries at railroad offices concerning the gathering indicate that New England will be represented by several thousand teachers and others. Already special parties have been made up to go from Worcester, Springfield, Lowell, Providence, Hartford and New Haven, via White River Junction and St. Albans, over the scenic Central Vermont route, and from Boston a special through fast train will be run to Montreal via the Central Vermont route, leaving Union Station at 9 a. m., July 8, and arriving in Montreal about 6 p. m. in season for evening dinner. In addition to being the direct route to Montreal, the Central Vermont is also the most attractive. It crosses the Green Mountain range at the summit pass one thousand feet above the sea, passes under the shadow of two of its highest peaks, skirts the picturesque northern shores of Lake Champlain, in full view of the "blue Adirondacks" and enters Montreal over the Victoria bridge, one of the great engineering wonders of the world. On the return trip stop-over privileges, good till July 31, are allowed at all stations north of White River Junction in Vermont, including Montpelier, Burlington, Burlington, and Lake Champlain resorts and at points in Canada south of St. John's. The low rate of $9 for the round trip from Boston and the opportunities offered for an ideal vacation on Lake Champlain's shores or in the mountains of Vermont ought to convince thousands who have not yet made their vacation plans that this is the trip to take.

AUBURDALE.

—Ivers & Pond pianos, Farley, Newton.
—Rev. Mr. Steele is reported as improving in health.
—An additional horse has been placed in the horse house.
—The John Dragoon has returned home from Dartmouth.
—Mr. H. R. Turner and family of Central street are summering at Point Allerton.
—Dr. and Mrs. Robinson are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Torrey of Woodbine street.
—The masonry of the Weston bridge is being repaired and a new railing constructed about the sides.
—Parents who wish their children taught foreign languages by native teachers will be interested in an advertisement on the 4th page.
—Mr. W. H. Blood, Jr., of the firm of J. L. Chase, Boston, has been in charge of the work of erecting the electrical fountain in Norumbega Park.
—At the Congregational church a very interesting address was given Sunday evening by the Rev. F. E. Clark, who has just returned from South Africa.
—The guests at the Woodland Park Hotel were entertained Tuesday evening with a series of readings and impersonations by Mr. Wentworth Harris.
—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Almy of Woodbine street are entertaining Mrs. Louise Almy of Fall River and the Misses Louisa and Nancy Almy of Tiverton, R. I.
—This week the swimming tank at the Riverside recreation grounds was opened and has been liberally patronized by members of the association and the Newton Boat Club.
—Chief Justice A. F. Judd of the Hawaiian Republic and Mr. Judd's party, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Farley of this place. Mrs. Farley is a niece of the distinguished jurist.
—The alarm from box 443 Tuesday afternoon, was for a lively blaze in the 2-12 story frame dwelling house on Tremont road owned and occupied by E. Hutchinson. The fire started from an overheated stove, and the damage amounted to $100.
—Last Friday night a black cloth bag was found in Dorchester bay, bearing papers belonging to Miss Agnes E. Graham, a teacher in the High School, who was home in Hingham. A promising sensation was spoiled by the discovery that Miss Graham was safe at home, and the bag had been stolen from her at the Old Colony depot, and the thief after taking the $20 in money that was in the bag, probably threw it out the car window into the water.
—The Newton Boat Club gave another of its series of informal and musical concerts at its clubhouse in Riverside Saturday evening. The clubhouse and grounds were thronged with guests, and the river in front was almost a solid mass of boats and canoes. Strings of Japanese lanterns were arranged along the river front and about the clubhouse. Music was furnished by Reeves' American band. Following the concert, dancing was enjoyed by the assembly hall from 9 until 10:30 o'clock.
—Auburdales is crowded with its usual June complement of guests, including many who have made the Woodland Park Hotel their summer home for a number of seasons. Saturday evening the second in the series of weekly informal dances was given in the large assembly hall, preceded by a promenade concert. Recent arrivals—W. G. Atkinson, Mrs. H. S. Perkins, F. G. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stetson, Mrs. W. G. Richardson, G. W. Gale and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Little, W. E. Abblett, Mrs. A. M. Hobart, J. C. Baird and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Whitney, W. E. Afternoon and Evening.

Frank Hunt and Mr. Merrill Hunt, Boston: Mr. and Mrs. John Duffer, Halifax.

—Mr. Edward Greaves of Boston visited friends here Monday.

—Mr. D. M. Young and family of Maple street are at the seashore.

—The Misses Crane of Maple street were visiting in Cohasset this week.

—There are letters in the postoffice for L. H. Goddu, A. D. Johnson and Mr. William H. Coffin.

—Quite a number of young men from this place enjoyed a yachting trip down the harbor Sunday.

—Mrs. L. P. Ober of Islington gave an informal reception at her residence Wednesday afternoon, in honor of her birthday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Little have closed their apartments in Boston and are at the Woodland Park Hotel for a few weeks.

—The highway department has about completed the construction of the Commonwealth Avenue extension. The new road is proving a great attraction for bicyclists and will greatly add to the Newton boulevard system.

—Chief Justice and Mrs. A. F. Judd have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farley of Central street. Last Friday afternoon a reception was given in their honor. Mr. Judd is chief justice of Hawaii, where he was born and spent a greater part of his life.

—The anniversary and thank offering meeting of the Auburdales Auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society was held Sunday morning in the Methodist church. Miss Laura Marsden White of Hingham, China, delivered an address on Chinese Missions. Mrs. A. E. Barber sang.

—Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baird of Boston celebrated their 19th wedding anniversary at the Woodland Park Hotel. The observance took the form of a variety, for which a reception was held. The table decorations consisted of roses and daybreak pinks, and everywhere in the decorations appeared the figures 19.

—Last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. E. L. Pickard, Miss K. M. Plummer's piano pupils met to play to each other and their friends. Miss Gertrude Young and Mr. George P. Pickard assisted, making the occasion very interesting with their songs and flute solos. Though all enjoyed the music, the ambitious numbers performed by the older pupils and soloists, the work of three little people called forth the most applause. A song, "Gay Little Darling," played and sung by Esther Blueing, was most warmly received.

—Loring Wales, 17, of Brookline, had a narrow escape from drowning in the Charles river below Norumbega Park Monday morning. About 8 he was sailing in a light canoe when a sudden gust of wind caught the craft. Young Wales was entangled in the ropes, and was unable to swim. His perilous position was seen by James McLeod, who was working on the bank near by, and he at once swam to the boy's assistance. He managed to clear the boy from the ropes and dragged him ashore, little the worse for his experience.

TO PARENTS.

Mrs. Theodore W. Gore of Auburdales proposes to open a school in the fall for the study of foreign languages, particularly of French and German. It is proposed, if sufficient interest is manifested, to have the location of the school practically central to all the Newtons and near the electric.

Qualified native teachers, French and German, will be obtained for the instruction of the pupils, and a committee will be chosen of recognized authorities in the knowledge of languages to advise in the selection of these teachers.

If thirty pupils are assured, the tuition fee will be $10 for the school year, payable semi-annually in advance.

The instruction will be entirely in French and German, and as far as possible, and as soon as the age and condition of the pupils warrant, the occupations will resemble those of a foreign school room (mathematics, geography, history, and other studies being carried on entirely in French and German), the object being to bring the pupils to THIN in the new language.

To this end a whole morning or afternoon session will be devoted entirely to each language, and the two sessions will be arranged to suit the different ages and capabilities of the applicants for instruction, who will, as a rule, devote their time to one language. At the same time that French is taught in one room German can be taught in another.

This school will be started in the interest of the young in Newton, whether girls or boys, and while it will not be desirable that any beyond the age of youth should enter the regular morning and afternoon sessions, special lessons can doubtless be arranged for any such who should desire to receive the peculiar advantages of the school. Children over four will be eligible.

Mrs. Gore will be pleased to call on or correspond with any who feel interested in this subject.

—Services at the Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday evening, June 26th, the last of the popular short talks on stray subjects, will be given by the pastor, Rev. Franklin Hamilton. The topic for the evening will be "England's Jubilee, or Victoria Sixty Years a Queen." This will be a special commemorative service in observance of the great jubilee which the whole English speaking world has been holding during the past week. The address will discuss the extraordinary events and give some description of the places and character of the festivities in England. All seats are free and all are invited. Special music. In the morning at 10:45 Mr. Hamilton will preach on "Enriching the Christian Life." All are invited most cordially.

—It is hoped that many people will take the opportunity before leaving Newton for the summer, of inspecting the "Potato Patch" of the Garden Department of the Associated Charities. The new line of electric cars that run through Adams street, pass two sides of the lot on Chapel and California streets. The late season and the heavy rains have interfered with the early crops, but the more important later ones are promising well, and the garden is well worth a visit. Thirty-three lots have been assigned to more than 25 families. If the scheme does not conduce to the moral as well as material benefit of some of these, it will be a great disappointment to its promoters. Money is needed, for this and other departments of the Associated Charities. Contributions can be sent to the Treasurer, Hon. Edward L. Pickard of Auburndale.

—The regular meeting of General Hull lodge A. O. U. W. will be held this evening.

—Dr. Stoddard's daughter, Mabel, who has been ill with a mild attack of diphtheria, is convalescent.

—It is expected that the trains on the B. & A. road will run on the two permanent tracks already laid before July 13, or in just one year's time after the abandonment of the old road. This gives the citizen an opportunity to progress rapidly in the work on Washington street.

—Mr. John F. Payne has made a number of improvements in his store, since the block was raised. The present brick desk has been moved back making the front store considerably larger, a handsome mosaic floor laid, and last but not least a fine counter in front of the soda fountain, topped with a handsome Tennessee marble slab.

—The annual convocation of Gethsemane commandry was held Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: Commander, Clarence Tebbetts; Generalissimo, Samuel Shaw; Prelate, George Brodwin; Capt. General, Frank Nagle; treas., Lewis E. Binney; Recorder, A. C. Jewett; Sr. Warden, E. G. Pond; Jr. Warden, W. E. Jarvis. The officers were installed by Right Eminent District Deputy Grand Commander, A. L. Harwood. A banquet was served at the close of the business meeting.

Ice cream, cake and cigars, intermingled with able speeches were the order of the evening. A large number of members were present, and a royal good time was enjoyed.

Newton's Postoffices.

A Washington dispatch this morning says:

Postmaster Gen. Gary yesterday signed the final orders abolishing the postoffice in the Newton Centre district. This settles all controversies and finally disposes of the dispute as to whether Newton Centre is to be a central point of distribution. The appeal from the decision of the first assistant postmaster general creating sub-stations in place of postoffices has been under consideration for some weeks.

A large number of petitions have been received and numerous statements, verbal and otherwise, and many facts have been presented, but the department stands firm by its original decision and the order for the abolition of the postoffice and the substitution of sub-stations has been finally approved by the highest authority.

There is now a proposition to make a full carrier station of Newtonville. A number of petitions have been received in behalf of this proposed division of responsibility, which would take some of the importance away from Newton Centre, but the department intends to proceed upon the basis already established for at least a few months, so that if there is a necessity for the establishment of a full carrier station at Newtonville or at any of the other towns in the cluster about Newton Centre the necessity may be developed.

The department desires to test the efficacy of the service with the delivery from Newton Centre, and to furnish a perfectly satisfactory mail service. Should it be found at any time in the future, whether that may be next fall or next winter, that the public needs will be served by the re-establishment of the abolished system, with headquarters at Newtonville or any other town, that can be easily done.

The order of June 10 consolidating the offices in Newton has been modified by making Newton Upper Falls a full carrier station, instead of a sub station as originally ordered.

"The towns in the cluster about Newton Centre" and the other blunders in the dispatch, only show the total ignorance of the department in regard to Newton.

What Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will also do for you. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all blood diseases.

NEWTON CLUB.

At the Newton club Wednesday evening the fourth in the series of promenade concerts was given on the grounds adjoining the house.

The tennis courts and the space within was crowded from 8 to midnight by more than 1000 of the prominent people of the Newtons. The grounds were illuminated with long festoons and effective clusters of electric globes of the club colors, cherry and white. From 8 to 11 an orchestra stationed on the lawn played, and light refreshments were dispensed at small tables scattered about the enclosed space. For those who tired of the music dancing in the large assembly hall furnished entertainment until midnight.

The athletic committee of the Newton Club in connection with a series of annual athletic events on the Cedar street grounds, July 5, is trying to arrange a quarter-mile match between Tom Burke and Wefers. In the afternoon the Newton Club A. A. nine will play the Staten Island A. C. nine.

There will undoubtedly be a large turnout at the athletic grounds on Saturday, when the Newton Baseball club line up against the visiting Australians. The latter are capable of putting up good ball. They can run like a deer and hit the ball hard, and the contest with our champions will be well worth seeing.

The Newton A. A. will have a field-day on July 4, when they will entertain the ball team of the Staten Island Cricket and Baseball Association. This is the team with which the noted Harvard player, Jim Tyng, played for so many years, and is a very strong organization.

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

A COMPLETE TOUR VIA THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Yellowstone National Park is unquestionably the most interesting region on the globe, for within it is displayed the greatest collection of nature's manifold wonders. Indeed, this mountain, lake and plateau, high up on the summit of the everlasting Rockies, is a veritable playground for the world's giant forces. To stand and gaze upon these in all their marvelous demonstrations, the great geyser upheavals, the fierce steam blasts, the terrible leap of the river, and the awful canon, is a revelation, an experience to be had on no other point on the earth.

The personally conducted tour of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which leaves Boston on September 1, affords the most satisfactory means of visiting this wonderful and interesting region. Tourists will travel by special Pullman train between New York and Cinnabar. Eight days will be spent in the Park. The round-trip rate from Boston, $245, covers all necessary expenses.

The London Vaudeville Company at Norumbega Park.

The spirit of intense but friendly rivalry prevailing between the American and foreign artists in the London Vaudeville company, which will wear Norumbega Park every afternoon and evening during the week of June 28th, is made manifest at every performance. The native performers are continually on their mettle to prove themselves equal to the European celebrities, while the latter naturally feel that the honor of the profession in their own lands is entrusted to their keeping to uphold in a strange country. Many points of excellence are thus brought into keen competition in artistic achievement, and while the sympathies of the audience are usually with their fellow-countrymen, candor compels the admission that from an impartial point of view it is next to impossible to decide which are the most meritorious. The company appears at Norumbega Park, next week, every afternoon and evening.

On and after April 1st the half of Hubbard's former drug store, 402 Centre St., Newton, will be occupied by the Newton Business Exchange. Desk room and order boxes will be to let, and a number of local business men and jobbers will make this their headquarters from 7 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Applications can be made to C. G. NEWCOMB, 334 Centre St.

BEDOUIN SONG.

From the desert I come to thee
On a stallion shod with fire,
And the winds are left behind
In the speed of my desire.
Under thy window I stand
And the midnight hears my cry:
I love thee, I love but thee,
Till the sun grows cold
And the stars are old
And the leaves of the judgment book unfold!

Look from the window and see
My passion and my pain.
I lie on the sands below,
And I faint in thy disdain.
Let the night winds touch thy brow
With the heat of my burning sigh
And melt thee to hear the vow
Of a love that shall not die
Till the sun grows cold
And the stars are old
And the leaves of the judgment book unfold!

My steps are nightly driven,
By the fever in my breast,
To hear from thy lattice breathed
The word that shall give me rest.
Open the door of thy heart
And open thy chamber door,
And my kisses shall teach thy lips
The love that shall fade no more
Till the sun grows cold
And the stars are old
And the leaves of the judgment book unfold!

—Bayard Taylor.

A CAPTURED HESSIAN

In one of the most beautiful parts of the valley of the Brandywine, not far from where the historic stream curves around the bold bluff of Point Lookout, there stood in Revolutionary days and still stands a farmhouse of the good old colonial type. The blue smoke curling upward from its wide chimneys seemed always to savor of the good cheer within, and over its spreading roof the branches of great maples hung. At one side was the orchard, and by its edge wound the lane, to join the road beyond.

One day in October, 1777, the autumn sunbeams sifting down through the leaves of the maples flickered upon the curly heads and homespun clothes of two boys who, seated on the great stepping stone in front of the door, were busily digging in the dust with their bare toes. They were brothers, and their father, whose name, with the date 1760, was cut on the stone beneath them, was a Quaker of the strictest type.

As this was Fifth day, he had ridden off with his wife behind him to Birmingham meeting house, a few miles up the valley, in spite of the danger from roving bands of the British army. The boys were left at home, for the father judged them safer there, especially as a body of continentals were encamped by the stream below the house.

Suddenly David, the elder boy, dropped a walnut burr on his brother's toe; then, jumping behind a tree to protect his own feet, he shouted: "Let's feed our chickens. I'll race thee to the barn."

In a moment two pairs of brown legs were twinkling in the sunlight as their owners sprinted toward the great stone barn, hidden from the house by the grove of maples. Past the corncrib they raced and up the slope to where the great barn doors stood wide open, letting in a flood of sunshine on the hay strewn floor. It was still quite early in the day.

They had reached the threshold nearly abreast when both stopped short and stood amazed. Well they might, for on a pile of hay just within the doors lay a redcoat—a Hessian captain, judging from his long boots and his uniform—sleeping heavily, with his sword and pistols lying beside him.

With one impulse the boys turned and ran, never stopping until they were safe behind the corncrib, out of sight of the redcoat, should he awake. What could a British soldier be doing in their barn? There could be but one explanation—he must be the leader of a night foraging party; he must have lain down in the barn for a nap while his men went about the neighborhood. They must have struck the American camp and been driven across the Brandywine, away from their sleeping captain. That would explain the firing which the boys had heard in the night.

They could not allow a Hessian to sleep in their barn, especially as they had seen some of their pet chickens with twisted necks lying beside him, ready to be carried off.

What should they do? If they went to the continental camp for aid, he might awake while they were gone and escape with the chickens. Young as they were, they readily imagined that he would burn the barn and even the house itself if there were time, for they never reflected that he would be exceedingly careful to do nothing likely to attract notice from the continentals.

"Ezra," said David, "we must get his sword and pistols and then force him to go down to the camp. It is the only way."

Little Ezra trembled at the audacity of this proposition, but both felt that the case was desperate, and nerved by this they crept stealthily back until they could again look on the sleeping enemy. Then David, angered by the sight of the murdered fowls, softly stole the pistols and the sword away from the sleeper's side. He gave a pistol to Ezra, who immediately got as far away from the hand which held it as possible and kept the sword and the other pistol for himself.

At this juncture the prostrate soldier awoke, and the boys, as if pulled by a string, scampered backward out of the barn. David, tripping over the sword, fell sprawling down one side of the incline, while Ezra rolled down the other. But nothing threatening followed, and after cautiously regaining their weapons they held a council of war and decided upon a plan of action.

Again the boys crept softly through the door, and while David hid himself behind some shocks of corn within the shadow of the corner Ezra climbed to the haymow, having first, to his great relief, hidden his pistol among the corn. He carried with him instead a sack full of grain.

Ezra, having reached his post, from which he could slip out of sight in an instant, overturned his load, and a cataract of golden wheat descended upon the unprotected face of the soldier.

In an instant he was awake. Confused and blinded by the shower, he sprang to his feet, groping vainly for his weapons. In a moment he would have been out and away, but David's voice rang out, sounding, muffled by the corn, like a man's. "If these moves, I will shoot thee!" The captain stopped irresolute. "If these looks behind thee or tries to escape, I will shoot thee through the heart! There must do just as I tell thee to do. Go out of the door and follow the path to the left, and mind these doesn't look behind thee!" David stopped, started at his own boldness.

The Hessian, sullenly obeying, stalked out into the field, followed by David, the sword hitting against his bare legs at every step. Ezra slipped down from the mow, regaining, not very joyfully, his pistol, and came on behind.

The redcoat felt sure that the mysterious command must be obeyed. Once before he had heard that Quaker "thee," and the memory was most clear, if not most pleasant. When first brought to England from his German home, he had, when given over to ale and ale filled companions, tried to break up one of the peaceful meetings of some Quakers. He had a vivid recollection of a young man in a collarless coat, who, following him out of the little meeting house, had said, "Although it is to the great hurt of my soul, it may be to the betterment of thine; therefore I shall try to drive you out of thee," and had thereupon given him such a thrashing that it hurt him yet to think of it.

With many muttered oaths and speculations as to who his captors could be, the Hessian strode along, making no effort to escape, for he heard the clink of the sword, and where it was he felt the pistols must be also.

A strange and most ludicrous picture the trio presented, as they marched one after another down the path toward the river, over the fields where the shocks of corn stood in the golden October sunshine, and the pumpkins lay changing from green to yellow. Down through the rich meadows, shaded here and there by great oaks and tulip trees, they marched, and through the spicewood thickets close by the water side.

At last they emerged from the bushes into an open grove, beside which rippled the Brandywine. Scattered under the trees were the white tents and the nondescript lean-tos of the Continentals' camp. No sooner was the queer procession seen than it was surrounded by a laughing, cheering crowd of soldiers, for discipline was strict in those days, and the movement was rebuked when the Hessian, daring at last to look around, went wild with rage and chagrin upon discovering the size of his captors.

But David and Ezra were on their dignity, and without a smile they brought the prisoner up to where the gray haired colonel stood, drawn from his tent by the commotion. David there called out, just as he had heard the soldiers do: "Halt, prisoner! Attention!" He then brought the great sword to his shoulder and saluted with the pistol, Ezra following suit.

"What is this, boys?" said the colonel, with a kindly smile. "Have you been raiding King George's camp and brought back a prisoner?"

"No," answered David, "but, these sees, this soldier was sleeping in our barn, and had killed our chickens, and probably meant to do more, so we got his sword and pistols and made him come down here to thee, and."

Here Ezra broke in: "Thee won't tell mother, will thee? For she would think it was fighting, and then Father Cope would speak about us in First day meeting." Ezra's voice was drowned by a roar of laughter from the circle of soldiers, and the colonel, smiling, promised to make it all right with their mother by going home with them and telling her what brave boys she had, if they would first honor him by taking dinner in camp, at which the boys were struck with pride and embarrassment in a way wonderful to see.

That dinner! The boys looked back to it with pride for the rest of their lives. How they toasted their country, and Washington, and the army, and everything else they could think of, in sweet Delaware cider, and how, much to their own confusion, they were toasted themselves!

But the crowning touch of all came when the Hessian, who had recovered his spirits after a hearty meal, entered, attended by his guards, and begged leave in very bad English to shake his two captors by the hand and asked permission to present David with the sword and Ezra with the pistols which they had held before under different circumstances, saying that they were from "youn old soldier to two young vuns." So he was a good hearted Hessian after all!

That sword and those pistols, after doing even better service than before for their country in the war of 1812, now hang in an old colonial mansion on the banks of the Brandywine, and many a youth has been inspired to true patriotism by the story of how his ancestors used them in the days gone by.—Henry S. Canby in Youth's Companion.

Men who can find their way through boundless forests and over trackless plains may easily be lost in the streets of a large city, a truth of which the Toledo Blade gives an amusing example.

On a recent trip of the City of Mackinac with a cargo of horses for a local lumber firm, came a backwoodsman. He had great reputation, as a "land looker." Without a compass, by the bark and moss on the trees, he had been known to traverse a quarter section without diverging 20 feet from the straight line from stake to stake. He had heard much of the city, and thought he should like to see some of the wonderful things that he had been told about.

He found work at once, his duties being to deliver lumber to the retail trade about the city. The first day a man was sent with him to show him the way about the town. The next day he was sent out alone, and did not return, and in the evening was found on the outskirts of the town with his load of lumber, so completely lost and unhappy that he had decided to stay there all night.

Three times he was sent to deliver lumber and three times he was found in another part of the city. Finally he asked his employer for transportation home. Said he, "I do not like these places where the sun changes its position every five minutes, and one street is made to go in four or five different directions."

The President and His Salary.
"I shall not attempt to answer the question, How much of his salary does the president expend?" writes ex-President Harrison in an article in The Ladies' Home Journal on "The Social Life of the President." "But those who think he can live at his ease after his retirement on the income from his savings should take account of several things—first, that the net income from safe investments does not exceed 4 per cent; second, that the amount invested in a home yields no income, and third, that he must have a private secretary, for his mail will be so large that he cannot deal with it himself. A son of one of our most eminent presidents who had lost all of his means told me that it was pathetic to see his father, who was in ill health, laboring beyond his strength to answer the letters that came to him. But if the president retains a fair measure of health he will take care of himself. If he was capable of directing the affairs of the nation, he may be trusted to administer his own business, and if he has won the esteem of his fellow citizens and has rightly valued it he will not barter it for riches. To any vocation from which a man may be suitably called to the presidency he may suitably return."

SNOBBERY OF EDUCATION.

The College Girl Who Affects an Air of Superiority.

Editorially, in The Ladies' Home Journal, Edward W. Bok expresses himself vigorously in denunciation of the tendency to introduce a dangerous element of snobbery into education. He notes the prevailing "I know so much" air that is encountered on all sides, and the feeling that a line is being drawn on a so called educational basis. Mr. Bok contends that "an educational process which sharpens and polishes only a girl's intellect, and either deadens or neglects her heart or soul, is a sorry imitation of what an education really stands for and is. The practice followed by some girls who believe in college, holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and snacks of the most repulsive kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how little we know."

"The people most humble in their opinions are generally the best educated. It is an art which only a few of us learn, to be reticent of our own opinion when every one around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But the girl fresh from her books and college does not always perceive this. She is apt to assume, for example, that people are uneducated if now and again they speak ungrammatically. But she does not know that the most vital truths ever spoken or written, the truths which have done mankind the greatest good, have not always been those which would have borne grammatical dissection.

"The good boy in his school would rather than in the way in which the sentences were constructed. It is when we are young that we believe that all that is worth knowing is printed in books. When we are older, we find that the deepest truths are never written. It is well enough for a girl to hold up for herself a standard in grammar or anything else. But she is conceited, if she is so sure that the standard is the one by which she must judge and measure others. She has no right to do so in the first place. And in the second, she is far more apt to be wrong in her deduction than she is to be correct."

GENERAL GRANT'S UNIFORM.

He Disliked to Change a Coat That He Found Comfortable.

General Horace Porter describes the advance on Petersburg in one of his articles in The Century on "Campaigning With Grant." General Porter says concerning Grant's attitude toward dress:

The weather had become so warm that the general and most of the staff had ordered thin, dark blue flannel blouses to be sent to them to take the place of the heavy uniform coats which they had been wearing. The summer clothing had arrived, and was now tried on. The general's blouse, like the others, was of plain material, single breasted, and had four regulation brass buttons in front. It was substantially the coat of a private soldier, with nothing to indicate the rank of an officer except the three gold stars of a lieutenant general on the shoulder straps. He wore at this time a turndown white linen collar and a small, black "butterfly" cravat, which was hooked on to his front collar button.

The general, when he put on the blouse, did not take the pains to see whether it fitted him or to notice how it looked, but thought only of the comfort it afforded, and said, "Well, this is a relief," and then added: "I have never taken as much satisfaction as some people in making frequent changes in my outer clothing. I like to put on a suit of clothes when I get up in the morning and wear it until I go to bed, unless I have to make a change in my dress to meet company. I have been in the habit of getting one coat at a time, putting it on and wearing it every day as long as it looked respectable, instead of using a best and a second best. I know that is not the right way to manage, but a comfortable coat seems like an old friend, and I don't like to change it."

The general had also received a pair of light, neatly fitting calfskin boots, to which he seemed to take a fancy. Thereafter he wore them most of the time in place of his heavy top boots, putting on the latter only when he rode out in wet weather.

The School "Shows Off."

In illustration of the way in which teachers' lessons are frequently lost on their pupils a Chicago teacher tells a story of some of her pupils' "showing off" under her auspices. She had been drilling into them one afternoon the difference in the meaning of the words "taught" and "learned." Over and over again in the presence of a late visitor she had explained the use of each of the words and had given them several examples in which the words were correctly used.

"Now," she said, "I think you have learned your lesson as well as I have taught it to you. Willie, will you give me a sentence with the word 'taught' in it?"

A fair haired urchin on the front seat spoke up promptly: "I thought it was time for school to let out!"

"No, no! Mamie, you may give me an example," she said, turning to a bright girl farther back.

"I thought it was time go home," answered Mamie, with an air as if she had done exactly the right thing.

And, though she tried several times more, no other form of the word than the variation "I thought" could the teacher get out of her school.—Youth's Companion.

War Getting Out of Date.

"It won't be long," said the thoughtful man, "before all possibility of war among civilized nations will vanish forever."

"I quite agree with you," returned the member of the peace commission, grasping his hand and shaking it warmly. "We have unquestionably done noble work."

"You!" exclaimed the thoughtful man. "What have you done?"

"Not very much personally perhaps, but as a member of the peace commission."

"Peace commission nothing," interrupted the thoughtful man. "The thing that is going to end all war is the fact that they have reached that point in the construction of mammoth cannons where a new national debt is created every time one is discharged."—Chicago Post.

Runaway horses are unknown in Russia. No one drives there without having a thin cord with a running nose around the neck of the animal. When an animal bolts, the cord is pulled, and the horse stops as soon as it feels the pressure on the windpipe.

More

Curative power is contained in Hood's Sarsaparilla than in any other similar preparation. It costs the proprietor and manufacturer more to make the job more and it is worth more to the consumer. More skill is required in its preparation and it combines more remedial qualities than any other medicine. Consequently it has a record of more cures and its sales are more than those of any preparation. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to buy because it is an honest medicine and thousands of testimonials prove that it does actually and permanently cure disease.

SCHOOL BOARD.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT MATTERS PRESENTED FOR CONSIDERATION AT WEDNESDAY EVENING'S MEETING—ENOCH C. ADAMS APPOINTED TO FILL THE VACANCY LEFT BY MR. GOODWIN'S RESIGNATION—SPECIAL COMMITTEE INSTRUCTED TO CONSIDER THE APPOINTMENT OF A HEAD MASTER AT THE HAMILTON SCHOOL AT LOWER FALLS—SEVERAL APPOINTMENTS OF ASSISTANT TEACHERS—$19,000 FOR FINISHING NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

There were several matters of importance presented for consideration at Wednesday's evening meeting of the school committee in the old Clafin school at Newtonville. The principal business was the appointment of Mr. Goodwin's successor, Mr. Enoch C. Adams, as headmaster of the High school.

The meeting was called to order at quarter to eight by Mayor Cobb. A motion to go into executive session was made and carried. This lasted about an hour.

The first action of the open board was the appointment of Enoch C. Adams as headmaster of the High school. This vote was carried 12 to 1. His salary will be $3000 a year.

The following nominations of teachers were then made: Bessie L. Payne assistant in the Barnard school, salary $620; Maud G. Rice, Annie M. McKenzie, Grace C. Perkins assistants in the High school, salary $620; Sadie M. Keeler assistant at the Rice, salary $620; Emma A. Batchelder as assistant at Mason, salary $620.

Mr. Hardy then read a majority report for the Ward 4 committee in which it was recommended that there be a head master appointed at the Hamilton school at Lower Falls. The report set forth the facts that such an appointment was desired by the residents of that section, and that the committee deemed it necessary.

A minority report was made by Mr. Lawrence Bond of the same committee who said that he was sorry to disagree with the other members, but he thought that such an appointment would incur an unnecessary expense to the city. It might establish a bad policy which was that other centers of population in the different parts of the city might ask to have a master in charge of the schools when the number of scholars reached 150 or over. By appointing a master at this school the committee might be entering upon an expensive policy.

Mr. Hardy thought the master should be appointed there, not only as a school, but to Lower Falls as a village. He spoke at some length of the need of a master in the Hamilton school.

At this point the regular teachers at the Hamilton school were renominated to serve another year.

Mr. Crehore presented a petition signed by a large number of Lower Falls residents and spoke in furtherance of it.

Mr. Hardy then told of his personal investigation. He referred to the school that attended the 8th and 9th grades of the Williams school at Abundant and the inconvenience that these scholars were subjected to. He thought that the residents of that section of the city were justified in asking that a master be appointed.

At this point Mr. Hale moved the matter be laid on the table. The motion failed of passage.

Mr. Hardy thought the matter should be received further investigation.

In response to Mr. Hollis' question Superintendent Aldrich stated that at present there were six scholars in the Williams school, Abundant. During five years twenty-four scholars attended the Williams school.

Mr. Hollis was opposed to the plan as suggested by the majority report of the Ward 4 committee. He thought that the people would be dissatisfied at a master employed at such a salary as had been suggested by Mr. Hardy.

Mr. Crehore followed and thought he understood the opinion of the residents of Lower Falls. He desired a master in charge of the Hamilton school and that they would be satisfied with the school board's selection.

A motion of Mr. Hale that the members of the Ward 4 committee, chairman of the finance committee and president of the board be appointed a committee to consider the question was made.

President Hollis declined to serve and Dr. Huntington was elected in his place. The motion was carried.

The report of the superintendent, which related solely to work in the High school, was read and accepted.

Grace L. Hazen and Mabel A. Reed were appointed assistants in the Williams school at a salary of $620 a year.

The finance committee reported the expenses for the month of May to be $17,063.19. An order appropriating this sum was later adopted.

It was voted to request the city council to provide for additional accommodation at the Franklin school by providing four additional rooms.

The next business was an order appropriating $19,000 for finishing the new High school. At the request of Mr. Ward Mr. Aldrich read the detailed expenses of the appropriation.

Mr. Ward thought that more money was being expended than need be and his remarks were to that effect.

There were no other speakers and the order was adopted.

It was voted to instruct the secretary to acknowledge the receipt of a number of pictures from Mrs. Wade for the Wade school.

A resolution expressing regret at Mr. Goodwin's resignation and wishing him success in his new field of work was adopted.

At 10:30 o'clock the board adjourned.

MR. ENOCH C. ADAMS.

Reception to Dr. and Mrs. Clark.

On Monday evening, at the Congregational church at Abundant, a reception was tendered to Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Clark by the members of the Newton Christian Endeavor Union.

Dr. Clark has just returned from his second tour around the world in the interests of Christian Endeavor work, and the occasion was a grand welcome home both to him and to his wife, who, with the rest of the family, has spent the winter in Europe.

The church was prettily trimmed with potted plants, cut flowers and evergreen, while conspicuous among the floral decorations, were the black and yellow flags of California '97. In sight of these emblems of the coming convention, the meeting was opened with several Christian Endeavor hymns, which were sung with the true convention ring.

Reading of the scripture by Rev. J. M. Dutton and a prayer by Rev. E. E. Davidson followed, after which were several short addresses of welcome.

The President of the Union, Mr. S. E. Thompson, greeted Dr. and Mrs. Clark in behalf of the members of the Union. He extended a personal welcome to them, as members of the Newton Union and as friends, whose absence had been felt.

Mr. Tyler, President of the local society, spoke for the Abundant Endeavorers. He represented especially the younger element of the church, who, he said, had learned to love Dr. and Mrs. Clark, and their greeting was truly from the heart.

Rev. F. E. Hamilton, vice president of the State Union, presented the greetings of the state. He saw in Dr. Clark the hand that held the helm of the Christian Endeavorism, and in which all Endeavorers could safely trust.

After singing by the Abundant C. E. chorus, Rev. C. H. Talmage spoke in behalf of the local pastors: "Dr. Clark is our prophet with honor in his own land. We are proud that he has represented us the world over."

Rev. E. M. Noyes followed with greetings from Newton pastors. He congratulated his verb of welcome in the first, plural, present, "We welcome," and especially for the bringing of good tidings.

The addresses of welcome were completed with that of Rev. C. M. Southgate pastor of the Abundant church and "Dr. Clark's own pastor." He extended true and loving greetings not only from the church but from the whole of Abundant.

Mrs. Clark was next introduced and was received with the Chautauqua salute.

She certainly had not forgotten her native tongue during her year's stay in Germany, for her words were especially fluent and charming. She brought greetings to the home society from the Christian Endeavorers of Europe, which country, she said, she had visited. The society, she said, as much as did Asia. The work has been well commenced, but the progress is slow, and the obstacles numerous.

The American chapel in Paris is doing especially good work along the C. E. line, and although the members are necessarily constantly changing, many lives have been touched and influenced. There is a society of workers with the American church in Berlin. This church is very cosmopolitan, and the center of Christian life in the city.

Dr. and Mrs. Clark attended the national convention at Liverpool. There was a reception committee to welcome the many strangers and to look after the comfort of each one; the convention was opened with addresses of welcome, the singing was delightful and spirited, the most brotherly feelings were paramount and the Junior Rally was a prominent feature; in every way, it much resembled the home conventions. Everywhere and constantly there was expressed a cordial friendly feeling toward America, C. E.

Mrs. Clark's words were received with much enthusiasm, though attention was immediately directed to Dr. Clark, who also rose to the view of a sea of many waving handkerchiefs.

He said that every time he came home from abroad, he was more and more glad to recognize the stars and stripes and what they stand for. He declared that throughout his travels, he had seen no lovelier sight than Abundant.

He brought with him several relics, a hammer made of Indian wood, to be used as a gavel at San Francisco, and also blocks, one of Indian wood and rupees, the other of agate marble, that which has made the Taj Mahal so famous all over the world. He showed two a hammer presented to him by the grandson of William Carey, that famous missionary to India. This hammer was used by Carey when he was a poor cobbler at home, and when he made the remark, "My work is to preach the gospel. I mend shoes to pay expenses." That is yours and mine too, said Dr. Clark, if we would build up the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ.

In his vital respects, he continued, "Christian Endeavor is the same the world over. It stands for something. It stands first for the covenant pledge, which means outspoken devotion and loyalty, and without which, no Christian Endeavor society can live."

It also stands for missionary aggressiveness. Each one must do his part to conquer the world for Christ. The so-called heathen countries are especially zealous in this part of Christian Endeavor work, often giving the whole of their spending money for the support of their poorer brothers.

But especially Christian Endeavor stands for larger, fuller, deeper, spiritual life. Its work is to show the world what God can do through a consecrated organization. Just as it was possible for Henry Martin and his associates to find God in a Hindoo temple, so it is possible for you to see Him. There is the secret of power with which you can make Christian Endeavor secure for all the future years.

At the close of Dr. Clark's address, opportunity was given to shake hands with him and Mrs. Clark. Refreshments were served both in the church parlors and outside, on the lawn, which was prettily decorated with lanterns.

There was an exceptionally large number present, and the evening was one of rare pleasure.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Ask your Grocer to show you a package of GRAIN-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury, as well as the adult. All who try it, like it. GRAIN-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grains, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. It is the price of coffee, 10c and 25c, per package. Sold by all grocers.

Increase in Plant Line Schedule To The Provinces.

The regular Summer Schedule of the Steamships "Halifax" and "Olivette" will be inaugurated on Tuesday, June 29th. On and after that date the "Halifax" will sail every Tuesday at 12 noon from the North Side of Lewis Wharf for Hawkebury and Charlottetown, calling at Halifax, and the "Olivette" will leave every Wednesday and Saturday at 4 p. m., for Halifax, connecting there with the Intercolonial R. Y., and Dominion Atlantic R. Y., also local Steam Lines along the Coast.

The three trips per week will continue until about the middle of September and is commensured several days ahead of previous seasons, which speaks well for the business.

Pertinent Questions.

Why Will a Woman Throw Away Her Good Looks and Comfort?

Why will a woman drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence and miss three-quarters of the joy of living, when she has health almost within her grasp? If she does not value her good looks, does she not value her comfort?

Why, my sister, will you suffer that dull pain in the small of your back, those bearing-down, dragging sensations in the loins, that terrible fullness in the lower bowel, caused by constipation proceeding from the womb lying over and pressing on the rectum? Do you know that these are signs of displacement, and that you will never be well while that lasts?

What a woman needs who is thus affected is to strengthen the ligaments so they will keep her organs in place. There is nothing better for this purpose than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The great volume of testimony which is constantly rolling in, proves that the Compound is constantly curing thousands of just such cases.

The following letter from Mrs. Marlow is only one of many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those she has relieved—surely such testimony is convincing:

"My trouble commenced after the birth of my last child. I did not know what was the matter with me. My husband went to our family physician and described my symptoms, and he said I had displacement and falling of the womb. He sent me some medicine, but it did little good. I let it go on about two years, and every time I did any hard work my womb would come down. Finally a lady friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did. The first bottle helped me so much, I continued to take it right along. My back was almost the same as no back. I could not lift scarcely any weight. My life was just a drag to me. To-day I am well of my womb trouble, and have a good, strong back, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. L. MARLOW, Milford, Ill.

—Mr. C. Howard Wilson, formerly of this village and recently of Greeley, Colorado, died on Monday, June 14, at the home of Mrs. Samuel Rand in Pittsford, N. Y. Mr. Wilson had been failing in health for several years, yet the news of his death will be a shock to the friends here who remember him with such esteem. He was in Toronto in May, attending the installation and ordination of the Rev. Oscar Brown in that city, and at that time appeared much improved in health, but his sudden death was due to a hemorrhage. Mr. Wilson for many years had been himself greatly in both church and state, being prominent here in political matters and working with great earnestness as pastor of the Unitarian society in Greeley, Col. He was a man of uncommon mental capacity and deep nature, and his loss will be widely felt.

—A very pretty home wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Waugh, 4 Quincy street, Somerville, June 16th, when Mr. Willis E. Darrell of this place and Miss Elizabeth A. Donaldson were united in marriage in the presence of immediate relatives and friends. The parlor, where the ceremony was performed, was tastefully decorated with ferns, daisies and cut flowers. The bride couple was attended during the ceremony by Miss Alice Donaldson, a sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Alfred G. Cunningham as best man. At 7 o'clock the bridal party entered the parlor and took their places under an arch of sunflowers and carnations in the bay window, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas A. Atkinson, pastor of the Union Square Presbyterian church. The bride wore a simple but becoming gown of white and blue, and was carried down the aisle by her father, who carried a bunch of white lilies of the valley, the veil being caught with flowers of the same variety. From 8 to 10 a reception followed, when the happy couple received the congratulations and best wishes of a hundred or more of their relatives and friends, who were present from Somerville and the various surrounding places. Mr. Robert Donaldson and Mr. David Donaldson, brothers of the bride, assisted by their cousin, Robert D. Donaldson, acted as ushers. A collation was served and music furnished for the evening by a select orchestra from Boston. The popularity of the young couple was shown by an unusual amount of presents. Mr. and Mrs. Darrell left for New York and the usual showers of rice and old shoes. After a short tour they will reside in this place.

—Henry S. Williams will soon open a branch store at Newton Highlands.

—The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Turner was celebrated at their home on Wednesday evening. Friends from Roxbury, Dedham, Cambridge, Somerville and the Newtons were present. A large number of presents, mostly of silver, were received.

—The Newton Centre Golf Club will hold an open handicap tournament Saturday afternoon, June 26, on the links on Langley road and Ripley street. Post entries. Fee, $10. Members of other clubs are requested to furnish their handicaps, duly attested by their club secretary.

—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pulsifer recently of Newton Centre, now of Needham, attended the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Pulsifer's step-mother, Mrs. Mary Dean Chickering of Norwood, South Dedham at the time of her birth. She was the daughter of John and Millis Dean, born June 14, 1797, and married at the age of 23. She is in fair health and converses quite well. She taught school in her young days, and among her pupils were the late Hon. Francis W. Bird of East Walpole, and Mr. Ellis Hartshorn of Norwood. Mrs. Chickering is living with her son, John D. Chickering.

—A fashionable June wedding and one of special interest in society circles of the south side was that of Miss Anne H. F. Smith, daughter of Mr. J. Q. Smith of Sumner street, and Mr. Charles B. Moore, also of this place, which took place Wednesday evening at the First Congregational church. At 7 o'clock the ceremony was performed by Rev. Daniel L. Furber, pastor emeritus of the church, before a large company of guests. Among those present were many of the representative people of the Newtons, Brookline and Boston. The church was handsomely decorated with palms, hydrangeas and a profusion of cut flowers. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. J. F. Smith. She was attended by her sister, Miss Constantia W. Smith, and Miss Mary Moore, the groom's cousin. The best man was Mr. Arthur Plympton of Dorchester. The following acted as ushers: William F. May, George M. Rice of Newton Centre, S. B. Furgeson and H. F. Gould of Boston. The bride was groomed in ivory white satin, with garniture of duchesse and pointed lace. She carried a bunch of white roses. The bridesmaids wore white organdie trimmed with white satin ribbon and lace. They carried pink roses. A largely attended reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony. The interior of the house was decorated with wreaths of laurel and masses of cut flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Moore were assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. Q. A. Smith and Mrs. N. R. Moore of Warren, the groom's parents. On their return from their wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside in this place and will be at home after October.

—Mr. George H. Crafts from Atlanta, Ga., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Amasa Crafts, and his sister, Mrs. F. W. Manson.

—Mr. J. E. Storey, who has occupied a house on Terrace avenue belonging to Mr. Alexander, has removed from the city.

—Mrs. Wheeler has returned from Nantucket where she has been the guest of her nephew, Rev. J. C. Ayer of St. Paul's church.

—Parents who wish their children taught foreign languages by native teachers will be interested in an advertisement on the 4th page.

—Mrs. Cobb and Miss Cushing had a very pleasant trip across the ocean, landing at Southampton, and are now enjoying life in Scotland.

—At the Methodist church Dr. Painter will preach Sunday, as usual. His evening sermon will be upon "The real power of Queen Victoria's reign."

—Repairs have been in progress on the spire of the Congregational church all this week, and attention was called to the desirability of having a vane put on same.

—It was parents' day at the Hyde school on Wednesday, and a large number of visitors availed themselves of the opportunity to be present and witness the exercises.

—The former quartet will render selections at both the morning and evening services at the Congregational church next Sunday. The Boys' Brigade will be present at the evening service.

—The body of Harold D. Gilbert, who was drowned in the Connecticut River, June 11th, was found last Sunday not far from where the accident took place. A service was held in Rollins chapel, Dartmouth College, Monday morning. The casket was then taken to Northampton under an escort of the college students, where services were held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Solomon Clark, grandparents of Harold, conducted by Rev. C. E. Hayes, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Ross of the First Congregational church of Northampton. The burial occurred at Plainfield.

—At Christ's church in Longwood, at 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, the marriage of Miss Cornelia B. Boardman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Boardman of 338 Marlboro street, Boston, to Mr. William H. Heckman of this place, was witnessed by a large gathering of society people from Brookline, Dedham, Cambridge and the Newtons. The Rev. Dr. Jencks of Canton performed the ceremony. The bride and her father, who were preceded by the maid of honor, Miss Alice H. Boardman, a sister, and the bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth A. Boardman of Lynn, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Edith M. Warner of Newton Highlands, a cousin of the groom, were met at the church rail by the groom and his best man, Mr. Samuel Tyler of Boston. The bride wore white duchesse satin. Her tulle veil was caught up with lilies of the valley, and she carried the same flowers. The maid of honor wore blue mousseline de soie under white lace, and carried sweet peas. The bridesmaids wore pink and blue mousseline de soie under white lace, and carried roses. The ushers were Messrs. F. H. Stillwagon of Allentown, Pa.; C. W. Fewkes of this place; F. C. Rising of Newton Centre; F. R. Arnold of Wellesley; F. R. Galtier of Springfield; and Charles Boardman. A reception followed at 388 Marlboro street, the home of the bride's parents.

—All kinds of fireworks, pistols, powder, blank cartridges, at Sherman's hardware store.

—Mrs. Walter Allen of New Haven, formerly of the Highlands, was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Phipps on Monday night.

—Mr. W. B. McMullin, the builder, has received the contract to build a house for Mr. E. W. Conant, on land bought of Mr. Strong at Waban, and near the greenhouses conducted by Mr. Conant for some time past.

—Arthur E. Nash has graduated from Nichols Academy at Dudley, Mass., and is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Nash. Mrs. Nash attended the graduation exercises and speaks highly of this educational institution.

—The Highlands will have its opportunity this week to hear the Philomela Ode. This is the first time they have sung here publicly and their audience Monday evening will undoubtedly give the young ladies the same hearty commendation that they have received on these occasions.

—The Sunday school and services of the All Souls Unitarian society will be discontinued during July and August, resuming the first Sunday in September. Mr. W. S. Jones will preach on Sunday next for the last time until after October 1st, when he will become a resident of this place. His address during the summer will be 10 Oakland street, Roxbury, Mass.

—The lawn party in aid of All Souls' Unitarian church, held at Mrs. H. I. Patterson's last Saturday afternoon, was in every way a perfect success, both socially and financially, and the ladies who assisted to make it, feel very much gratified and amply rewarded for their trouble, by seeing the children so thoroughly enjoy themselves. They desire to express their sincere thanks to all who so kindly lent their aid and presence.

—The members of the Congregational church celebrated the 25th anniversary of its organization last evening with appropriate observances. From 5.30 to 7 an informal reception and reunion was held in the church parlors, and at 7.30 the exercises in the church began. There was a very large attendance of present and former members, and the audience room was filled with a highly interested audience. Hon. James F. C. Hyde, first mayor of Newton, who is the first member of the church since its organization, was the first speaker. He gave a brief outline of the history of the society, and detailed in an interesting vein the changes which have taken place in Newton Highlands during the past 25 years. He was followed by Rev. Daniel L. Furber, pastor emeritus of the First church, Newton Centre, and former pastor of those who left that church to organize one at Newton Highlands; the Rev. Edward M. Noyes, present pastor of the First church, and the Rev. Henry J. Patrick, pastor emeritus of the Second church, West Newton.

—The members of Dalhousie lodge, F. and A. M., held a social gathering at the church, Sunday morning, in response to an invitation from their chaplain, Rev. H. Usher Munro. A special sermon of unusual interest was given by Rev. Mr. Munro, and music appropriate to the Queen's jubilee was sung by the choir.

A special sermon of unusual interest was given by Rev. Mr. Munro, and music appropriate to the Queen's jubilee was sung by the choir.

REAL ESTATE.

George A. Ward has sold to Dwight Chester, 23,000 sq. ft. of land on Langley road, and a new street leading off the same, for John Ward. It is the intention of the owners to open up 50 or 60 lots in this vicinity. Geo. K. and John Ward have recently sold to Lillian Brown of Boston, about 800 sq. ft. of land on Ward street, who purchased for a home residence. The sale was made by the same broker.

The Fitch estate, on Sargent street, near Centre street, has been purchased by Frank A. Day of the firm of R. L. Day & Co., bankers. It is one of the finest pieces of residential property in its part of Newton and comprises a large dwelling house, a stable and greenhouses and 121,500 square feet of land, with a frontage of about 250 feet on Sargent street. The estate was sold by W. E. and F. Edmunds.

Another sale of vacant land in Newton Centre has just been closed, the total land area being 17,000 square feet. The grantor was A. L. Campbell, and W. C. Johnson was the purchaser. The price paid being about 37 cents per foot. The land is on Irving street, and it is the intention of the new owner to erect a handsome residence thereon. W. E. Ireland was the broker.

Two frame houses on Mt. Vernon street, West Newton, owned in the name of Charles E. Merrill, have been conveyed by deed to John O'Brien, for a private consideration. There is about 20,000 square feet of land, the whole property being assessed for $15,000.

One of the largest transactions that has ever been made in Newton Centre, has just been closed through the agency of Bowker, Gay & Willis. The entire Davis estate, situated on Pleasant street, Hancock avenue, and Homer street, Newton Centre, together with the mansion house, stable and cottages, has been sold by Mr. Charles S. Davis to Charles J. Pillsbury et al., who will immediately commence laying out the grounds as a private park for high class residences. The land comprises some 700,000 square feet, and has a frontage of some 700 feet on Pleasant street, and several hundred feet on Hancock avenue. It is opposite the Newton Centre Park and playground, and its natural beauties have been frequently commented on. New streets will be opened through the property under the charge of a competent landscape engineer. The entire property is taxed in the vicinity of $50,000, but the price paid was very much in excess of this figure.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, real estate given by Dugald McDougall to Joseph M. Bates and Arthur B. Carpenter, Trustees of the Attleborough Savings and Loan Association, dated December, A. D. 1885, and recorded with Middlesex S. Dist. Deeds, book 242, page 204, and for breach of the said mortgage deed, the premises were sold at public auction on Saturday, the seventeenth day of July, A. D. 1897, at the office of the Attleborough Savings and Loan Association, No. 27 Park Street, Attleboro, Mass., all and singular the premises described in said mortgage deed, namely a certain parcel of land situate in that part of Newton in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts called West Newton and bounded as follows: Situated on the West side of the street known as Middlesex street, between the premises owned by J. Upham Smith to Dugald McDougall by deed dated July 1, 1885, and recorded with Middlesex S. Dist. Deeds, libro 2379, folio 294; and a portion of those conveyed by said Smith to said McDougall, and in said Newton Centre, and recorded with said Deeds, libro 2379, folio 292.

The said mortgage provides that in case of default in the performance of the condition thereof the grantees may sell the premises by public auction in Attleboro, Mass., first publishing a notice of the time and place of sale once each week for three successive weeks in some one newspaper published in said Attleboro, and to accordance with such provision and with the Public Statutes of Massachusetts this notice is published both in said Attleboro and in said Newton Centre. The premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes and assessments. Terms one hundred dollars cash at time of sale.

Adirondack Notes.

Paul Smith, N. Y.
The fishing on Little Spittire Pond has been of the best thus far, and the size of the trout is above the average. One party caught several that were larger than the pond trout taken by Dr. Watson of Brookline. It is the general report that the fishing is better in all the adjacent bodies of water than ever before. One speckled trout was caught that weighed four pounds and one ounce. It measured twenty-one inches long, and the girth was thirteen inches. Another weighed three pounds and twelve ounces, and another three pounds and eight ounces dressed.

Saranac Lake.
A party of five gentlemen and three ladies were gone three days and during that time they fished just ten hours, and caught one hundred and forty-two and a third pounds of speckled trout, dressed weight, and they had trout at every meal for three days that was not weighed, and which were taken during the time they were fishing. It is fair to say that the total catch would exceed one hundred and sixty pounds. One of the gentlemen caught in thirty minutes fifteen trout that dressed, was about thirty-two pounds. They were all of the brook trout species.

Saranac Inn.
The trolling at this hotel was never more promising than at the present time. One of our guests, a young lady, took three within one hour, and the largest was a lake trout that weighed six pounds. Many have been taken by our annual visitors, that greatly exceed this; one weighed twenty-four and one-half pounds, another twenty-two and one-half pounds, and the largest one was estimated to weigh twenty-six pounds. These were caught with a troll and in very deep water.

Wawkeek Lodge.
The Connecticut party have been here ten days and in that time they have taken away very fine fish. There is no body of water in the Adirondacks that affords greater returns to the angler than Upper Saranac Lake, and this has been proven by the many specimens now on exhibition at the different hotels along the shores of this lake one needs only to see them to be convinced of this fact. With its fine fishing we have some of the finest of mountain views, the purest of water, and a most invigorating atmosphere. One can make no mistake by coming to this beautiful summer resort. It is the Adirondacks what Boston is to the New England states, and no New Englander should miss seeing it during the season.

About Transportation.
It would be well when considering your trip to remember that while all fishermen catch fish in the Adirondacks, yet the largest, plumpest, and gamiest wait upon the wise fisherman who travels via the Fitchburg railroad. J. R. Watson, General Passenger Agent, Boston, will be glad to answer your letter and tell you all about your proposed trip, or you can secure the same information by calling at the Fitchburg railroad new city ticket office, 330 Washington street.

Newton Golf Club.

The Newton Golf Club has the advantage of having a professional green keeper, Thomas Grant of Scotland, who will give lessons to beginners and others, and attend to the wants of members.

Tuesday, June 29th, the Newton Golf Club plays the Newton Centre club on the Centre street grounds, four men on each team. The same day the Chestnut Hill club will play the West Newton club, on the latter's grounds. The four clubs in Newton have formed a league and will play matches during the summer for a handsome pennant.

On Saturday, July 3, the Newton Golf club have an invitation handicap tournament, to which 15 clubs have been invited.

On July 5th, in the morning, there will be an open tournament for ladies, and any resident of Newton is invited.

In the afternoon there will be a series of putting and driving matches.

On July 6th, the Newton club team plays the Chestnut Hill team.
